Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive nuisances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

To a Child.

If youth were mine, and grace, and early joy,
(And once I was not old, Denise, nor stern,)
I'd ring your brow with wreaths you would not spurn,
And share with you the kingship of the Boy.
Ah, that were grand, and you would not be coy!
What games we'd have, what brave new sports we'd learn!
It might be so—it might, if Time would turn,
Or Love could build again what years destroy.
Now, now, dear heart, I see no way but this—
To trump your queen card with my simple knave,
Or like a Plautine lord when luck's amiss,
Don the tunic—doff the laticlave;
Seal, if you will, the indenture with a kiss,
But, kiss or no kiss, I shall rest your slave.

R. C. Lotroy.

AN ODD MISTAKE.

Mr. Grey was a man who had committed a great blunder. He had retired! And now time hung heavily on his hands, and he knew not what to do with himself. So, for lack of better occupation, he took to calling on a certain plump widow of his acquaintance, who had a remarkably pretty daughter.

Bessie Peploe was a younger edition of her mother. They had the same black eyes, rosy cheeks, and wavy hair, and, truth compels us to add, the same quick temper.

"I'll never marry old Gray," Bessie told Mrs. Peploe, defiantly, after the manner of the young lady who refused a man before he "axed her," for Mr. Grey had not yet proposed, although every evening he presented himself at the widow's dwelling, and sat by the fireside, in the most comfortable chair in the room.

"We shall see," returned the elder lady, and her bright eyes flashed, for she had set her mind upon the marriage, and already regarded Bessie as the mistress of Mr. Grey's comfortable house, in the High street of the comfortable little town in which they resided.

"Yes; we shall see," muttered Bessie, and putting on her hat, slipped out to have a walk with her admirer, Jack Wilkins, to whom she confided her trouble.

Jack was poor, and for that reason had refrained from offering his hand to pretty Bessie; but when she told him that old Grey was after her, he could no longer disguise his feelings, and before they parted the girl he loved had consented to be his wife.

"What will mother say?" thought Bessie, with a sigh, as they parted at the gate of Mrs. Peploe's little cottage. "That horrid man will be there."

That horrid man was there, in an armchair, opposite Mrs. Peploe.

He smiled at Bessie as she entered; but Bessie frowned at him in return, and his face fell. That evening the girl was absolutely sullen; she spoke in monosyllables, and ill-temper deprived her pretty face of half its beauty.

"I am afraid her mind is set against it," Mr. Gray told himself with a sigh, "and we might all be so happy, if she could only look at the matter in a proper light; but I suppose it's natural."

And he redoubled his efforts to be agreeable—poor little man! for he had an affectionate heart, and his big house was dull and lonely.

But Bessie's face never relaxed its set expression.

She hated the man, and meant to let him see it, in defiance of her mother's angry glances. What business had a man old enough to be her father to come courting her?

"You have behaved disgracefully," her mother said, when Mr. Grey had taken his departure. "It is so wicked to trifle with the love of any man."

"I have never trifled with his love," retorted her daughter; "he must know that I hate him. I have never attempted to disguise it—now, have I, mother?"

"You are a fool," said her mother, bluntly. "Mr. Grey is the best chance you have ever had, or ever will have, and I insist on your saying yes when he asks you to be his wife."

"Mother," cried Bessie, impulsively, throwing her arms around her mother's waist, hiding her face in her bosom. "Mother, I have already said yes to somebody else—somebody I love very dearly."

"What!" gasped Mrs. Peploe, freeing herself from her daughter's embrace. "What!"

"It is true enough," said Bessie, in a faltering voice. "Jack has asked me to marry him, and I have said yes."

"Without consulting me!" exclaimed her mother, angrily, looking at her with a stern, reproachful face.

"I love him," returned Bessie. "He is the only man in the world that I could ever care for."

"Stuff and nonsense!" cried Mrs. Peploe. "Even if I liked the young man—which I don't—your marrying would be out of the question. He can't afford to keep you."

"I am not afraid of poverty," said Bessie, bravely, "besides we are not going to marry in haste. We can wait."

"Poor fool!" and Mrs. Peploe's lips curled. "I know what this waiting means for the woman. She goes on trusting and believing in his promises, and then when her beauty has faded, he turns round and marries someone else. That's how it ends."

"Even then," said Bessie, "the woman is better off than if she had tied herself to somebody she could not love."

"Oh, yes, you are mad—quite mad," returned Mrs. Peploe; "but, thank goodness, you have a mother who won't allow you to make an idiot of yourself. You will marry Mr. Gray, and forget all about that misguided young man who ought to be ashamed of himself."

"What for?" asked Bessie, with resentment.

"For proposing to a girl whom he has no means of keeping in comfort," returned Mrs. Peploe; "a strait-waistcoat is what he wants. You are a pair of lunatics; but, fortunately, I've some sense left, and I won't stand by and see my daughter ruined for life."

And she flounced off to bed without giving Bessie the usual good-night's kiss. Poor girl, she missed it sorely, and sobbed herself to sleep; but she meant to be true to Jack all the same. Not even her mother's anger would induce her to give him up and marry old Grey.

She treated the object of her dislike with the greatest coldness on his next visit, and succeeded in making him look thoroughly miserable. But he brightened considerably when Mrs. Peploe, to atone for her daughter's rudeness, sought to engage him in conversation. Indeed the grateful little man ventured to give the elder lady's hand a gentle squeeze when he rose to take his departure; and, to his surprise and joy, it was warmly returned.

"Now, if Miss Peploe would only get over her objection, how happy and comfortable we should all be," he thought, as he trudged home. "Hullo," coming suddenly face to face with a handsome young fellow in a rather shabby ulster.

"How are you, Jack Watkins?"

"Oh! I am all right, thank you," said Jack, sulkily, and strode on without another word, while little Mr. Grey stood gazing after him with a look of comprehension on his face.

"I suppose she has been telling him all about it," he said to himself with a sigh. "It's natural, I suppose, but it's selfish, too. Yes! It is a little bit selfish of them." And, shaking his head, the old gentleman knocked at the door of his house in the High-street—that large, gloomy house that had never seemed homelike since the death of that sister who had been his right hand.

When we think we are going to make people happy, it is hard to find that we are regarded as an enemy, and Mr. Grey retired to rest in rather dismal spirits.

He arose the next morning with the determination of putting an end to his suspense by offering himself and his home in the High-street to the object of his attachment; he could bear the suspense no longer.

When he arrived at the widow's cottage that evening Bessie was not at home. She had gone out to tea with some friends, Mrs. Peploe said, but failed to add that she had wilfully absented herself because the sight of Mr. Grey was distasteful to her.

"I'm glad she is not at home, dear Mrs. Peploe," said Mr. Grey, looking very red and nervous. "I am glad she is not at home, because it gives me an opportunity of saying something that is very near my heart."

He edged a little nearer to the widow as he spoke, and she smiled at him in an encouraging way.

She was a handsome woman, and her smile revealed the whitest teeth in the world.

"Pray go on, Mr. Grey," she said. "I am all attention."

Mr. Grey coughed, and looked excessively uncomfortable.

He wished that the widow would avert her bright eyes from his face; her steady gaze confused him, and he scarcely knew what he was going to say.

He hardly liked to risk popping the question, for a refusal would mean banishment from the cheerful fireside where he had spent so many pleasant hours.

But the widow was waiting for him to speak, and he could not back out now; he had gone too far.

Poor little man! His heart was beating like a sledge-hammer.

How still the room was. He started as the ashes dropped upon the hearth. This awful silence must be broken, or what would the widow think of him? He must say something.

"You must have known my object in coming here so often," he blurted out at last.

"Well, I think I have guessed it," returned Mrs. Peploe, continuing the stitches in the stocking she was knitting.

"I thought you would," observed Mr. Grey, considerably embarrassed by her reply, but relieved at the same time, for it saved him from the ordeal of a long explanation. "Well, since you have guessed my secret, can you give me hope?"

The widow was silent for a few moments, and Mr. Grey gazed at her in the deepest anxiety, his heart throbbing with mingled joy and fear.

The house in the High-street would seem more lonely than ever, if he returned to it a disappointed man.

"I will be frank with you," she said presently. "As far as I am concerned there is no possible objection to the marriage; but Bessie is so young and foolish that——"

"Ah! yes! I thought she would object," said Mr. Grey, rubbing his face with a red silk pocket-handkerchief. "But don't you think you could bring her round? I'd be so kind to her, that I'm sure she'd get over her dislike of the idea. Now, couldn't you induce her to be more reasonable?"

"I have tried my best," said the widow, with a deep sigh. "But the girl is wild and headstrong. I seem to have lost all influence over her."

"Then, after all, there is no hope for me," said Mr. Grey, looking terribly crestfallen. "I thought we would be such a happy family—we four."

"We four!" repeated Mrs. Peploe, staring at him as if she thought he had taken leave of his senses.

"Yes!—we four! Why not?" asked Mr. Grey. "I know Jack Watkins is very fond of Bessie, and I fancied we should all be happy together, if I could only induce you to say 'yes.'"

"Then it is not Bessie you want," said the widow, dropping stitches in her stocking, and blushing like a girl, as the truth flashed through her mind.

"Bessie!" exclaimed Mr. Grey, laughing heartily. "What would I want with a child like that? Didn't you know," here he grew suddenly grave, "that it was you I wanted, Janet?"

"We all thought it was Bessie," stammered Mrs. Peploe. "Oh! what a fool I have been!"

"Don't say that," returned Mr. Gray, in a sad tone of voice. "It is I who have been a fool to think you could ever care for me."

The widow made no reply to this, but gave him a glance that spoke volumes. In another moment his arm was around her waist, and he had stolen a kiss.

"And you think that Bessie won't object?" he said, anxiously.

"I am sure she won't," returned Mrs. Peploe, with a twinge of conscience, as she thought of the way she had received Bessie's confession of love for Jack Watkins.

"I don't know so much about that," said a merry voice from the doorway, and Mr. Grey hastily drew his arm from the widow's waist as Bessie entered the room.

The kiss had opened the young lady's eyes to the real state of affairs, and she knew in a moment that her mother had been the real object of Mr. Grey's affections. But, why had she not seen it before? She was angry with herself for being such an idiot.

What in the world would Jack say?

Would he be pleased to find that Mr. Grey was an imaginary rival?

Bessie pulled aside the blind and looked out to see Jack, who had escorted her home, standing on the opposite pavement with his eyes fixed on the cottage. Mr. Grey followed her, and, after peering over her shoulder, vanished from the room, while at the same moment her mother called her away from the window.

"Bessie," said Mrs. Peploe, between laughing and crying, "forgive me for all the hard things I said to you."

"I will, indeed," returned Bessie, heartily, as she kissed her mother; "but what fools we have been! We must have been as blind as bats not to see that it was you that he wanted all the time."

"Who would dream that he would have looked at me when you were near," returned Mrs. Peploe, stroking her daughter's rosy cheek.

"Oh! mother," begged Bessie, but paused abruptly, as the door opened, and Mr. Grey entered accompanied by Jack Watkins.

The four looked at each other in silence for a few moments, and then, tickled by the absurdity of the situation, Jack went into convulsions of laughter. His mirth was contagious, and all laughed heartily, although Bessie tried to look indignant.

"All's well that ends well," observed Mr. Grey, rubbing his hands, and then he bent forward and audaciously kissed Mrs. Peploe right before the eyes of the young people.

It was not long before a double wedding was celebrated, Mr. Grey having lent Jack the money to start in business for himself, and from that day to this the couple in the big house and the couple in the cottage—a wedding present from Mr. Grey—have never regretted their choice.

A Market For Old Hats.

The group of islands know as the Nicobars, situate about 150 miles south of the Andamans, has been but little explored, though the manners and customs of the inhabitants of the islands offer very interesting peculiarities to the notice of the ethnologist. One of the most noticeable of these, and one which seriously affects the trade of the islands, is the passion for old hats, which, without exception, pervades the whole framework of society. No one is exempt from it. Young and old, chief and subject, alike endeavor to outvie each other in the singularity of shape no less than in number of old hats they can acquire during their lifetime. On a fine morning at the Nicobars it is no unusual thing to see the surface of the ocean in the vicinity of the islands dotted over with canoes, in each of which the noble savage, with nothing whatever on but the conventional slip of cloth and a tail, white hat with a black band, may be watched standing up and catching fish for his dainty meal. Second-hand hats are most in request, new hats being looked upon with suspicion and disfavor. This curious passion is so well known that traders from Calcutta make annual excursions to the Nicobars with cargoes of old hats, which they barter for cocoanuts, the only product of these islands, a good, tall white hat, with a black band, fetching from fifty-five to sixty-five good cocoanuts. Intense excitement pervades the island while the trade is going on, and fancy prices are often asked and obtained. When the hats or cocoanuts have at length come to an end, the trader generally lands a cask or two of rum, and the whole population in their hats get drunk without intermission until the rum also comes to an end. It is curious that in those far-away regions so profitable a market should be found for cast-off specimens of one symbol of civilization. The same yearning after better things in a more advanced stage may be observed in Madagascar, where no officer is content if he can not deck himself out in the tarnished plumage of some long-defunct admiral, general, or ambassador.—Hatter's Gazette.

He Felt The Last One.

An old negro was engaged at thirty cents a day at the last term of the court in Martinsville to place his head at an opening as a target for parties who paid five cents for three throws of a base ball at it. The old fellow was struck at least 100 times on the top of the head by a hard base ball thrown from a short distance and didn't even wink, until a man who could throw the ball with the force of a shot from a gun struck him on the head. When the ball struck him he scratched his head and asked his employer how many hours he had to put in. The man told him he had earned twenty cents. "Well, give me dat," said he, "my head is getting soft. I felt dat last ball."—Lynchburg Virginian.

Of Edmond About it is said that to those who saw him for the first time he seemed to be an intellectual millionaire, but his pockets were full of 50-centime pieces. He once wrote a feuilleton that Alboni's singing (she was fat) was "like a nightingale piping out of a lump of suet." The indignant prima donna sent him a goose-quill by the hands of a Marquis. About received the pen with his most charming smile, and said: "I regret, sir, that Mme. Alboni should have plucked you for my sake."

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE AND OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

Obedient to the requirements of our state constitution, we have assembled to accept the trust which the people of New Hampshire have committed to our hands.

In assuming the duties which attach to the legislative and executive branches of the government of the State, we take upon ourselves a great responsibility; for upon the character of our laws and the fidelity with which they are enforced, depend, in no small degree, the intelligence, prosperity, and happiness of our entire population. Let us then enter upon the discharge of these obligations with a firm determination that all our acts shall bear the impress of pure aims and wise deliberation, and conduce to the best interests of those who have placed us in the positions we occupy. Those who long ago preceded us in making and administering the laws marked out a general policy which has been justified by its fruits and approved by the people. We may safely follow in their footsteps, changing nothing simply because it is old, and establishing nothing simply because it is new, but confining ourselves to such legislation as is clearly demanded. A simple government, administered with rigid economy, with perfect honesty, and with due regard to the security of life and property, the promotion of learning and morality, and the amelioration of the condition of the unfortunate, is the rich legacy which we have received from the founders of our commonwealth.

Our people do not desire or need much legislation. A few laws, so reasonable that they will enforce themselves among good citizens, and so evidently just that they can easily be enforced against the vicious and the lawless, are all that are required.

STATE EXPENDITURES.

We are the custodians and almoners of the public funds, and those who bear the burdens of taxation will rightfully require at our hands that their money shall not be squandered. Every obligation that the State has incurred must be promptly and honestly met. Our public charities must not be permitted to suffer for lack of means; our state institutions of learning must be sustained; our penal and reformatory establishments must be supported, and the necessary expenses of the several departments of the state government must be provided for;—but it will be extravagance to go much beyond this at a time when depression in business and depreciation in values render it difficult for tax-payers, especially those whose means of living are mostly derived from their daily labor, to respond to the demands made upon them. The creating of commissions which serve to increase public offices and multiply expenses should be carefully avoided. The endowment by the State of institutions of a private nature, or those in which it retains a partial interest and nominal control, is a departure from the practices of the fathers, and may prove a precedent which it will be difficult to set aside. The only safety for the state treasury lies in a steadfast determination to incur no expense, the necessity for which has not been plainly demonstrated.

From the reports of the state treasurer, it appears that our finances are in a very satisfactory condition. During the fiscal year ending May 31, 1884, the public debt was reduced $1,542.65. But it should be remembered that the expenses of the long session of the last Legislature, amounting to $127,386.12, were charged to the account of that year. The report of the treasurer for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1885, shows a reduction of nearly $150,000. Should the sessions of the Legislature hereafter not exceed five or six weeks in length, which would seem to be sufficient for the enactment of all the laws the public good requires, we may safely expect an average annual reduction of the public debt of more than $100,000, without increasing the usual annual tax of $400,000, which is as much as the people ought to be asked to pay. The books in the treasurer's office, and the methods of keeping them, are justly commended by the auditors as models of neatness and order.

LABOR AND CAPITAL.

During the past year various causes have combined to interrupt and depress the regular course of business throughout the country. The excitement usually attendant upon a presidential election turned the attention of the people from business to politics, and the uncertainty in regard to the future policy of the national government led capital matters caused many to curtail operations, so that neither capital nor labor has been satisfactorily employed. Profits have been small, work has been scarce, and wages much reduced. This has produced uneasiness and discontent in many places. Our own State has been comparatively free from those unfortunate conflicts, between employers and employes which in other sections of the country have proved so disastrous to both; but doubtless there are some who think they have suffered more than their share of the losses incident to the dullness of the times, and will come to you for redress, asking for amendments to our statutes regulating the relations between capitol and labor which in their judgment will promote the public welfare and protect individuals from unjust exactions. We do not apprehend that in a State like ours, where laborers become capitalists and where capitalists were once laborers, where work is honorable, where industry and skill are the open paths to competency, where privileges are equal and the opportunities for acquiring great riches are rare, where those who pay wages and those who receive them recognize their mutual dependence upon each other, much is to be feared from the monopolies of the rich or the communism of the poor. Nor do I believe that the condition of the working

New Hampshire Legislature.

The senatorial vacancy in the twentieth district was filled by the election of Jesse Gault, republican, who had 174 votes to 124 for Andrew T. Fox, democrat.

Both houses met on Friday forenoon, and adjourned to Monday evening, the 8th.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Gentlemen of the Board of Health: Your publication of Section 21 of Chapter 10 of the city ordinances is very proper, and its provisions should at once be enforced by you. If the members of your board are not aware who the parties are that violate this ordinance, I would simply state for their information that nearly all the inhabitants of the western slope of the city, comprising that portion bounded by the Jones brewery, State street and High street, empty the contents of their water closets and sink drains into sewers provided by the city, which open into the north millpond. In addition to this, other places might be mentioned that empty into the same pond, such as the Eastern railroad roundhouse, the shoe factory, the Portsmouth machine shop, Eastern railroad passenger and freight station; and at least fifty private residences on the borders of the pond contribute their share of waste matter from closets and sink drains, in direct violation of the law. If the board means business, we think that there is ample chance for them to perform their duty.

It is said that when the president read Howe Call's memorial oration he said to a prominent political friend from New Hampshire, "Ah! Mr. Jones, that is the right kind of man to put into office; why did you not tell me of what stuff he was made?" "Why," replied the distributor of the New Hampshire patronage, "we wanted to keep him for an 'offensive partisan,' and can't afford to have such men shelved in an office." Mr. Cleveland proceeded to examine the applications for New Hampshire places.

The school in the first district of Rye closed on the 1st inst., owing to an epidemic of measles; all but six of the thirty-two pupils have the complaint, or have had within three weeks.

The committee on railroads of the Massachusetts legislature gave a hearing last Thursday morning on the question of providing for the reduction of the bonded debt of the Eastern railroad to $10,000,000. Counsel Olney for the road made an able argument in favor of such legislation. Mr. C. A. Welch, counsel for Mr. Willard P. Phillips, a trustee of the bondholders, opposed such action.

She is rid of those bad feelings about her heart now, and relief is permanent, other remedies only helped her a few minutes.—Miss Clara Bradt, Lawton, Mich. $1.00 per bottle. Free pamphlet of F. E. Ingalls, Cambridge, Mass.

Lieutenant C. A. Stone, who was the officer of the deck on the Powhatan when that vessel came into collision with a schooner about a year and a half ago and who was afterward suspended, has been restored to active service.

The Increased Annual Sales of G. O. Taylor Old Bourbon Whiskey is a good guarantee that it is all the proprietors, C. H. Graves & Sons, represent it to be. Absolutely Pure. Druggists and grocers have it everywhere.

Secretary Whitney has designated Admiral J. W. A. Nicholson, retired, as the naval member of the prize court to be appointed by the United States district judge at New York to examine the officers of the brig Ambrose Light, recently captured by the Alliance for alleged violation of neutrality laws. The law provides that the prize court shall consist of three members, one of whom shall be a retired naval officer and another a member of the bar of the district court.

Are You Tired of Being Sick? We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

The renovation of the Unitarian church in Dover has been commenced; the alterations are estimated to cost $4000.

CATARRH.—For fifteen years I have been greatly annoyed with this disgusting disease, which caused severe pains in my head, continual dropping into my throat and unpleasant breath. My sense of smell was much impaired. By a thorough use for six months of Ely's Cream Balm I have entirely overcome these troubles. J. B. Case, St. Denis Hotel, Broadway and 11th St., New York. Not a 'snuff or snuff.

The Dover Democrat says: "Allan E. Haley, stevedore for C. H. Trickey & Co., has purchased the scow and steam hoisting apparatus belonging to Patrick Kiley of Portsmouth, and he will use it in river business in this locality."

Messrs. Hawk & Wetherbee, of the Windsor Hotel, New York, appreciating the times, have reduced their rates to $4 00 a day and upward, without in the least depreciating the high standard of the house.

That Tired Feeling

When the weather grows warmer, that extreme tired feeling, want of appetite, dullness, languor, and lassitude, afflict almost the entire human family, and scrofula and other diseases caused by humors, manifest themselves with many. It is impossible to throw off this debility and expel humors from the blood without the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I could not sleep, and would get up in the morning with hardly life enough to get out of bed. I had no appetite, and my face would break out with pimples. I bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling, and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, O.

"I had been much troubled by general debility. Last spring Hood's Sarsaparilla proved just the thing needed. I derived an immense amount of benefit. I never felt better." H. F. MILLER, Boston, Mass.

"For seven years, spring and fall, I had scrofulous sores come out on my legs, and for two years was not free from them at all. I suffered very much. Last May I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had taken two bottles, the sores healed and the humor left me." C. A. ARNOLD, Arnold, Me.

"There is no blood purifier equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla." E. S. PHELPS, Rochester, N.Y.

HOME AGAIN.

The marines who early in April went from this navy yard to the isthmus of Panama, arrived back to this city on Friday forenoon by rail, and marched to the foot of Daniel street, where they took steamer for the yard. Their arduous duties on the isthmus, and the wretched climate of the place, have told heavily on them, their worn look testifying that they have not been engaged in any child's play since their departure. They appeared neat and soldierly as they passed through the streets, yet the absence of the spick-and-span look we have been accustomed to see them present on holiday parade could but be noticed by the most casual observer, the officers sharing with the men in this deterioration of nice looks; but they can comfort themselves with the reflection that they have performed their full share in the work done on the isthmus within the past two months, and which has emphasized the fact that the country possesses in the marine corps a brave and disciplined body of men ready to answer the call of duty at a moment's notice, wherever it may take them.

NAVAL INSPECTION.

The Omaha, fitted for sea at this naval station, was hurried away by her captain, with the understanding that she was to be inspected in Newport.

The object of an inspection, as generally understood, is that the navy department may be informed as to the capacity for service, efficiency in gunnery, and sufficiency in the equipment of an outgoing ship. If the commandant of a station sends a ship to sea previous to her inspection, or if such unusual procedure is ordered by the department—and in time of peace there can be no especial call for unusual haste in sending a ship to be inspected at Newport—and any disaster happens to the vessel, it would be quite natural for her commander to find at least one excuse in the fact of her being sent to sea without inspection.

It is due alike to the officers of the ship as well as to those of a station that a new ship should be inspected when first ready for sea at the place of her construction. There may be additions or alterations to a ship before the board of inspection visits her at the second port of arrival after leaving the station whence she took her first departure. If the rules for the government of the navy permit this loose way of inspection the new secretary should at once reform what may become an abuse; and the sooner it becomes the invariable rule that a ship is properly inspected at the port of her departure, after construction or repair, the earlier will the necessity and value of this board become appreciated.

We have great confidence that Secretary Whitney, on being informed of this abuse, will at once set the matter right, so that there will not be again witnessed during the term he serves as secretary of the navy, the farce of an inspection of a new war vessel after she has made two trips at sea.

The following-named gentlemen are mentioned as prospective inspectors of customs at this port under Collector Hanscom: Andrew J. Sides, Henry F. Wendell and John W. Caswell.

Messrs. George W. Randall & Son on Thursday received at their fish market, corner of Bow and Penhallow streets, two very handsome salmon, one of them being of such a size as is rarely seen in this region, and about one hundred extra fine shad, large and very fat, the whole having been taken in the weir at Gerrish's island that day. Eight salmon, all of good size, have been trapped in the weir this season.

Alewives, which have been so scarce in the waters of the upper Piscataqua for several seasons that the weir fishing on the small rivers was last year generally abandoned, and where prosecuted amounted to but little, have this season commenced running up in large numbers.

The schooner Sea Foam, towed into York harbor several weeks since, derelict, has been sold by her owners to Varrell & Baker of York, who paid $75 for her, besides assuming the settlement of the salvors' claims.

At the 32d annual meeting of the Portsmouth Baptist Sabbath School Convention, held in Newton on the 31 inst., B. R. Jewell of South Hampton was elected president, and C. H. Clough of this city secretary and treasurer.

John Crowley, "wanted" for stealing the team of James Kelley of South Newmarket, in this city on Memorial day, was arrested by Asst. Marshal Hurley and Officer Quinn at midnight Friday night at his home on Russell street, having arrived back from his excursion that evening. Patrick Sheehan was also taken in as an accessory. The assistant marshal has been working the case up since the offence was committed.

Capt. Hartley Weare of Cape Neddick, York, well known as for a long time the captain of the schooner Gold Hunter, died on Monday, June 1st, after an illness of only a few hours. He injured himself internally on the previous day while putting a heavy stone on a wall, and this is supposed to have been the cause of his death, though he was subject to heart disease.

On and after July 1st the mail service between Cape Neddick and Kittery depot is to be extended to this city, increasing the distance a mile; mails will leave Cape Neddick daily, Sundays excepted, at 6:40 A. M., arriving in Portsmouth by nine o'clock; leave Portsmouth at 11:30 A. M., arriving at Cape Neddick by 1:10 P. M. An additional mail will be put on between York and this city, leaving York daily except Sundays at three in the afternoon, arriving in Portsmouth by 4:45; leaving here at 6:30, and arriving in York by eight o'clock in the evening.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that disease, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medicine operation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is recorded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure condition of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

Send for a copy of our pamphlet, which will be mailed free, containing testimonials, and a statement of the ingredients of the "FAVORITE REMEDY" and its household friend.

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

But, if you have not been so, advise your friends to take small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malaria of fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. classes is often improved by laws prescribing how long they shall work or how they shall be paid. Where this kind of guardianship has prevailed there is often more friction between capital and labor than where the terms upon which those who earn and those who pay wages shall work together are left to their mutual intelligence and good sense. But I shall most cheerfully approve any measures that will make the toilers of our State more certain of a fair return for their industry or more secure in the enjoyment of their earnings.

AGRICULTURE.

Of the 142,468 people of New Hampshire who are returned in the census of 1880 as employed in the fifty principal occupations, 58,037 were engaged in manufacturing, mining and mechanical industries, 44,490 in agriculture, 28,206 in various professions, including 7,536 domestic servants and 10,651 laborers, and 11,735 in trade and in railroading.

These figures show that our state has lost the distinctive agricultural character of its early history, and should teach us the necessity of guarding and protecting our farming interests that remain, lest they too be destroyed by the sharp and increasing competition of more fertile states, and the farming classes, which are justly regarded as the best representatives of the intelligence, honesty, and frugality of our people, be lost.

Our state has great resources besides its farms. Its magnificent and varied scenery and its delightful summer climate make it a natural sanitarium and pleasure-ground. Its waters and forests abound in valuable fish and game. It has great wealth of wood and stone, and its streams afford almost limitless water-power. All these, properly appropriated and dealt with, are unfailing sources of wealth and material progress. But our farms should still continue our most cherished possessions, not only because they furnish a large share of our food-supplies but because upon them we mainly rely for the best development of mind and body and the perpetuation of the qualities and character which have made the natives of New Hampshire, at home and abroad, the best types of American manhood and womanhood. We must save the farms. We can do something toward this by encouraging every industry which creates a home market for farm products, by protecting farmers from unjust exactions, and by affording them opportunities for obtaining an education which will enable them to off-set, by superior intelligence, the disadvantages under which they labor.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Our Agricultural College has not proved so great a success as was anticipated by its founders and friends. It has been encouraged by the state, and its managment has been in the hands of devoted and judicious friends. It appears to be in good condition, well managed, and capable of materially assisting our farming interests; but the number of students who have availed themselves of its advantages has been small, and its influence, as an institution for the education of the young, has been very limited. During the nineteen years of its existence it has graduated but ninety-two in all. Its present number is thirty-five, of whom eleven are candidates for graduation. Only seven of these belong to this state, and there is not much prospect of a larger patronage in the future. But as an experimental station, where analyses of water, soils and fertilizers are accurately made, whether new seeds and implements are carefully tested, where new methods are intelligently tried and the results promptly and plainly reported, the college and farm can be made of inestimable value to our farmers who have neither the knowledge nor the means necessary to make scientific investigations and costly experiments.

STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

The State Board of Agriculture has existed for years. Its members have accomplished much in stimulating our interest in agricultural pursuits, and in disseminating information among the people through the farmers' meetings, lectures, and published reports. Though its work has been taken up and greatly extended by that young and vigorous organization, the grange, the board is still active, and finds plenty to do.

MANUFACTURES.

In twenty years—from 1860 to 1880—the capital invested in manufacturing in this state increased from $22,274,094 to $51,112,263, the number of persons employed in shops and factories from 32,340 to 48,831, and the annual wages from $8,405,610 to $14,814,793. This rapid growth is, in my judgment, largely due to protective policy of the national government, and the liberal manner in which manufacturing industries have been treated by New Hampshire. I trust that all doubts of the permanency of that policy will be soon dispelled, and I feel sure that the industries which have built up our cities and villages, in which so large a share of our capital and labor is employed, have nothing to fear at your hands.

STATE PRISON.

Our State prison, which was erected in 1880-'81, combines all needed facilities for the safe keeping and useful employment of convicts. It is also managed upon the modern and humane theory that it is the duty of the state to enlighten, and, if possible, reform, as well as punish criminals. The discipline is strict without being savage. The regard is paid to the health and comfort of its inmates, and the financial management is honest and judicious. The expenses last year were $20,349.25, and the earnings $18,754.24, leaving a balance against the prison of $1,595.01.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The Industrial School can hardly be classed as a penal institution. It may, with more propriety, be counted as one of our public charities, a home where the state places its wayward children for reform and instruction. Its inmates, many of whom are orphans, are made to feel that they are the objects of the generosity, care and good will of the state, and that the way to a better life is still open before them. The humane and generous policy under which the school was established, the fostering care and support always extended to it by the legislature, and the good conduct and success of many who have been its inmates, have taken away much of the odium and disgrace that formerly attached to this class of institutions. Those committed to it do not feel that they are outlaws and criminals, forever debarred from society, but that they may win their way to respectability and success in life, and become useful citizens. I regard this school as a model of its class, and can suggest no improvement in its aims and methods. The treasurer's report shows a balance of $6,248.17 in his hands April 1, 1885. No appropriation will be needed from the state. Whole number of inmates 113.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers in the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after notice, filed so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied their stalls or stores for keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Parting Lovers.

Winding upward rose a slender vine tree,
Winding upward round the fort of Buda.
Ah, no vine tree was it winding upward,
But a loving maiden round her lover!
Early had the twain begun their loving,
Loving ever since their days of childhood,
Now they had to say farewell forever.

To the maiden thus the stripling murmured:
"Three broad rivers, maiden, run before thee;
Nigh the third a garden green is growing;
In the garden blooms a tree of roses;
From that rose tree pluck a rose, O maiden,
Lay it near thy heart, within thy bosom;
Faster than the rose leaves fade within it,
Faster fades my heart for thee, beloved!"

To the stripling thus the maiden answered:
"Three high mountains, youth, arise before thee;
From the third there flows a quiet fountain;
Nigh the fountain lies a block of marble;
On the marble stands a silver chalice;
In the silver chalice lies a snowflake.
Bear away the snowflake from the beaker,
Lay it near thy heart, upon thy bosom;
Faster than the flake of snow dissolving,
Faster melts my heart for thee, beloved!"

DORA'S DILEMMA.

Lou Mayne stood before the tall dressing-glass, brushing out her long, silky, black hair with what seemed unnecessary energy, while her dark eyes flashed and the rich color in her velvet cheeks deepened.

Dora Lorn, a fluffy mass of white muslin, blue ribbons and yellow curls, was tucked away, like a kitten, in a big, blue-velvet easy-chair, and sobbing in that gentle, subdued way that is, of all displays of grief, the most aggravating to witness.

Lou turned and looked at her once, with the brush elevated, as if she had more than half a mind to fling it at her.

"Upon my word, Dora," she said, "you are the greatest idiot I know of! What are you crying about? Surely not because that old aunt of yours is dead? Why, you never saw her in your life! It is quite absurd."

"What! When she left all her money to Harry and me?"

"Oh, is that what you are crying about? Well, really!"

"No, of course not. You know it is on poor Ned's account. He will be so cut up."

"Will he? Why?"

Dora glided off into another little patter of weeping.

"I've—got—got—to marry Harry now, you—you know! The money is left us on that condition."

"And you mean to give up the man you love for that old woman's dirty money?" ejaculated Lou, in incredulous scorn.

"You know," murmured Dora, plaintively, "that the wishes of the dead ought to be respected."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Lou, irreverently. "The eccentric whim of a superannuated old woman, who never saw either of you."

She finished adjusting her magnificent coronet of hair, biting her red lips all the while.

"Marry Harry, will she?" she was saying to herself, in mingled anger and amusement. "What a little fool she is! I wonder how he feels about the legacy."

A little later, Lou Mayne was sauntering down the street in all the glory of a new winter toilette, a scarlet-winged toque perched coquettishly above her jetty braids, and archest mischief smiling from her velvet eyes.

Not far away she met Harry Verner.

"I am so glad not to have missed you!" he exclaimed, eagerly. "I was just going to your house to ask you—"

"And I am glad to have met you," interposed Lou. "I wanted to congratulate you."

"Indeed!" he questioned, with a puzzled look. "What for?"

"On your approaching marriage."

Harry stared a moment, and then laughed and colored.

"You mean my aunt's legacy? How does Dora take it?"

"Like a lamb," returned Lou, demurely. "Sheds a few natural tears to poor Ned's memory, but declares herself ready for the sacrifice."

Harry laughed again, and then.—

"You're going to the ball to-night, Lou. Will you let me drive you over?"

Lou bridled up, and pursed her pretty lips.

"What will Dora say?"

"Dora? Ned will take care of her, of course!"

Lou shook her head very gravely.

"She wouldn't think of going with him now. She intends to marry you."

"Indeed!" laughed Harry; "but it takes two to make a bargain. You'll go with me to-night, Lou?"

"Perhaps," smiled Lou, and swept on.

The moon had not yet risen when the party set forth, but it was bright starlight, clear and frosty.

As young Verner drew up before the house in which Lou Mayne and Dora Lorn both lived, Ned Cuthbert was just behind him; and the two girls came out together, both so muffled and veiled—for the night was cold—that in the obscurity one could hardly be told from the other.

"I never should have known it was you, only for your hat," said Harry, as he tucked a rug round his precious freight, with a smiling glance of recognition at her scarlet-winged toque.

"It is all right," whispered Lou Mayne, as she stepped into Ned's trap. "I changed hats with Dora; she thinks Harry wanted her to ride with him, and he thinks he has got me."

They both laughed. The next moment they were off.

Harry had two horses, but he managed to drive them with one hand, thus leaving the other free to gently insinuate itself about the little muffled shape besides him. For he meant to lose no time. Something in Lou's air that afternoon had perhaps warned him of breakers.

To his delight, no objection was made to the position of his arm, which was not at all like coquettish Lou.

Greatly emboldened, he ventured to extend the circuit, and bending his tall head, murmured in the tenderest accents,—

"Darling?"

The figure he clapsed gave a little convulsive start.

"You know already that I love you, don't you, dearest?" he proceeded.

Something between a gasp and a sob came from behind the thick veil, but no words.

"Will you be my wife, dear one?" he asked, just as the other vehicle came dashing up, making such a racket that he could not catch her reply.

However, he must have been satisfied as to its purport, or he would scarcely have strained her so fondly to him, and at a convenient turn in the road, pushed up a corner of her veil to print an impassioned kiss on the sweet lips.

The ride was to culminate in a dance at a country house a few miles out.

Having arrived at which place, amid much jollification, the ladies were duly assisted into the house and hastened to get warm and repair any damages to their toilettes.

They were very merry in the ball-room soon after—all, perhaps, but Dora, whose baby-face, usually glowing with pink prettiness, had a white, drawn look and a pitiful quiver about the small mouth that no one could help noticing.

"What ails Dora?" someone asked.

"Hush!" said Lou, but wickedly raising her own voice. "Don't you know her aunt is dead?"

The girl heard, and gave her curly head an angry toss.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself Lou," she whispered, presently.

"I never saw such a flirt in my life!"

"Why, Dora!" was the reproachful reply; "and only because I'm trying to comfort poor Ned, for your shameful treatment of him."

"He's wonderfully easily comforted," pouted the girl; "and there's Harry too! How can you treat him so?"

"Oh, he's your look-out now."

Dora gave a childish lift of her pretty shoulders.

"He hates me as bad as I do him, and I know it!" she said, "if he did—"

She paused, blushed furiously, and then whispered,—

"He made love to me dreadfully, though, on the road. Would you have believed he was so mercenary?"

Lou laughed.

"You're rather well matched in that respect, aren't you?"

Dora blushed scarlet.

"Does—does Ned seem to mind much?" she questioned, timidly.

"Oh, no! He'll get over it easily enough," said Lou, lightly. "You needn't worry about him."

Dora bit her lips, and looked ready to cry.

"He hasn't asked me to dance with him once this evening," she said, in a grieved tone.

"Of course not! Do you suppose he wants to dance with you, now that you and Mr. Verner are going to be married?"

"I don't know," said Dora. "I don't want him, and I don't want the money. He's welcome to it all."

"Oh, Indeed!" said Lou, looking terribly amused. "Well, perhaps you had better tell him so."

"I would if I thought Ned would make it up with me."

"I don't know about that," returned Lou, sternly. "Rather doubtful, I should think."

At this moment, who should come sauntering up but handsome Ned himself.

"Our dance, Lou!" he said quite gaily, and familiarly offering his arm.

And then, as they strolled away, he nodded coolly to Dora, with—

"Not dancing, Miss Lorn? Shall I send you a partner?"

"No!" Dora answered shortly.

Then, knowing that she was going to cry in spite of herself, she ran into a little waiting-room off the ball-room, supposing it untenanted.

Harry was there, staring gloomily at his boots, and wondering about Lou.

"Hallo, Dora!" he exclaimed. "Crying?"

She went straight up to him, lifting the pretty tear-drenched face, like a flower dipped in dew.

"Please, Harry," she cried, piteously, "you may have all the money, and I know it wasn't right to let you go on so, to-night, and kiss me and all; but, please, I don't want to marry you."

A light began to burst on Harry Verner.

"Was it you or Miss Mayne I brought here to-night?" he demanded abruptly.

Dora thought he had taken leave of his senses, but replied,—

"Me, of course! Lou said you wanted to talk over the will with me."

"Hang the will—" began Harry, excitedly. "If I don't settle with Miss Lou for this. Excuse me, Dora; I never dreamed it was you! I thought it was Lou all the time."

He darted away, and just as Lou was finishing her dance with Ned Cuthbert, went up to them.

With a peremptoriness that Lou, for once, never thought of resisting, he transferred her hand to his own, and holding it there, led her courteously, but firmly, to a spot where a friendly curtain screened them from the general gaze.

"A pretty trick you played me!" he began, sternly, stopping and looking at her.

Lou's eyes were downcast, the dark, saucy face covered with delicious blushes, and the red lips twitching nervously.

"The least you can do now," he went on, "is to ride home with me and settle it! Will you?"

"But what will Ned say?" protested Lou feebly.

"He will be glad of the exchange, and you know it. Will you come?"

"Perhaps," laughed Lou, as she adroitly slipped away from him.

And in spite of all his efforts she persistently evaded him all the rest of the evening.

However, she rode home with him, and Dora with Ned.

Both pairs must have come to an amicable understanding, for there was a double wedding three months afterwards.

And the legacy proved to be a delusion, after all.

The poor old woman hadn't money enough to hardly keep herself; but her brain was a little cracked, and she had a fashion of stealing away every now and then to a lawyer, and getting him to draw up her will, devising imaginary legacies to whoever she happened to think of at the time.

CUT GLASS.

The History and Description of Several Methods and Effects.

Cut-glass vases or vessels that may fairly be called ancient do not exist. Specimens of wonderful relief and incavo work on gems and on glass remain to us, but no cut glass proper. Cut glass may, therefore, be without doubt considered a thing of comparatively modern date. A cutter of iron and steel, called Caspar Lehmann, is said to have invented it. Some authorities who have confounded carved and engraved work with cutting, as applied to glass, believe he only revived the art. His patent was granted in the year 1609 by the Emperor Rudolphus II., to whose court he became lapidary and glass-cutter. He practiced his calling in the city of Prague.

But it was at Nuremberg, near the beginning of the eighteenth century, that glass-cutting began to show really fair claims to be reckoned as an art. In England about this time, and afterward in France (according to Burty, who quotes Peligot on this point), potash and oxide of lead were added to the silex in the manufacture of glass, instead of soda and lime. Whether this admixture was first employed in Germany or England is uncertain, but there is no doubt that, without the use of lead as a constituent of glass, the clear, bright sharpness which, when cut, it presents to the eye, would never have won such favor as it has. If lead entered into the composition of "flint glass" made in England, at Savoy house, in the Strand, and at Crutched Friars, in 1537, we may claim for it priority to Lehmann's patent for cut glass, 1609, and hazard an opinion that lead glass was manufactured in England before it was made in Germany.

It was not, however, until about 1700, long after Sir William Mansell's monopoly of flint glass manufacture here, that it began really to improve in quality and in pattern. For all that, it is curious indeed that not only abroad, but at home, there should remain great uncertainty as to what cut glass really is. Few people know how to distinguish it from engraved glass, and if they do know they yet as a rule, mistake well molded and pressed glass for cut. This confusion of ideas is not only attributable to the ordinary observer; it is to be found in the pages of several who have in our day writen on the subject: "Some glaziers"—glass-makers were at one time so called—"had also discovered a mode of cutting glass by the employment of emery powder and sharp-pointed instruments of hardened steel, as well as with heated irons." So Dr. Lardner, "assisted by eminent scientific men," has it in his cyclopedia.

Glass may be cut, that is to say roughed, by applying wet emery powder, instead of wet sand, to the iron wheel or cutter when in motion, but sand has been generally preferred for the purpose from times long before the appearance of the cyclopedia. It may also be roughed by a coarse-grained stone wheel. The sharp-pointed instrument of hardened steel, no doubt, mean such as were sometimes substituted for the diamond points used in scratching figures and ornament on glass. Several vessels with examples of this kind of work, good and bad, are in the Slade collection of glass in the British museum.

As to the heated irons, they could only have served as parting, splitting, or slitting glass. Through the same confusion and misuse of terms, the man who cuts out flat glass for stained and other windows is called a glass-cutter. The words cut, engrave, carve, and their correlatives, as commonly employed, signify not only one and the same thing, but several different things. The meaning attached to the word by the flint-glass trade is safety to follow.

Pressed and molded glass are often made in imitation of cut, but are duller edged, more rounded in pattern, and less sparkling. Pressed glass, as the name implies, is made in presses with mechanism so contrived as, with little tax on the mind, to yield great quantities of glass rapidly. Cut glass is mainly distinguished from engraved, carved, etched, and other ornamented glass by the more or less geometrical lines of its patterns, which form prisms and facets of generally four, six, and eight sides; and next by lines that do not form prisms and facets.—London Art Journal.

His Last Home.

"Billy, you can go home now," said a State street merchant to a boy who had been opening and closing the door all day to the throng that had been coming and going. Billy hurried out just as the shadows were lining the busy thoroughfare.

The merchant went to his desk, and in running up the profits of the day he fell asleep and dreamed that he was Billy and that he was in a home, a boy again, free from vexation and bills payable.

Billy loitered about the street until the ebb and flow ceased, and then darted into a hallway, where he laid down and dreamed that he was the merchant for whom he had worked.

The merchant awoke in the morning to confront again with weary limbs the contact, and the bustle, and the fluctuations of a busy world.

The janitor of the building found Billy in the hallway where he had fallen asleep the night before. Where he woke up in another world. Billy had gone home.—Chicago Herald.

Cocaine, the new anesthetic, is a colorless fluid not unlike glycerine. Under its effects, a patient at a hospital the other day submitted to the ball of his eye being punctured by a delicate spearhead knife, and in its place a small suction pump inserted which brought out some pus from a sack which the knife had punctured, and all the while the patient, mentally conscious, chatted pleasantly with the operator, as insensible of the operation as though it were being perfomed on this hat band

A Letter of Thanks.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham; Very dear Madam: My wife Arie A. Green has suffered with a displacement which caused her unknown pains till I had almost given up all hopes of finding any relief for her. But the Guiding Spirit referred me to your Vegetable Compound. I went twelve miles to purchase a bottle and the first two doses gave her immediate relief, and after the use of the first bottle she declared herself a new person, two bottles entirely cured her. Your medicine is invaluable to me. It was indeed a messenger of peace in my house, it cured my wife, and God knows I am the happiest man alive to-day. Words cannot express our feelings towards you.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

ASYLUM FOR THE INSANE.

The report of the trustees of the Asylum for the Insane will give you all the information I possess in regard to its operations, revenues and needs. Institutions like this are products of modern civilization, and among our most beneficent and indispensable charities. They afford relief to the unfortunate and safety to society, and are necessary not only for those who are proper subjects of charity, but also for those who cannot be properly cared for elsewhere, even when they are in possession of abundant means. These unfortunates are steadily increasing, and the capacity and resources of our asylum should be continually augmented. The price of board and care of patients should always be placed as low as possible, so that all persons who wish may avail themselves of the benefits which the institution can afford.

BLIND, DEAF, AND DUMB.

Although our State has no establishment of its own for the special support and education of the blind, the deaf, and the dumb, we have watched over them with parental care, and educated them in the schools and asylums of other States. Our blind have been cared for at the Perkins Institute in Boston, and the deaf and dumb at the asylum in Hartford, Conn. By these arrangements we have been enabled to discharge, at a moderate expense, the sacred duty of affording them such relief as their unfortunate condition demands. So far as I have been informed the usual appropriation will be sufficient.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

I regard the State Board of Health as one of the most important and necessary of our state organizations. It should be heartily supported, and made as efficient as possible. Science has demonstrated that many of the diseases which are attributed by superstition and ignorance to supernatural influences, are the results of natural causes, and may be avoided. The legislature, therefore, did a wise thing when it established a board to investigate the sanitary condition of our State, and to educate the people to a knowledge and observance of the laws of health. We needed to be told that physical evils are not always unavoidable dispensation of Providence, but are the results of causes which we often produce, and which we may generally prevent. We needed to be taught that the worst enemies of human health are generated in the filth that festers about many of our dwellings, throwing off poisonous miasms, and loading the air we breathe and impregnating the water we drink with the germs of disease and death; and we needed to be instructed how to preserve our health and prolong our lives by an earnest and unceasing warefare upon sickness-breeding imparities of all kinds. The primary object in establishing the board of health was undoubtedly to impart such information and instruction. In this the board has been actively engaged, and appears to have made good progress. But danger may come from abroad, and additional duties may devolve upon it. It is well known that Asiatic cholera has prevailed in many parts of Europe during the last year, and it is feared it may reach this country the present season. In case of its approach, the board should be charged with the duty enforcing the most stringent sanitary regulations. If any additional legislation is necessary to enable it to do this promptly and effectually, it should be had at this session. The regular expenses of the board are fixed by statute, and I think will be sufficient for the ordinary wants of the year, but should it become necessary to resort to extreme measures, a further sum might be needed, and I suggest that a reasonable amount be placed in the hands of the governor and council, to be used if found necessary.

FISH AND GAME.

I consider it of great importance that the work of restocking our waters with food fishes, and of protecting at proper seasons our birds, game animals and fish, should be continued. The state hatching-house at Plymouth furnishes annually immense numbers of fry, which only require judicious distribution and reasonable protection to add largely to the resources of the State and the profit and pleasure of its people; and our game laws have done much to make our valuable birds and wild animals more plentiful. I have no estimate of the market value of the fish and game taken annually in New Hampshire, but it is a very large sum, and the fact that our woods and waters afford good fishing and hunting is worth much to us as an attraction to the sportsman and tourist. Both the direct and indirect revenues from this source can, it seems to me, be greatly enhanced.

We have in New Hampshire more than 70,000 acres of water, and as a comparatively small expense it can nearly all be stocked and kept supplied with the best varieties of food fish. If, as stated, an acre of water can be made to yield as much food as an acre of land, our resources in this direction are almost limitless. The benefits of our efforts to restore to our rivers the migratory fish have thus far accrued mainly to other States, and this will probably continue to be the case; but as Massachusetts pays a share of the expense of the hatching house, we can perhaps afford to continue the present arrangement, by which we maintain fishways and propagate shad and salmon, so long as it does not cripple our water-powers.

MILITARY AFFAIRS.

Our state militia consists of one brigade of three regiments of infantry, two batteries, and two companies of cavalry, about one thousand men in all. It was organized by the advice of those who, by actual experience in the late war, knew

White Mountain Notes.

The people of North Conway, Jackson and Lower Bartlett believe that the future has great things in store for them. The burning of the Glen house last fall and the prospective construction of a "short cut" to the summit of Mt. Washington, together with some other changes "prospective" lead them to believe that travel on their side the mountains is to be greatly increased. The Glen house will not be rebuilt this season. It is doubted if it ever is. The fact is that a company has been formed, the money subscribed and the contract given out for building the new summit carriage road. This road will start near the source of the Ellis river, about three miles southwest of the Glen house, and run north to a point about a mile below the Half-Way house on the old carriage road. The total length of the new road is a good mile and a quarter. The distance from where it starts to the Glen house is three miles, and it is an equal distance to the junction of the old road with the new. The saving therefore is about five miles between North Conway and the summit. The summit will then be nearer the Ogdensburg railroad than the Grand Trunk. But more important than this, perhaps, is the fact that a small hotel will be open in Pinkham notch the coming summer. It is a plain frame structure. Mr. Thompson, Sr., formerly of the Kearsarge house, will be the proprietor. The house is intended for the accommodation of people going up and down the mountain and through the notch. But the coming fall a good-sized hotel will be built, and opened for the season of 1886. The Barrons are desirous of taking hold of this, and it lies between them and Mr. Thompson. Possibly both will be concerned in it. There is a cleared lot on the west side of the road about a hundred feet above the highway, on the side of Wild Cat mountain, from which can be obtained a full, clear view of the whole Presidential range and from which one can also look into Tuckerman's ravine and see the snow-arch. Here the new hotel will be built. It will be started with a view to future extensive enlargement. The house can be built very cheaply. Lumber costs $10 per thousand here. This new road and the new house are what make Mr. Milliken hesitate about rebuilding the Glen.

Another movement is to have the Boston & Maine road extended from North Conway to Jackson, and eventually up the Ellis river to the vicinity of the hotel. It is hinted that the time between Boston and North Conway by the "Mountain Ranger," as the express is called, will be shortened to four hours, and that all persons holding through tickets will have free seats in the drawing-room car. An active rivalry is looked for between the Boston & Maine and the Lowell, but with so great a distance saved by the Boston & Maine route, and with its attractive scenery, there of course can be but little doubt of this line having as in years past the great share of the mountain travel.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.
"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.
"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.
Purifies the Blood
"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.
"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.
Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Made only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar.
Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."
"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.
"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.
"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.
Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Made only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Mary Willey, Williams master, arrived on Saturday from Bangor with 80,000 feet of long lumber and 300,000 shingles to John H. Broughton.

The schooner Satellite, Aderton master, on Sunday afternoon hauled out from Philbrick's wharf, where she had discharged a cargo of extra nice firewood, and sailed up river to the brick yards to load for Boston.

The schooner Flying Dart, Jameson master, came in on Sunday with 45,000 lbs. of fish.

The schooner Henry M. Clark, formerly of this port, arrived at New York last week from Abacoa with a cargo of pineapples.

Among the freight charters to this port last week was one of a schooner for 550 tons coal from Perth Amboy at $1.05 per ton.

The old schooner E. A. Creed is lying at Liberty bridge, where she passed the winter; the tide flows in and out of her, and nothing has yet been done toward fitting her out for summer cruising. The little steamer Luke Hoyt lies idle on the other side of the dock from the "Creed;" and the steamer City of Portsmouth is still in her winter quarters at C. E. Walker & Co.'s wharf, and shows no sign of getting ready for a move.

There were ten births and twenty deaths recorded by City Clerk Goodrich during the month of May; but six of the deaths occurred in other places, and it is more than probable that all the births are not reported for registration. Six marriages only were recorded during the month, and four of the couples were from other states.

The fire alarm was being tested Saturday afternoon, and so far as we are aware worked all right, though there were rumors that pulling in an alarm from one box brought no response. A good deal of public opinion appears to be adverse to the new alarm; but it should be remembered that the fire insurance companies having risks in the city unanimously urged its adoption. We shall wait to see how it works in actual practice before finding fault with it.

"Doctor" Fay—and just what college conferred the degree or just what degree the diploma indicates, we never have heard—draws the reins over a fine pair of horses. The doctor takes the early fresh morning air, frequently starting out for a drive by six o'clock, and having a spurt of ten miles before breakfast, after which he is able to grasp the problem of clothing the men of this great country at prices within the reach of all who can afford to pay them.

Ed. C. Russell brought in this (Monday) morning 150 lobsters taken off Wallis' sands, Rye. This number is about the average of what he brings in weekly to Randall & Caswell.

A cargo of lime ashes, discharged near the Spring market by a schooner from Rockland, Me., has been sold to some of the large farmers. Other farmers doubt the value of this material as a fertilizer, as compared with wood ashes.

The Haverhill (Mass.) commandry of Knights Templar will make a pilgrimage to lake Winnipesaukee on St. John's day, June 24th, returning via the hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, and this city.

The funeral of William M. Auld, late a conductor on the Eastern railroad, took place on the 3d inst. from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Brackett Hall, in North Berwick, the obsequies being under the direction of Ocean Lodge of Freemasons, of Wells, of which organization he was a member. The Boston & Maine management furnished a special car from Boston, and about one hundred employes of the Eastern Division attended, among them being Division Superintendent D. W. Sanborn, Conductors Leighton, Dame, Lunt, Dyer, Hinty, Hutchinson, Mudgett, Hatch, Gowen, McDonald and Rust of the Eastern Division; Conductor Dockham, formerly of the Eastern railroad; Conductor Bonner of the Fitchburg railroad; George Glover, formerly station agent at Salem, and the veteran baggage master, William Dodge. The floral tributes were extremely beautiful, and included a unique floral design, a coupon railroad ticket from Boston to Halifax, with names of the stations in immortelles upon it; a broken column; anchor; open book, and other designs. The railroad ticket was from the conductors of the Maine Central railroad. Rev. George A. Cleveland, pastor of the Baptist church in North Berwick, conducted the exercises at the house, the full Masonic ritual being given at the grave by Ocean Lodge. There were eight pall-bearers—four from the lodge, and Conductors Dyer, Rust, McDonald and Dockham, who were associated with the deceased on the railroad. Mr. Auld was a native of Wells, forty-five years old, and unmarried.

A Word for the Contractors.

Mr. Chandler, ex-secretary of the navy, could not resist the opportunity to say a good word for his friends the contractors at the dinner of the Amoskeag Veterans last week. "Break up extravagant navy yard management if you choose," exclaimed the virtuous Chandler. This from a man who probably knows more of the manner in which navy yards have been run in order that enhanced cost of building and repairing ships might be quoted as an argument in favor of building government vessels by contract, is the most original display of "Satan rebuking sin" ever witnessed among the Granite hills.

Home Again.

The steamship Acapulco at New York last week from Aspinwall, brought the first battalion of United States marines returning from special duty on the isthmus, nineteen general court martial prisoners from the vessels of the North Atlantic squadron stationed at Aspinwall, and the members of the Nicaragua canal survey. Prominent among the passengers was Dr. Zaldivar, ex-president of San Salvador, who is en route to Europe. The first battalion of marines is the same which opened the transit of the isthmus on the 19th of April; it has suffered much from malarial and other fevers, and left the bones of several of its members behind. The last victims of yellow fever were Privates Angeroth, Kyzer and Cody. Several cases of fever occurred on the passage home, but no deaths. Many of the men look badly, and a majority of the officers have lost from ten to thirty pounds each.

Heavy Failure.

The property of Ex-Gov. Samuel W. Hale and the Keene Chair Co., of which he is principal owner, was attached on Thursday, June 4th, by Boston parties and Keene banks, for amounts aggregating $277,000. Three years ago he was rated in a commercial directory as being worth $600,000, with no debts worth mentioning; and two years ago as being worth $700,000, with $100,000 of debts.

Ex-Gov. Hale seems to have met the fate of the man who speculates. While he followed the business in which he was engaged in Massachusetts he was able to make money as a chair manufacturer, but when he went to Boston to speculate in real estate, and hired money on a falling market, of course he was obliged to succumb; and yet this result will be forgotten by men who think there is a surer way to get rich than by the slow progress of accumulation. Mr. Hale seems to have been a success in his own business, but when he went outside in competition with men who were better booked than was he, of course he made a loss.

Application was made in the supreme court of Maine at Alfred, last week, by a resident of Gerrish's island, Kittery, for a divorce from his wife, who at the time of her marriage to him was the widow of a business man at Christian Shore, Portsmouth.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, how which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

what the State needed; and so far it has fully met all our requirements. The troops are intelligent and well disciplined, the officers gentlemanly and efficient. The State has reason to be proud of its little army. Although small, it is sufficient in times of peace. In case of war it would form a nucleus around which a larger force could be readily mustered. At the breaking out of the Rebellion, New Hampshire found itself without any military organization whatever, yet the patriotism of our citizens prompted them to offer themselves for the defense of their country faster than they could be armed and mustered into service. That patriotism has in no degree become extinct, and can be relied upon whenever occasion calls without extraordinary effort to make it active and prominent in peaceful times.

STATE LIBRARY.

I wish to direct your attention to the needs of the State Library, which has entirely outgrown the rooms in which it is placed. It contains a large number of valuable books, among which are the law reports and statutes, both American and English, which are almost indispensable to our courts and attorneys in the examination of legal questions. Rooms are needed of sufficient capacity to contain our present library of about eighteen thousand volumes, and a prospective increase of more than one thousand volumes annually. I understand plans have been drawn and estimates made by competent architects, which are now in the pands of the trustees, for the enlargement of the present rooms by adding to the state-house on the west side, and also for the erection of a separate building. I would recommend that some favorable and decisive action be taken at the present session upon this subject.

THE PROHIBITORY LAWS.

The worst enemy to human happiness and progress is the intemperate use of intoxicating drinks; and the best law in regard to them is that which will do most to prevent their sale. The present prohibitory law, if rigidly enforced, would be sufficient; but in many of our larger places it is openly and successfully defied, and probably will be until people are brought to see and feel that not only their own interests, but the safety of society, depend largely upon the banishment of alcoholic liquors from the land.

I can suggest no amendment which will make these laws operative in the absence of a strong and pronounced public opinion favoring their enforcement; but I trust you will give the subject the attention it deserves, and leave untried no plan that gives reasonable assurance of riding us of so terrible a curse as the liquor traffic.

COMMON SCHOOLS.

I do not deem it necessary to argue the importance of public schools, or the duty of the state to afford to its youth suitable opportunities for acquiring the rudiments of such an education as shall prepare them for the ordinary business and duties of life. Our free schools are interwoven with the early training and habits of the people, and no arguments are needed to convince you that these nurseries of our future men and women should be sustained by a generous support and guided by skillful hands. Especially at the present time do the increasing activities of business, and the great influx of the unschooled, demand that our common schools should be kept up to the highest point of efficiency. I am glad to find a deepening interest in them, and a more general appreciation of their importance.

During the past year teachers' institutes have been held all over the counties of the state, under the direction of the able and faithful superintendent of public instruction. These have been largely attended, and have demonstrated the wisdom of the law authorizing them. I would suggest that the law be so amended as to give teachers the privilege to closing their schools to enable them of attend at least one institute each year.

Changes in population have led several towns to abolish their school-districts, and substitute the town system of school management. This is undoubtedly of great advantage to the schools in many towns, and it is the opinion of some of our best educators that such a change should be made general by a state law; but there is still a strong and wide-spread feeling against abolishing the old time-honored school-district, and I do not see why it may not safely be left for the voters in each town, who ought to be the best judges of their own needs, to determine the question for themselves, as under the present law.

NORMAL SCHOOL.

Our Normal School was established at Plymouth in 1872, for the purpose of educating and training our teachers for our public schools. The state has appropriated large sums for its support, and the town in which it is located has given it considerable assistance. Its trustees are men of great ability and experience, its teachers enjoy an excellent reputation for skill and success in teaching, and its graduates have generally proved to be thoroughly trained and well fitted for their professions.

There is an increasing demand for better teachers, not only to supply the schools of our own state, in which about 3,600 are employed, but to answer the many calls from abroad. And yet the school at Plymouth has never received the patronage it has a right to expect, and without which any school must prove a failure. The average number of graduates is about thirty.

The state cannot afford to do without well-trained teachers, neither can it afford to support an institution of learning that attracts so small a number of students. The present condition of things should not be permitted to continue, and I trust you will find some means to improve it.

RAILROADS.

At the last session of the legisiature the railroad laws of this state were materially and radically changed by two enactments,—one creating a railroad commission with novel and greatly enlarged powers, giving the board a general supervision of all the railroads in the state, with power to examine into all their affairs, and to regulate their trains, fares, freight, stations, and accommodations; the other, a general law authorizing the formation of railroad corporations for the construction of new roads, and also the union of existing roads by lease, sale or contract. No new road has been constructed under this law, but important unions of old roads have been effected. These consolidations have not, however, been in operation long enough to warrant a positive conclusion as to the results to the people of the state. So far as I can judge, the new policy is generally approved by the people, with a hope that it will put an end to the rivairies and controversies of our roads and relieve the legislature from the vexatious contests that have occupied so much time in former years.

INSURANCE.

During the year 1884 the losses by fire have been exceptionally large, and the insurance companies of other states have found it an unprofitable year. In this state we have but one stock company (the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company,) which has experienced its usual success, and found its business remunerative. Its capital stock has been increased to $500,000, and its net assets of unquestionable securities now exceed $1,000,000. Its success speaks well for New Hampshire enterprise. The policy of this state in regard to insurance seems to be safe and satisfactory, and confidence may be placed in all duly authorized companies.

SAVINGS-BANKS.

The report of the bank commissioners exhibits in detail the condition of the New Hampshire savings-banks. During the past year their deposits have increased from $42,091,596 to $43,826,123, making an increase during the year of $1,834,526. The whole number of depositors in 1884-'85 was 123,967, an increase during the year of 6,650.

Owing to unfortunate investments in its early history, the Portsmouth Trust & Guarantee Company last winter found its resources greatly impaired and for a short time suspended business. Fortunately, this bank was organized upon the guaranty plan, and the losses, which amounted to $74,000 and interest for twelve years, fell entirely upon the contributors of the guaranty fund, and the general depositors did not suffer. The fund has since been restored by an assessment upon the guarantors, and the bank has resumed business.

With this exception, all our banks have been able to meet promptly all their liabilities, and have merited the public confidence, which is attested by the large increase in their deposits.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion, gentlemen, having called attention to the more important subjects which it will be our official duty to consider, and having suggested the general principles which I believe should control our action, it only remains for me to express the hope and confidence that, trusting to the guidance of that Infinite Wisdom which led our fathers to lay broad and deep the foundations of this commonwealth, and to build up a government that we all love and venerate, we shall be enabled so to discharge our obligations as to justify the good opinion of those who called us to these honorable and responsible places in their service.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers in the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive nuisances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. Enchanting Prospect.

Dear little head with brown waves rippling over
Sweetest brown eyes that are under the sun,
Velvety lips that are fresh as the clover,
Ah! when I praise I can never have done!

For straightway I think of the chin with its dimple,
So cunning that it plays hide and seek in the snow,
And her voice like a brook with its apple and wimple,
And her cheek like a rose in its exquisite glow.

Her step is as light as the dewfall at even;
And her form, ah! so daintily airy and slight,
That she seems like a star-seraph wandering from Heaven
To the home that without her were darker than night.

As deftly her housewifely tasks she is plying,
A love-song's gay lilt to her rosy lip springs,
And in time to the measure white fingers are flying
O'er a thousand wise, womanly, delicate things.

O, bonny brown head! do you know that your shining
Makes all the world's light for my worshiping eye?
That around you each hope of my life is entwining,
As I patiently wait for your husband to die?

JESSIE'S PARLOR.

An orchard, the branches heavy with golden apples, here and there a ruddy "windfall," half-hidden in the long grass, and at the foot of one of the most richly-laden trees a young girl, half-asleep, with an ill-used book flung carelessly down, and indolent white arms thrown above her pretty dark head.

"Jessie!"

She made a sleepy little movement, indicative of annoyance at being interrupted in the middle of her siesta.

"Jessie, I say!"

Miss Jessie rose slowly and picked up her book. She was a tall, slight girl, of about eighteen years of age, with a rather pale face, and grey eyes, fringed with long black lashes. These eyes were her greatest charm. A little white gate divided the orchard from the garden, and Jessie passed through it with exasperating slowness.

"Was there ever such a girl!" thought her sister, her elder by twenty years, at least—the daughter of her father's first wife.

Caroline had loved her young stepmother, and when she died had tried to take a mother's place to the tiny, dark-eyed baby she left behind; but Jessie had proved a very troublesome charge.

"Well," said Jessie, interrogatively, looking at Caroline standing in the doorway, with her sleeves tucked up, and her stout arms covered with flour. "What is it, Caroline?"

"Come and move your rubbish out of the front room."

"What for?" asked Jessie, in undisguised astonishment.

"Because father's going to let it to a young fellow from London."

Jessie looked indignant. Her parlor, with the piano in it, to be let to some horrid man, and all her pretty belongings to be banished to her little bedroom. Oh! it was too bad.

"Carrie," she said, "how could you advise father to do such a thing? I never thought we should have to take in lodgers; I'd rather run away."

"Where to?" asked the rather matter-of-fact Caroline.

Jessie bit her lips, and went indoors to remove her books and needlework from the little parlor that had been regarded as her especial sanctum ever since she had entered her teens. It never occurred to Miss Jessie that money was rather scarce with her father just now, and that the lodger would bring grist to the mill. She regarded the whole thing as a conspiracy to make her uncomfortable.

They might have consulted her, she thought, forgetting that she never troubled herself in any way with the affairs of the household. How she wished she could have had her piano carried upstairs; but that was impossible. It was the chief ornament of the room, and her father, she knew, would not allow her to take it away.

"I shall hate him; I know I shall," she told herself, thinking of the lodger.

And for the first two or three days she kept carefully out of his way, and Mr. Leith remained unconscious of the fact that he was under the same roof with a pretty girl. But he made the discovery one afternoon. When wandering through the orchard, with his hands behind his back, he came suddenly upon a slight, girlish figure, in brown holland, a wide hat shading her eyes from the sun. Wonderful eyes they were—so large and dark, and utterly bewitching. She was gone like a flash; but her image lingered in Mr. Leith's memory. He was not a very talkative man; but he began to cultivate Caroline Maybrick's acquaintance, and soon found that the girl in the brown holland dress was her sister. He grew so friendly that Caroline ventured to ask him to take tea with them in the kitchen one afternoon. The farmer was quite willing; but Jessie objected most strongly, and threatened not to come in to tea at all.

"Besides," she said, "what does a gentleman want in a farmhouse kitchen?"

However, Mr. Leith seemed very much at home there, and delighted Caroline and her father by his bright flashes of wit. He did his best to please that afternoon; but was it only for the benefit of the farmer and his elder daughter, or did his eyes wander in the direction of Jessie's slim figure? He could not understand why it was that the girl always avoided him. If she had wished to arouse his interest she could not have devised a better way. Her reserve piqued his curiosity, and he found her pretty face coming between him and the fusty old pages of his books.

Once he went for a long walk, and returning home in the twilight, heard her at the piano, and paused to listen; but she caught sight of his figure outside the window, and the music ceased in an instant. When he entered the room he found it empty; but a little bow of ribbon lay on the carpet. Mr. Leith whistled, walked to the door, closed it carefully, and then picked up the ribbon bow with a shamefaced look, and actually kissed it. Then, with fingers that trembled in a most unaccountable way, he placed it in his pocket-book.

"Your sister is shy," he observed to Caroline, later on.

"It isn't that," responded Caroline, with a laugh; "but she hasn't got over being turned out of her room. It was hers, you know, before you came, and she hated the idea of father taking a lodger."

"Oh," said Mr. Leith, considerably enlightened, and next evening, as Jessie was eating an apple in the orchard, the enemy bore down on her before she could beat a retreat. "Miss Jessie," he said, taking off his hat, "you must not run away. I want to speak to you."

"What is it?" asked Jessie, coldly, throwing her apple over the hedge.

She had no longer any appetite for it.

"I want to apologise for having unconsciously taken possession of your little parlor. It makes me feel like an interloper."

"Who told you it was my parlor?" asked Jessie, trying to steel her heart against him; but thinking all the same, what a handsome man he was, with his blue eyes, and tawny beard.

"Never mind who told me," said Gerald Leith, with a smile. "I know I have unconsciously deprived you of your piano ever since I have been here, and I want you to forgive me."

"It is I who ought to ask your forgiveness," returned Jessie. "I have often stolen in to have an hour with my piano, when you have been out."

She smiled and colored as she spoke, unable to resist the winning sweetness of his voice and manner.

They stood watching the moon above the tree tops, talking pleasantly, until Caroline came to the door, and called her sister.

"Where on earth have you been, Jessie?" she asked.

"Talking to Mr. Leith," returned Jessie, as she followed her into the room.

"Wonders will never cease," exclaimed Caroline. "I thought you hated him; but there, I think he would talk any one over with that pleasant voice of his."

Jessie thought so too; but she did not give vent to her opinion in words. She was looking unusually well; a color became her, but it was not the rose flush upon her cheeks, that made her look so lovely. There was a change in her tonight, and her sister was vaguely conscious of it, as the girl stood looking down into the glowing fire in the kitchen grate.

"Our Jessie is growing a regular beauty," observed Caroline to her father, when her sister had gone up to bed.

"Handsome is as handsome does," returned Mr. Maybrick, puffing away at his pipe. Jessie's education had cost him no end of money, while the more homely Caroline had put pounds in his pocket.

But Mr. Maybrick had no eye for beauty. He was not like his lodger, who could get very little sleep for thinking of a pair of bright eyes and a slim girlish figure.

Next morning, as Mr. Leith sat at breakfast, he caught sight of Jessie talking to a stoutly-built, curly-headed young fellow; and his heart gave a jealous throb.

Who was that rustic she seemed so interested in? He could not be her sweetheart—surely a girl like Jessie would not throw herself away on such an awkward cub.

Mr. Leith tried to read his newspaper, and forgot the happy-looking couple in the garden; but it was of no use.

There they were, parading up and down in full view of his window, and now and then their voices were wafted to him on the breeze.

He felt he could stand it no longer, and slammed down the window in a rage. What was the use of coming to the country for quiet, if people would persist in making such a racket?

He took his hat, and went for a walk, and when he returned home, had the pleasure of seeing that rustic, through the kitchen window, dining with the family.

Mr. Leith closed the door of his room; but he could not shut out the sound of that fellow's noisy laughter.

"If he is a frequent guest, my stay here will not be of very long duration," he thought.

Presently, to his intense annoyance, he saw Jessie and the stranger out in the garden again, and after his own dinner had been served, he heard Miss Caroline calling them in to tea; and found that the young man's name was Bob—detestable name! Mr. Leith had never felt more miserable than he did that evening, and his life had not been devoid of trouble.

Mr. Leith was sitting in the dark, and presently heard voices outside the door.

"I am sure he is out, child," said Caroline. "The lamp is not lit; you can go in and play for a little while, and Mr. Leith will never be a bit the wiser."

He did not hear Jessie answer—her voice was not so loud; but the door opened, and she came into the room going straight over to the piano.

Mr. Leith held his breath, lying back in the arm-chair, while Jessie played softly in the darkness.

He could see the dim outline of her form, as she sat at the piano; for what little light there was fell full upon her. He was angry with her—most unreasonably angry, but he could not lose the chance of speaking to her alone.

"Miss Jessie," he said quietly.

Jessie gave a faint scream. He had frightened her so much, that she trembled like a leaf. She was going to run out of the room, when his voice arrested her movement.

"I shall be sorry that I revealed myself, if you are going to run away," he went on. "It is not often I have the chance of hearing you playing, Miss Jessie."

Jessie sat down at the piano, but she did not play. Her little brown hands were trembling too much. Mr. Leith rose, and stood by her side.

"I shall be going back to London, soon," he said, "and it will be pleasant to think of these few moments spent with you at the piano."

"You are going away soon," faltered Jessie, and something in her voice made poor Leith's heart beat more quickly.

"I saw you with that young fellow to-day," he said abruptly. "You seemed very happy."

"Bob and I are always like that," observed Jessie, her eyes beginning to sparkle, and a little smile quivering on her sweet lips. But George Leith could not see these signs of merriment.

"I hope you always will be," he said. "May I wish you every happiness?"

"You may if you like," said Jessie with an odd little break in her voice, for she was trying hard to smother her laughter.

"When is it to be?" asked Mr. Leith trying to speak lightly, but not succeeding very well.

"When is what to be?" asked Jessie with a little gasp.

"Your marriage, of course," returned Mr. Leith rather coldly, for he knew now that she was laughing at him.

"I think you are putting the cart before the horse," observed Jessie demurely.

"What do you mean?" he asked impatiently.

"I mean," said Jessie, suddenly growing dignified, "that I have no lover, so it is rather premature to talk of my marriage."

"Then that young man?"—began Mr. Leith.

"Is the affianced husband of my dearest friend." As she uttered these words Jessie rose from the piano to find herself clasped in the arms of her father's lodger.

"And to think," said Miss Maybrick afterwards, "that you should make all that fuss about Mr. Leith coming, and then marry him, after all! I was never so surprised in my life!"

"It is the best thing that could have happened to her," observed her father. "She never would have been worth anything as a farmer's wife;" and indeed this is true, but Jessie never wanted to be a farmer's wife, and is quite content with the destiny that has made her Mrs. George Leith.

The team which he drove was found in the river at Wells on Monday morning, the horse drowned and the wagon badly smashed. He was for years a successful sea captain, and bought a farm in Wells not long ago.

On the night of June 3d a man engaged in cleaning out a vault in Saco found the dead body of a female infant, evidently murdered by having a strip from the edge of a cotton sheet tied tightly around its neck.

Pastry Without Butter.

The American pie has been subjected to more unjust abuse from foreign writers than any other of our distinctive products, if we except the recent tirade against the American hog. And yet we cannot say that it has been altogether undeserved, because of the villanous compound, thick, hard and heavy, that is too often made to do duty as a "crust," and which by courtesy is called "pastry." Light, tender, flaky and digestible pie-crust and all kinds of pastry can be made most readily by the use of Royal Baking Powder without any butter, or with half the usual portion, if preferred, or with a small quantity of lard or other shortening as desired. Pie-crust thus made is much more wholesome and digestible, besides being more economical and easier prepared. In addition to saving all the butter if desired, one-third the flour is also dispensed with, as the crust is rolled that much thinner, the leavening qualities of the Royal Baking Powder swelling it to the requisite thickness. If droppings of lard be used the Royal Baking Powder removes any unpleasant taste, rendering the crust as short, sweet and pleasant as if made from the finest butter. Those who know the appetizing qualities of the genuine home-made American pie will rejoice that by the aid of Royal Baking Powder in the pastry it can be made quite as digestible as it is delicious.

SONS OF VETERANS.

The annual encampment of the New Hampshire Division, Sons of Veterans, will be held at Grand Army hall in this city at ten o'clock to-day.

Headquarters were established at the Webster house on Monday evening, and the Division Council convened there at eight o'clock for the performance of their duties.

The committee on credentials, consisting of Past Captain H. D. Soule of Camp No. 1, Manchester, and Capt. W. E. McPherson of Camp No. 3, Meredith, will be at G. A. R. hall at nine o'clock A. M. to-day to receive the credentials of delegates. Henry L. Richards Camp, No. 12, of this city, will detail members for duty as sergeant of the guard, corporal of the guard, and for guards, for duty during the encampment.

At one o'clock the visitors will embark on the steamer Mystic as guests of Henry L. Richards Camp, and proceed to Wood island, at the entrance to the harbor, where a clam-bake will be served.

BICYCLE NOTES.

The excellent roads and beautiful scenery about our city are attracting numerous bycycle clubs to visit us during the next few weeks.

The Massachusetts club, of Boston, will arrive here on their tour from Boston on Friday, the 19th inst., stopping that night at the Kearsarge house. This club has a membership of over 200, and they have just moved into their new club house, erected expressly for them at an expense of over $25,000.

The Charlestown club have arranged a long-distance run from Charlestown to this city and return within twenty-four hours, on the 27th inst.; they are to leave Charlestown at midnight, and expect to reach here at eight o'clock in the morning.

The Rockingham club of this city have extended an invitation to the New Hampshire Division, L. A. W., to visit Portsmouth and the beaches on the 4th of July, and the largest number of wheelmen ever seen here at one time will parade in the afternoon of that day.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

The Rockingham County Temperance Convention held in the Christian church at Stratham on the 3d inst., was a good meeting. Rev. Dr. Pike presided, and Rev. Mr. Fiske of South Newmarket delivered the address of the morning; Rev. Dr. Stearns of Epping and Rev. Mr. Fitts also made interesting remarks. Dinner was served in the town hall, after which Mrs. Jefferson, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Fitts and other ladies made brief addresses of a stirring character. Mr. A. A. Towle and Miss Abbie McIntyre of Exeter, addressed the children. A discussion followed in relation to the enforcement of our prohibitory law by Revs. Messrs. Stearns, Fitts, Savory of Stratham, and others. A resolution in endorsement of the temperance work of Senator Henry W. Blair, originally passed by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, was unanimously passed.

PORTSMOUTH MEN OUT WEST.

Under the heading "A New Comer: a Sunday paper to be established in Minneapolis," the Daily Evening Journal of Minneapolis, Minn., of date June 4th, says:

A company has been formed for the publication of a Sunday morning newspaper in Minneapolis, and the first issue will appear one week from Sunday next. It will be an eight-page paper, seven columns to the page, and will be conducted somewhat upon the style of the New York Morning Journal. Its name is to be the Minneapolis Mercury; it will be sold for five cents a copy, and of the first edition 10,000 copies will be published. It is intended that it shall be of typographical appearance unexcelled, which will be filled with entertaining special articles, telegraphic news of Saturday night, and the latest city and lake events. It will also be partially illustrated. The company is composed of Edwin Fernald, late of the St. Louis Chronicle; Albert E. Wood, late of the New York Morning Journal; Geo. W. Marston, also of New York, and W. F. Fernald, of Old Orchard, Me. Mr. Marston will be editor, Mr. Wood managing editor, E. Fernald business manager, and W. F. Fernald treasurer. The capital stock of the paper is to be $20,000, and it will be published from an office on Fourth street, adjoining the Journal's quarters. The gentlemen interested in the enterprise have ample experience in newspaper business, and intend to make the Mercury thoroughly fill a special field here.

With Mr. W. F. Fernald we are not acquainted; but the other three gentlemen named we know well, and together they make a very much stronger team than most newspaper enterprises are started with. We have strong faith in the success of their venture, and if they have but half the good fortune we wish them the regular weekly issue of the Minneapolis Mercury will soon exceed a million copies.

MARITIME NOTES.

A large number of lumber laden vessels, from the eastward and bound west, were in the lower harbor Monday morning, and with clearing weather sailed. The schooner Gulnare, Goodwin, from York with hay for Rockport, Mass., put into the lower harbor Sunday evening; the Karen Happuch, of York, Lowe master, with hay for Boston, was also in the lower harbor Monday morning; and both sailed with the fleet. The schooner Eddie H. Weeks, Capt. Brad. Varrell of York, was in the lower harbor on Monday waiting for bait from the weir.

The schooner Lady of the Ocean, with 173 tons of coal, and the Emma McAdam with 251 tons, both from Port Johnson, N. J., to E. F. Sise & Co., arrived at this port on Monday, the 8th inst. The schooner Nightingale, from Hoboken for South Newmarket, and the John Lenthall, from New York for Exeter, both with coal, also arrived on the 8th, and six or seven other vessels with coal, lime, etc. Among the departures on the same date were the schooners Lillie, Triton, Hattie Lewis and Estella, with bricks for Boston.

The Height of Ingratitude.

A representative of the legal fraternity in this city, was called upon the other day by a person of scanty means, for papers with which to prosecute some disturber of his peace. The lawyer who, by the way, was no other than the "genial counsel for the defense" in most cases before the police court in this city, made out the necessary papers for the caller aforesaid. We have said that the caller was a person of scanty means. This was shown not only by the very look of the man, his weather beaten hat and somewhat dilapidated clothing, but by his assertion, when the lawyer had completed his work, that he had no money. The lawyer was not highly elated over this result of his labor, but as the paper was as worthless to him and more so than before it was written, he gave it to the man and turned his attention to other work, while the client bowing and scraping passed out. A few moments later the lawyer had occasion to go out. He looked for his hat but could find nothing but an old greasy one, once worthy of the name of a hat, which he at once recognized as that worn into the room by his unprofitable client. The spirit of anger at once got the upper hands of the usually calm and peaceful disposition of the lawyer, and it is safe to say that the client was fortunate in being out of his reach. The fellow was rather ungrateful, we do think.—Times.

Mr. Benjamin M. Bailey has this week gone to lake Winnipesaukie to do some quite extensive jobs of caulking, as he has annually done for many years past.

The messenger of the custom house on Saturday evening summarily arrested a driver of a team for mercilessly beating his horse in front of the government building in presence of a large crowd, and conveyed him to the police station. Good.

An item has been published in local papers to the effect than an old lady who recently died at Faith Home left that deserving institution the sum of $800. It is true that when she entered the home, about three years ago, she brought in that amount; but as she was suffering with a painful disease all the time she was there, her doctors' bills, with the funeral expenses and purchase of a lot in the cemetery, used up the whole amount. We make this correction lest the erroneous statement might give some of our charitable citizens a false impression, and lead them to withhold their usual contributions from the institution. There are now thirteen old ladies in the home; and we assume to say, without being in any way authorized, that charity in that direction will not be superfluous.

The receipts of lobsters on Monday were light, but George W. Randall & Son received eighty-five. One hundred and fifty shad and one salmon were also brought up to them from the Mitchell weir at Kittery Point; salmon were selling on Monday at thirty cents per pound.

It is said that Charles Foss, alias D. T. Sherburn, who murdered Philip D. Slocum in New Bedford, Mass., June 6th, and then killed himself, belongs in Epping. He was about thirty-five years old, and had sailed several voyages from New Bedford, whaling. He was rum-crazed when he committed the crime.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Maryland, U.S.A.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some good medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost the opposite of each other. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all disease arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

FITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poison, and is a preventive of fever and ague and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a safe and reliable remedy for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from the ills peculiar to their sex the Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

SULPHUR BITTERS

THE GREAT

German Remedy.

TRUTHS FOR THE SICK.

For those deathly bilious Spells, depend on SULPHUR BITTERS, it will cure you.

Ladies in delicate health, who are all run down, should use SULPHUR BITTERS.

The Giant Dyspepsia is cured by using SULPHUR BITTERS.

$1,000 will be paid for a case where SULPHUR BITTERS will not assist or cure. It never fails.

Operatives who are closely confined in the mills and workshops; Clerks, who do not procure sufficient exercise, and all who are confined in doors, should use SULPHUR BITTERS. They will not then be weak and sickly.

Cleanse the vitiated blood when you see its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Blotches, and Sores. Rely on SULPHUR BITTERS and health will follow.

General Debility needs a gentle tonic. Use SULPHUR BITTERS, and you will not be troubled.

SULPHUR BITTERS will cure Liver Complaint. Don't be discouraged; it will cure you.

Don't be without a bottle. Try it; you will not regret it.

SULPHUR BITTERS will build you up and make you strong and healthy.

"Rough on Rats" clears them out, also beetles, ants, insects, rats and mice, 15 and 25c. boxes.

The consul general at Montreal, Can., has reported to the department of state at Washington that the glanders has assumed alarming proportions among the horses of that city. It is important that this fact should be widely known, as large numbers of horses are shipped to the United States from Canada every week.

SICK HEADACHE. — Thousands who have suffered intensely with headache say that Hood's Sarsaparilla has completely cured them. One gentleman thus relieved, writes: "Hood's Sarsaparilla is worth its weight in gold." Reader, if you are a sufferer with sick headache, give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial. It will do you positive good. Made by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists. 100 Doses One Dollar.

Although officially denied, the story is repeated that there have occurred several deaths from cholera in Madrid, Spain.

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

The London Telegraph of June 8th says there is no foundation whatever for the report of the Ameer's death.

The effects after taking Adamson's Botanic Balsam are a soothing and controlling influence over any cough or cold, promoting rest, allaying the tickling sensation in the throat, and causing a healthy expectoration.

At Eldora, Iowa, June 5th, Fin and Mans Rainsburger were taken from jail and shot by a mob. They were brothers of two Rainsburgers now in jail for murdering Johnson, and were arrested for attempting to murder Dr. Underwood, who was instrumental in hunting down their brothers. It is likely the whole family of desperadoes will be wiped out before the lynchers go out of business.

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressings. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

At Barrie, Ont., on the night of June 5th, Mrs. J. Wonch and her four children were burned to death, and Mr. Wonch terribly injured, by the destruction of their house.

I have been very much benefitted by a 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. When I began using it my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since to amount to anything. Please send me two more bottles.—John H. Summers, Stepney, Conn.

Yee Fang, a Chinaman indicted for a murderous assault on one of his countrymen in Boston, hung himself in jail on Saturday.

A Letter of Thanks.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham; Very dear Madam: My wife Arie A. Green has suffered with a displacement which caused her unknown pains till I had almost given up all hopes of finding any relief for her. But the Guiding Spirit referred me to your Vegetable Compound. I went twelve miles to purchase a bottle and the first two doses gave her immediate relief, and after the use of the first bottle she declared herself a new person, two bottles entirely cured her. Your medicine is invaluable to me. It was indeed a messenger of peace in my house, it cured my wife, and God knows I am the happiest man alive to-day. Words cannot express our feelings towards you.

Geo. W. Green, Campti, La.

Martha Wilson, colored, one of the principal witnesses in the case Sarah Althea Hill vs. Ex-Senator Sharon, confesses that she committed perjury in her former evidence.

WETHERELL'S SARSAPARILLA

Is chemically combined with Iodide Potassium, and is a preparation of superior worth for invigorating the system, giving tone and vigor to the whole body.

DYSPEPSIA AND BILIOUS HEADACHE yield readily to the wonderful action of this remedy. If it were possible to place before you the written testimonials of its wonderful cures, the most skeptical would be convinced. The remarkable success of this medicine at home gives abundant proof that it is far superior to any other remedy.

REAL MEDICINE.

Wetherell's Sarsaparilla contains in one bottle more real medicine than any other preparation ever offered to the public. Prepared by

A. S. WETHERELL, Druggist and Chemist, EXETER, N. H.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 39 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No owner of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or any brook, creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Connecticut's Kicking Horses.

In a big stable in Voluntown, in which are thirty horses, is the most famous kicking horse in the State. She is not, writes a Norwich, Conn., correspondent to the New York Sun, like ordinary horses that kick, but she has a talent for unique and finished kicking. Her owner keeps her because she is an equine curiosity. She kicks continually, and when there is no live thing to kick at, the neighbors say, she stays up nights paring off the top of the stall with her heels. One evening a few days ago, a Norwich-trout hunter, in prowling about the stable, unconsciously sauntered up toward the kicker to get a nearer view of a glass frame, over the stall, in which was a brown-paper placard, bearing the single word, in black ink, "Dangerous." He had just mastered the word when there was a couple of sharp reports, and a small splinter from the top board of the stall fell at his feet.

"Hi, there!" yelled a hostler, who was rubbing down a pair of team horses, "if you don't want to be kicked out of the town you'd better come away from that stall. That's the kicking horse."

"What! does she kick?" innocently inquired the visitor, as another explosion followed, which lowered the stall another sixteenth of an inch.

"Kick! waal—ruther! She kicks everything and everybody, and all the the time."

"But how do you take care of her, then? Does she kick you?"

"Waal, not so much. She don't kick me oftener than four or five times a week; but she can spot a stranger every time. She's a sly one, though. Just look at her now!"

The mare had turned her arched neck, and her full, liquid eye, which shone a red violet in the glare of the stable lantern, beamed with benevolence, and a coaxing invitation to come up nearer.

"You orter seen her kick a feller from the village that come in here drunk the other night," remarked the hostler. "I told him to keep away, but he 'lowed he warn't afraid o' no kickin' horse, and he walked up to the stall and sez, sez he, 'Soh! Sal! what's eatin' on ye?' Just then she fetched him one. She kicked him clean across the floor, eighteen foot, without touching ground, and landed him on the back of a cow in the opposite stall; and then the cow kicked him half way back. You see the cow warn't nigh so good a kicker as the mare. Waal, that feller was plumb-full when the horse lifted him, but when he got back from the cow he was the soberest man you ever see. He didn't say a word, but slid out of the stable quiet and went home. Next night he was in here again. He came in kind o' softly, and sneaked up where I was fixin' up the beddin' for a stall, and said in a whisper: 'Is that ar' spile-critter here to-night?' 'If you mean that ar' kickin' hoss,' says I, 'you kin jest bet she is.' 'Hoss,' says he; that ain't no hoss—that's a mule,' them things in the army,' says he. 'It war jest afore a battle, and she kicked me so fur to the rear that it took me two days to walk back.' They war goin' to court-martial me; but the same mule got loose the night afore the trial was to come off, and kicked down the guard tent, and spiked two cannon with her heels. After that they believed my story.'"

The Norwich man slept in a neighboring hotel that night, and whenever he awoke, the distant subterranean thuds that were borne through the moonlight to his ear gave token that the kicking horse was keeping herself in practice.

Lord Wolseley's Bravery.

The 90th was one of the regiments destined for China which Lord Canning's swift steamers contrived to catch en route, and to divert to India to aid in the quelling of the great mutiny that had broken out with so fell an unexpectedness. The gallant "Perthshine Greybreeks" were included in the column which Sir Colin Campbell led from Cawnpore to the second relief of Lucknow. From the Dilkooshа Sir Colin had sent the "Black Watch" down the slope on the Martiniere. The 93rd and the Sikhs had made a ghastly shambles of the once beautiful Secunderabagh garden. Peel's men, of the "Shannon" were slogging with their ship's guns into the massive structure of the Shah Nujeef, preparatory to carrying it by escalade out of the branches of a tree which grew against the walls of the shrine. Wolseley, with his two companies of the 90th, was sent to the left to carry the "Mess House." The way to its compound wall was across the open. Wolseley's fellows took with them a couple of light guns. So fierce was the Sepoy fire that, to use Wolseley's own quaint colloquialism, "the bullets dropped off the tires of the wheels like peas off a drum." The "Mess House" was carried with a rush. Wolseley with his own hand, in the midst of a hailstorm of bullets, pulling down the flag of the mutineers from the staff in its roof and planting in its place the British banner which he carried. Beyond the "Mess House" lay the palace known as the "Motee Mahal," the last rebel post separating the relieving force from their environed fellow country-folk. Wolseley led his detachment forward to the assault of the "Motee Mahal," which in its turn was taken and cleared after hard fighting and severe loss. This operation consummated the relief. Between the "Motee Mahal" and the steam-engine post, by only Mr. Martin's house, which the rebels had evacuated, Young Moorsom ran the gauntlet, and the connection was established. It was Wolseley who greeted the avant courier of the besieged. Wolseley took part in the hard fighting which brought about the final reduction of Lucknow, and in the energetic marching and fighting all over Oude, whereby the late Sir Hope Grant contributed so greatly to the stamping out of the great revolt, on the final extinguishment of which Wolseley found himself a brevet lieutenant-colonel at the age of twenty-six. Quick promotion certainly, from ensign to lieutenant-colonel in eight years; but every step in rank had been honestly won at the point of the sword.—Archibald Forbes, in English Ill. Magazine.

A True Journalist.

It was the new reporter who had come in, covered with perspiration and dust, as the last form went down to the press.

"Did it take you all day to do that park water-works detail?" snarled the city editor.

"S-s-sh! speak low," whispered the new "special" in the C. E.'s ear. "Got on to an AI suicide out on the park—defalcation, probably."

"Great Cæsar! and we've gone to press," gasped the editor. "The afternoon papers will get a beat on us tomorrow."

"Not much!" chuckled the reporter. "I knew I couldn't get here in time for the last edition, so I just queered the find."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, dragged the body into the bushes, and covered it up with grass and things. A bloodhound couldn't find it. To-morrow we develop the claim, and give 'em a two-column sensation."

With tears in his eyes, the city editor rose and fell upon his subordinate's neck.

"You are an honor to your profession," he sobbed. "I'll see that your salary is increased $2 a month. I will, by jingo!"—San Franciscan.

Good Sense.

Now that General Grant is getting better his doctors will be laughed at the world over. But the laugh is foolish, for no doctor of any merit pretends to know all about diseases. He simply claims to know something, and admits cheerfully that the known is small compared with the unknown. The Garfield case was a bad one because, there, the surgeons made a weak, imperfect diagnosis, and failed to learn what was the course and place of the bullet. They mistook the entire cavity of the bowels for the opening made by the ball. And yet some doctors resemble some lawyers, some preachers, some farmers, and some people in all pursuits in the matter of having no sense. Good sense is not universal in any profession. The dentist who recently killed a lady by chloroform would not have been brilliant in any profession which implied trust. As a railway engineer, as a switchman, as a sea captain, as a sentinel, as a nurse by a sick-bed, as a compounding druggist, as the keeper of a lighthouse, he would have been as great a failure as he has suddenly become as a medico-dentist. Carelessness and recklessness are the unfortunate qualities of not a few minds.—David Swing, in The Current.

Science on a Side Hill.

There is a town in Massachusetts where Joseph Cook, the great untamed pulpit puglist of Boston, is no longer worshiped. As the natives tell the story, Mr. Cook lost his prestige somewhat after this fashion: "You know we got up a lyceum two or three years ago," explained one of the local grandees to me over lunch at the Astor house a day or two ago. "We kind o' guessed we'd get Joe Cook to lecture. The democrats had carried the town that fall, and the faith of a good many church members was a-wavering, and we thought Joe Cook would brace 'em up if anybody could; so Col. Bob Jones—everybody called him 'Colonel,' though none of us knew precisely why, —he was chairman of the lyceum board, made the arrangement with Mr. Cook and entertained him when he came to town. He wanted to do the handsome thing, so he asked Joseph, careless like, if he wouldn't like to take a drive. Mr. Cook said nothing would please him better, provided the horse was spirited. The colonel chuckled and went off to his barn. While he was gone we tried to argue Mr. Cook out of his ride behind the colonel's horse. We didn't know how well Mrs. Cook was provided for. Somebody had given the colonel that horse a few months before and it had just pre-empted the old man's heart. 'Bout three times a week the beast would run away. We used to see it galloping into town by all the roads; it wasn't particular. Sometimes it brought along as much of the wagon as the fore wheels; sometimes it didn't. It depended a good deal where the animal bolted. Well, Col. Bob brought the turnout round, and Mr. Cook and he got in and drove off. They got along all right until they thought they'd take a short cut across a side-hill lot to another road at the bottom of the hill. Just as they began to go down the slope the breeching broke.

"'Mr. Cook,' said the colonel magnilouently, 'you observe that the necessary part of the domestic economy of the harness has become disintegrated. Science teaches us that down this hill we shall keep going faster and faster, and I know that if this vehicle gets to hitting that colt he'll bolt, and if he does all the science in the world can't tell what county they'll find our remains in. I'll just keep him going a little faster than the wagon.' Mr. Cook kind o' grasped the seat and then he gasped: 'Colonel, you observe our trouble is that we are descending the hill. Now, in case we should describe a semi-circle in our course we would, then, sh, face up the hill, and the force of gravity would then be entirely exerted upon the traces, and our difficulty would cease. I suggest that we describe an arc of a circle.' The colt by that time was going at full speed and the wagon was bumping after him. Col. Bob had faith in Joe Cook's science, and the stone wall wasn't but a few rods ahead.

"'Do you advise it, Mr. Cook?' he asked. The wagon gave a vicious lurch, and 'Jehosophat! Yes!' shrieked the Boston man. That was enough. The colonel pulled hard on one rein, and the colt tried its level best to wheel right around. Some folks in the next lot came over and picked up Mr. Cook and the colonel. Joseph didn't lecture that night. 'Lecture?' the colonel said when he came out on crutches. 'Why, gentlemen, what do you think a man's science is worth when it tells him to turn a runaway colt around on a side hill? Science! Why, that cost me a round $198, saying not a word about the time I've been in bed.'"—N. Y. Times.

Odd Ways of Making a Living.

There are many odd ways of earning a livelihood in a great city like New York, and it is surprising to see how many persons there are who readily adapt themselves to new occupations. Type-writing, for instance, was unknown a few years ago, and now there are thousands who support themselves by it. It has supplied a new and wide field for the employment of women, and has come into most universal use for legal documents. The invention of the telephone has given employment to thousands in the construction of the apparatus and the attendance at telephone offices, and the number thus employed already rivals the number engaged in telegraphing.

The introduction of electric lighting has given employment to many persons, as has also the comparatively recent use of refined coal-oil all over the world for both lighting and heating. It is only a few years since the invention of the district messenger service and the employment of street bootblacks gave employment to an army of boys.

The successful manufacture of playing-cards, which were largely made abroad until within a few years, recently gave employment to many American workmen. The canned-goods industry has grown up since the war, and offers an entirely new occupation.

Photo-lithography and many other quick processes of picture-printing have furnished employment to many within a few years. There is an immense business in ready-made clothing for women and children that is of comparatively recent growth.

There are, at a rough calculation, about fifty men in the United States who make their living by hardening steel for various mechanical purposes. There are three or four who earn a living by demagnetizing watches, and perhaps about as many who adjust compasses on iron ships. There is an old and somewhat intricate occupation in the insurance business known as the adjustment of averages, and the number of men engaged in it in a great city may almost be counted on one's fingers.

There are many men who earn a living by tasting various articles of food or judging of them by their appearance. There are experts in handwriting, in chemistry, in mechanics, and all sorts of things, who turn up in the courts and make litigation costly.

Civilization tends to a division of labor, so that in every profession there are men who get a reputation for some particular branch. Thus there are acknowledged specialists in law, who have almost a monopoly of a certain class of cases. Some lawyers know all about patents, and others all about admiralty; others all about landlords and tenants; others all about criminal law, and so on. In the same way the doctors take each some portion of the human body as a special study, so that the old family doctor, who undertook to doctor all sorts of diseases, is comparatively obsolete in crowded communities.

This division of labor leads to the establishment in great cities of many queer stores, or depots of supply for all sorts of odd things, of which the general public knows little or nothing. There are, for instance, depots for the supply of peculiar food for the various nationalities which center in the great city. The Chinaman, the Italians, the Germans, and the Scotchmen all know where they can go and buy things that are specially suited only to their own taste.

A craze like roller-skating gives employment to many persons. American roller-skates are now known all over the world. There is an American roller-skating rink in India. The progress of mechanical inventions, while it throws many persons out of employment, also furnishes new occupations to many, and does away with the apprehension that the machine may supplant the man.—N. Y. Sun.

The famous "Codex Argenteus," the four gospels translated by Bishop Ulphilas, is preserved in the University of Upsala. It is written on 182 leaves of parchment in letters of silver on a ground of faded purple. It is kept in a glass case and under lock and key. It dates back to the second half of the fourth century, and, besides being of value to the religious world, it gives the secular world all the knowledge it now possesses of the early Gothic, the parent of all the Germanic tongues.

Barrios' widow has seven children and $8,000,000.

Is It Really Consumption?

Many a case supposed to be radical lung disease is really one of liver complaint and indigestion, but, unless that diseased liver can be restored to healthy action, it will so clog the lungs with corrupting matter as to bring on their speedy decay, and then indeed we have consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, in its worst form. Nothing can be more happily calculated to nip this danger in the bud than is Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By druggists.

The U. S. S. Alliance arrived at Key West on the 7th inst. from Aspinwall, and on the same day Commander Lewis Clark, her commander, died, having had several hemorrhages on the passage. He was a native of Connecticut, entered the navy in 1861, and was a brave and efficient officer.

Progress toward placing telegraph wires underground in cities is slow, but it seems to be in the right direction. Washington affords the latest example of relief from the pole nuisance, the court having ordered the removal of these unsightly obstructions, thereby compelling burial of the wires.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eodlaug,25

Portsmouth Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1885.

☞ Copies of the GAZETTE and of the DAILY CHRONICLE can be had of MOSES BROTHERS, at their Newspaper Store in Congress Block.

The Gladstone Administration Defeated.

In the British house of commons, on the evening of June 8th, the government was defeated on the second reading of the budget, which was rejected by a vote of 264 to 252. The increase of the taxes on beer and spirits led to this result.

Mr. Gladstone, —the weakest premier England has produced in modern times, and seeming all the weaker from having followed the strong D'Israeli, —on the 9th called upon the queen and tendered his resignation.

Ex-Gov. Hale's Failure.

Ex- Gov. Hale is reported as suffering from nervous prostration, but says he hopes to pay dollar for dollar. The South Keene Chair Co. will continue to operate its works, at least until the stock on hand is exhausted. A Keene despatch of the 8th says: 'Several of the largest creditors have suggested that an assignment be made by all the creditors of the assets into the hands of one or more trustees, and time given the ex-governor to dispose of the same without sacrifice, believing that a sufficient sum would be realized to pay his indebtedness in full and leave quite a surplus for Mr. Hale."

Col. Thomas F. Cheney of Ashland, pension agent of the United States at Concord, and formerly for many years division superintendent of the New England railway mail service, is reported to have lost all his property by Ex-Gov. Hale's failure. Hon. Henry W. Blair is said to also be a loser, to the amount of $2700.

Starving to Death.

It is reported that many hundreds of families in Jackson county, West Virginia, are on the verge of starvation; nearly the entire population are suffering, over 300 families in New Kentuck alone being absolutely destitute. An urgent appeal is made for aid, which must be immediate to be effective.

On receiving the intelligence of Mr. Herman F. Straw's appointment as mechanical agent of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co., Col. Livermore at once vacated the office, and has already resumed the practice of the law, though as soon as his resignation was announced he received two very flattering offers for positions of responsibility elsewhere. The friends of Mr. Straw have great confidence in his ability to properly fill the new position, to which they are delighted to see him called.

Peter Deshon, a French Canadian, is held in $1000 to answer a charge of stealing $290 or thereabouts from Terry O'Hare of Portland, at Old Orchard. O'Hare is a peddler, and he and Deshon were on a spree together when he was robbed.

The summer session of the Boston Art School will be held at Kittery Point, with headquarters at the Pepperell house, the term beginning June 15th.

Oren Bragdon of this city has bought of Sarah B. Garland of Parsonsfield the "Eri N. Scales farm" in that town for $675.

The Aldine Publishing Co. was organized in Kittery last month, the certificate being filed May 28th. The company propose to carry on a general publishing business, on a capital stock of $425,000, of which $1500 is paid in; the par value of shares is $100; and Charles C. Brown of Malden, Mass., Charles E. Cunningham of New York city, and Joseph Knight of Troy, N. Y., have taken five shares each. Joseph Knight was chosen president, and C. E. Brown treasurer.

The following are among the real estate transfers in York county recently left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Eliot—William H. Rhodes to James H. Coleman, lot of land for $150. York—Alvah Trafton to Johnson B. Moulton, two acres of land for $50. South Berwick—Abial Bayles of South Berwick to Horatio N. Lowell of Rollinsford, N. H., land and buildings in South Berwick for $1500. North Berwick—Augusta S. Lindsey to Sarah J. Hanson, real estate for $2,400; David J. Douglass to George Estes, real estate for $450. Wells—Joseph G. Storer to Lamont A. Stevens, real estate for $1; Mary J. Brock of California to Simeon B. Hamilton of Wells, real estate in Wells for $100; Samuel S. Littlefield to Edward H. Littlefield, real estate for $500; Daniel W. Littlefield of Wells to Stephen W. Gowan of Standish, real estate in Wells for $1500; Charles A. Weare to George A. Weare, real estate for $400; David W. Wentworth of Somersworth, N. H., to Melissa J. Wentworth of same place, land and buildings in Wells for $60.

Caleb B. Lord, Esq., a member of the York county bar and for nine years clerk of the courts of York county, is dangerously ill at his residence in Alfred, Me.

Teddy Holland and Nahum Morrison were sailing a boat on Saco river on the 6th inst., when a gust of wind struck the boat, capsizing it. Morrison was caught in the rigging and held under water until drowned, his companion being unable to assist him.

The Rising Generation.

It is the opinion of a leadiug medical journal that it is time mothers should know how seriously the health of children is imperilled by the use of preparations containing morphia and opium, and given for the cure of colds and coughs. The chemist of the Brooklyn Board of Health, Otto Grothe, Ph. D., a graduate of the University of Kiel, Germany, certifies officially that a harmless and yet effective article for such complaints has come to his notice. He refers to Red Star Cough Cure, which he found purely vegetable.

John Roche, sixteen years old, was shot dead at Niagara Falls on the 6th inst. by a companion of the same age named Charles Barge. The gun with which the shooting was done had been left in a barn to shoot rats, and Barge didn't know it was loaded.

A Pure Article of Whiskey is to be obtained in the G. O. Taylor Old Bourbon, and at a reasonable price. See that the proprietors' firm name is over each cork—Chester H. Graves & Sons. To be had of druggists and grocers.

A bare-knuckle prize-fight between J. Donnelly and J. Murphy, local pugilists, took place at Pittsburg, Pa., June 6th, in a barn. Sixteen rounds were fought, when Murphy was knocked out. The prize was the hand of a "young lady," who witnessed the fight.

I was most dead with heart difficulty, can now do a good day's work, and sincerely recommend Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator as the remedy.—Geo. Gladding, Hartsgrove, O. $1.00 per bottle at your drug store. Free pamphlet of F. E. Ingalls, Cambridge, Mass.

Herbert Walker, aged twenty-one years, of Oldtown, Me., was drowned Friday night, the 5th inst., falling from a boat while in a fit. The body was recovered.

A Weak Back, with a weary, aching lameness over the hips, is a sign of diseased kidneys. Use the best kidney curative known, which is Burdock Blood Bitters.

The capstone of the Washington monument has been damaged by lightning, four fragments being knocked off. To repair the damage will require the resetting of several stones.

A Letter of Thanks.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham; Very dear Madam: My wife Arie A. Green has suffered with a displacement which caused her unknown pains till I had almost given up all hopes of finding any relief for her. But the Guiding Spirit referred me to your Vegetable Compound. I went twelve miles to purchase a bottle and the first two doses gave her immediate relief, and after the use of the first bottle she declared herself a new person, two bottles entirely cured her. Your medicine is invaluable to me. It was indeed a messenger of peace in my house, it cured my wife, and God knows I am the happiest man alive to-day. Words cannot express our feelings towards you.
Geo. W. Green, Campti, La.

A Card.

Is it a Pleasure to Attack Charity?

It is the misfortune of every successful undertaking, that it draws out attacks of envious persons everywhere. Thus The Louisiana state Lottery gives a million of dollars to support the noble Charity Hospital at New Orleans. It gives any one a chance to get $150.0 0 for $10, by the Extraordinary Grand Drawing on Tuesday, June 16. It is fair, sure and honestly supervised in its entire conduct, by Gen'ls G. T. Beauregard of La., and Jubal A. Early of Va. Over $22,000 are distributed and one-tenth of a ticket can be had for $1. All information can be had on application to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La.

Delegates to commander-in-chief, H. E. Webster of Manchester, H. S. Harris of Plymouth; alternates, M. Crowley of Portsmouth, M. C. Morse of Hampstead.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, June 9th.

George Mates, a boy, was brought before the court for stealing flowers from a garden on Austin street. The charge was proved, but the lady whose premises were invaded desiring only to put a stop to the depredations of the flower thieves, the boy was allowed to go on his promise to steal no more, the case being placed on file to be called up should he trespass again. The magistrate intimated that more vigor would be used in any subsequent case that might come before him.

PORTSMOUTH ON THE COMMITTEES.

The standing committees of the legislature were announced on the evening of the 8th inst. by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house. Among the assignments are the following: Goodrich, of the Portsmouth senatorial district, to the committees on finance, on claims, and on state prison and industrial school; Hatch of Greenland, (Newmarket senatorial district,) on revision of laws, on education, on incorporations, (chairman,) and on asylum for the insane.

The Portsmouth representatives are on committees as follows: Urch, on banks, on fisheries and game; Winn, on bills on second reading; Magraw, on division of towns; Kimball, on finance, (chairman;) Ward, on mileage; Stavers, on railroads; Cronin, on retrenchment and reform; Sise, on revision of statutes.

The following were the committee assignments of representatives from other towns in this vicinity. Towle of South Hampton, finance; Morgan of Newmarket, fisheries and game; Moulton of North Hampton, incorporations; Simpson of South Newmarket, industrial school; Flynn of Newcastle, mileage; Scammon of Stratham and Brackett of Greenland, military affairs; Cole of Hampton, retrenchment and reform; Sanborn of Hampton Falls, roads, bridges and canals; Wiggin of Newmarket, state prison.

Stevens of Concord is chairman of the senate judiciary committee, Bingham of Littleton on revision of the laws, Davis of Hopkinton on finance, and Davis of Chesterfield on military affairs. In the house, Marston of Exeter is chairman of the judiciary committee, and Moore of Manchester on fisheries and game.

NATURAL HISTORY.

A swarm of bees alighted on Thursday morning last on a limb of a small tree at the corner of State and Chestnut streets, in front of the residence of Dr. Parsons. To the town-bred passers-by the sight was novel, this bee gathering.

All through the night and during the rain of Friday the little busy bees improved the shining hours by coddling as close as possible, the outsiders receiving the drip of the heavy northeaster. In the evening on Friday Mr. Oliver H. Locke, a resident of South street, appeared upon the scene, prepared with protection against stings, to scrape off the honey-builders into a sack, and after securing most of the swarm, took them to his home.

The limb was well surrounded by the bees, and was the point of observation all day, the passers-by being far more interested in the bees than in guessing how the swell windows over the entrances of the Rockingham will look when completed, or wondering why the ancient Hams did not originally construct a third story on each of the houses at the corner of Middle and State streets, as is now being done by the present owner, Mr. B. F. Webster.

Two pairs of pigeons let out for exercise from Mr. Thaddeus C. Locke' saviary on Water street a few days since, deserted their families of squabs, and did not so much as return with an olive leaf, but took up their abode elsewhere. Two pairs of his pigeons have recently each hatched out broods of three young birds, which is very unusual for pigeons to do, two being the regulation number in a brood.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Adam Bowlby, which arrived on the 8th inst. from Eddyville, brought 550 casks of cement, and the S. A. Rudolph, from Philadelphia, 321 tons of coal, to J. Albert Walker. The latter proceeded to Dover to discharge.

The sloop Stephen Orr, Capt. Sewall Aderton, which has just discharged a cargo at Portland, is expected to arrive here to load with bricks for Boston.

IN MEMORIAM--DEACON CHARLES DUNCAN.

Whereas, Death, the fell destroyer of the human race, has removed from church and society the aged and beloved disciple of Christian faith, Deacon Charles Duncan; and

Whereas, This true and tried man of God is affectionately remembered as the first superintendent of our Sunday school: therefore

Resolved, That while we recognize the hand of God in the removal of our brother, and kiss the rod that has thus afflicted us, we yet rejoice in the assurances we have that he has only preceded us to the land of our expectation, the fulfilment of our hopes, "the better country that is an heavenly."

We believe him to have been wise in his counsels, deliberate and correct in his judgments, and strong in his attachment to Christian truth; consistent and fervent in his piety; and that his life as a whole stands out so beautiful and fruit-shedding, as to be worthy of our emulation.

His name will remain with us among the precious memories of the past. His work is done, and well done. He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him.

Resolved, That we tender to our beloved superintendent Edwin A. Duncan—son of the deceased—and his family, our sincere sympathy in this great affliction, following so soon the departure of a loving, Christian mother; and pray the God of all grace to comfort their hearts. And we also desire to assure the sons and daughters of the deceased, and the church and society of which the deceased was a worthy and honored member, our appreciation of their loss, and to express our sympathy with them in their bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the relatives of the deceased, the clerk of the Congregational church at Kittery Point, and also furnished the New Hampshire Gazette for publication.

Done by vote of the Christian Sunday School at Kittery, Me., June 7th., 1885.

The painters here are now busily engaged, not only in this city but in the neighboring towns on both sides of the river.

The mosquitoes are this season more numerous, and more persistent in their unwelcome attentions, than they have been for several years. The reason no doubt is that there has been more wet weather than usual this spring.

The Dover railroad bridge between Noble's island and Freeman's point, some piles of which were displaced by the stone deposited there, having been repaired, the filling-in is again rapidly progressing. The gravel for the purpose is excavated along the line of the road, a short distance from the Freeman's point end of the bridge.

Robert Harris has been made president of the St. Paul & Northern Pacific railroad for the ensuing year.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

At Portsmouth, Eng., June 8th, a terrible explosion occurred on board her majesty's ironclad Inflexible. Gas had been generated in one of the coal-bunkers, and becoming ignited, exploded with terrific force, badly damaging the vessel and injuring twelve persons, some of them, it is feared, fatally.

By the bursting of a waterspout in the mountains about thirty miles east of Lagos, Mexico, June 7th, over 100 lives were lost and immense damage done to property.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of those appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in good health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,
24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

"Gentle Spring."

Among spring preparations, do not neglect that which is most important of all—your own body. During the winter the blood absorbs many impurities, which, if not expelled, are liable to break out in scrofula or other disease. The best spring medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It expels every impurity from the blood, and gives strength to every function of the body. Sold by all druggists.

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

Modern Improvements. Among the many articles put forth in the interest of housekeepers, nothing has become more popular than James Pyle's Pearline. Five years ago it was scarcely known; since then it has found its way to all parts of the country. Its utility is acknowledged by all who try it, and unlike most of the labor-saving compounds, experience has proved Pearline to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate fabrics, and we feel sure that no one will be without it after a fair trial.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting to do so, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to lease any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, said physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive emanations therefrom shall be carried or conducted into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

A little boy, a resident of our village, when passing our prominent undertaker was rather reticent in answering his queries; but when his mother asked him if he did not know the gentleman he answered: "Yes, that is the man who takes dead people to Heaven."—Pittsburg Sentinel.

Things one would rather have left unsaid: Miss Constance—I'm so glad you think I've improved in my playing of that nocturne of yours, Herr Bemolski; I hope to be perfect in it next time we meet. Herr B. (gallantly)—Ach! Miss Gonschdance, I hope ve shall meet before zat!—Punch.

At the Police Court: "Accused, you are blind?" "Yes, your honor." "How did you become blind?" "By a fit of apoplexy." "Why, then, this picture on your breast representing an explosion in a mine, in which you lost your sight?" "Please, your Honor, because to represent apoplexy painting is powerless."—Le Francais.

A scientist has discovered proof of the existence of the rhinoceros on the Western Continent "thousands of years before Barnum appeared." This will surprise many persons—not that the pachydermatous animal was discovered on the Western Continent thousands of years ago, but that Barnum was not living at the time.—Norristown Herald.

Brown—"I was surprised to see you at church yesterday, Smith; I understood that you don't believe much in religious matters." Smith—"Well—er—I have been something of an infidel all my life, but that cold that I caught last week has settled on my lungs, and I feel a little nervous about it."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A 12-year-old boy entered a newsstand, threw down 15 cents, and said: "Gimme 'The One-Eyed Demon of the Ditches,' 'Crimson-Handed Bill, or the King of the Highwaymen,' and 'Sal Slumpkins, the Queen of the Shoplifters, of the Half-Dime Series.'" And yet an English review once sneeringly asked, "Who reads an American book?"—Norristown Herald.

"Don't know what to do," remarked a millionaire to his doctor. "I want to go into the country and live quietly and without ostentation." "Why don't you do it? Your health demands a rest of that sort." "Yes, I know it," replied the patient, "but my money gives me away. What shall I do?" "In that case," answered the physician, "why don't you give your money away?"—N. Y. Graphic.

A gentleman went into a crowded store to buy some stockings for his wife. "I want striped ones," he said to the clerk. "We have very few stripes, sir," the clerk replied; "they are not much worn now." "Are you sure?" "Oh, yes, quite sure. I will demonstrate the fact to you." Then he leaned over the counter and shouted: "Rats!" "See?" he asked. "Yes; give me plain colors."—Drake's Magazine.

The secret of Col. Joseph Pulitzer's hostility to Minister Phelps is open at last. It appears that Phelps had bargained to pay his yearly subscription to the New York World in Vermont maple syrup, and that when Pulitzer examined the jugs he found they contained only an inferior article of New Orleans molasses. In view of these facts we submit that Col. Pulitzer might heat his wrath up several degrees higher without overstepping the bounds of reason.—Philadelphia Times.

It is probable that this fair land will never be perfectly happy and truly prosperous until the management of all the railroads is turned over to the commercial travelers long enough at least for the boys to adopt a universal mileage ticket and an extra baggage check, good forever on all roads both ways, at the companies' expense. The commercial traveler doesn't want much this year, and the little pittance that he does want he ought to have.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Is there no way of putting a stop to this dynamite business? New troubles arise every day, but the people don't seem to heed the warnings they receive. The latest explosion is one that may happen in any household where there are a crawling baby, an impatient mother, and an experimenting father. It occurred in this way: The father dropped a little dynamite on the carpet, the baby slid over it, the mother spanked the baby. Father, mother, and baby—all gone. Such lessons should give wholesome instruction, but they don't seem to do so.—New York Tribune.

"The development at the back of the head, my friends, indicates filial affection," explained the phrenologist. "Now you will observe," he went on, feeling the head of the boy on the platform, "that this bump is abnormal in size, thus indicating that this lad loves and reveres his parents to an unusual degree. Is it not so, my lad?" "Naw." "What? You do not love your parents?" "I think well enough of mither," replied the boy, "but I ain't very fond of feyther. That bump you're a-feelin' of he gave me last night wid a cricket-stump."—Public Opinion.

The New York Graphic says: "The work of establishing an art museum in Detroit is attended with peculiar difficulties, chief among which is the lack of persons competent to discern the difference between a chromo and an oil painting." This is a base and unworthy libel. The people of Detroit know that a chromo can be had with a few pounds of tea, whereas an oil painting costs a good deal of money. Besides, you can tell a chromo by the manufacturer's name at the bottom, while a little close examination shows the brush marks on a painting.—Detroit Free Press.

The Emperor of Germany, while recently sitting to a sculptor for a bust, became dissatisfied with the position of one of his decoration—a star—on the clay model. He thereupon erased it, and with his own hands remodeled it an inch and a half higher. Though it was the old Emperor's first effort at sculpture it was, of course, a very great success, and the artist, obtaining permission to leave it exactly as it had been executed, sold thousands of cheap plaster replicas of the model. This story should suggest to all sculptors the advisability of becoming Emperors as tending to subsequent rapid popularity.

"I would be willing to make affidavit that at least 100 persons come in my store every day and ask for advertising cards," said a Woodward avenue grocer, "and the confounded things are getting to be an unmitigated nuisance. The custom of giving away picture novelties with purchases has increased to such an extent that customers have arrived at the conclusion that they should get a Michael Angelo or a Rubens with a bar of soap or a pound of crackers. They never seem to think that grocers have to make up the cost some way, and if they happen to discover a few grains of sand in the sugar or a chance bean in the coffee they buy we hear a howl about adulteration of food."—Detroit Free Press.

When the late Chief-Justice Chase chose to unbend himself he could be witty as well as wise. At a social gathering at his house during the War, the subject of taxation having been mooted, a distinguished naval officer present said he had paid all his taxes except the income tax. "I have a little property," said he, "which brings me in a yearly rental, but the tax-gatherers have not spotted it. I do not know whether I ought to let the thing go that way or not. What would you do if you were in my place, Mr. Chase?" There was a merry twinkle in the eyes of Secretary Chase as he answered archly: "I think it the duty of every man to live unspotted as long as he can."—Philadelphia Record.

The Maine Prison Barber's Shop.

Here is the prison barber, down in a corridor lighted by a pair of lamps, which make his shop look in the distance like a rude altar with perpetual tapers burning before it. His chair is not one of those fat, swelling divans in whose cushions you recline for a shave, but a hard wooden seat with shorter legs behind than before, so it tips back a little, and a high back.

The barber does a wholesale business. He shaves all the convicts once a week and cuts their hair once a month.

When he is on a shaving expedition he plants his chair in one of the shops. One man sits down and is quickly lathered and scraped. Then there is none of your bay rum, or magnesia, or puff balls, or camphorated ice or magnolia balm, or those other toilet mysteries which the tonsorial artist performs on the face of his customer outside the prison. After the man is shaved the barber does not fret over him any, but it is "Get out and wash yourself." The prisoner tumbles out and goes to the sink, while another man takes his place in the chair. In this way the prison barber goes through the shops.

He shaves the prison officers, and they say he is a good barber. Perhaps he is, and he may be a good fellow—but no man who is in the state prison may draw a razor over your humble servant's throat. It is bad enough to be shaved by a man who ought to be in prison.—Lewiston Journal.

Would but for His Size.

"It's funny about this foreign war," remarked a farmer from Michigan. "I thought all the time they was a-going to fight. It didn't seem to me England would stand the chaff of Russia, considerin' how quick she jumped into Egypt and bombarded Alexandria. But I s'pose it's another case like Jim Johnson's."

"How about Jim Johnson?"

"Oh, Jim was the bully of the school in our deestrick at Snow Prairie. He was the boss lighter of the school, an' was always havin' rows. One day a boy about two-thirds his size told Jim he was a liar. The way he jumped onto that little shaver an' pounded him was a caution. 'I'll l'arn you to insult me,' he says, when he had him well licked an' let him up. Just then a newcomer to our deestrick—a feller bigger'n Jim, an' a good fighter, steps up an' says: 'Jim Johnson, you are a liar and a coward to boot.' We looked to see Jim wipe the 'arth with him, but instead o' that he rushed off an' told the teacher. 'Why didn't you punish him yourself?' asked the teacher. 'I would,' said Jim, a-snivelin' an' lookin' out the winder for the other chap was comin' for him—'I would, but—but for his size.'

"It strikes me that's 'bout the way 'tis with England, Egypt and Russia. She's a Jim Johnson, that's what she is."—Chicago Herald.

Kansas Sheep.

Sheep there were, indeed; thousands of them, objects of unfailing concern to the gentlemen and delight to the ladies.

"What is that stone wall?" asked, one afternoon, a lady sitting on the piazza with her opera-glass.

"That stone wall, madam," answered a Harvard graduate, politely, "is the sheep coming in to the corral."

To see the sheep go in and out, night and morning, was a never-failing amusement. Sometimes the ladies wandered down to the corrals at sunset to see the herds come in, and you would have supposed them to be waiting for a Fourth-of-July procession with banners, from the eagerness with which they exclaimed, "Oh, here they come! there they are!" as the first faint tinkling of the bells was heard in the distance. If two herds appeared at once from opposite directions, the one with lambs had the "right of way," and Sly, the sheep-dog—not the only commander who has controlled troups by sitting down in front of them—would hold the other herd in check till the lambs were safely housed. The lambs born on the prairie during the day frisked back at night to the corral beside their mothers, a lamb four hours old being able to walk a mile.

When shearing-time came, they went into the sheds expecting to see the thick wool fall in locks beneath the shears, like the golden curls of their own darlings; great was the amazement to see the whole woolly fleece taken off much as if it had been an overcoat, looking still, if it were rolled up in a ball, like a veritable sheep, and often quite as large as the shorn and diminished creature that had once been part of it. One very hot day they braved the heat themselves for the sake of going out on the prairie to see the sheep keep cool. Instead of scattering along the creek, seeking singly the shade of the bushes or the tall trees only to be found near the creek, they huddle together in the middle of the sunny field more closely than ever, hang their heads in the shadow of each other's bodies, and remain motionless for hours. Not a single head is to be seen as you approach the herd; only a broad level field of woolly backs, supported by a small forest of little legs.—Alice Wellington Rollins, in Harper's Magazine for June.

Aunt Ellen's Idea of Freedom.

My father (writes a correspondent) was a slave owner in the South before the war, and I was brought up largely by colored nurses, to whom I naturally became very much attached. After the war the blacks were scattered more or less, and but few of my father's former slaves remained in the neighborhood. Among those who did remain, however, was one of my old nurses, a woman of about forty-five or fifty years of age, who lived on the farm of a man who had never owned slaves, and who took no further interest in the blacks than to get work out of them. Returning on one occasion to visit my home, I received word that "Aunt" Ellen wanted me to come to see her, and of course I was glad to go. I found her living very meanly, faring, apparently, much worse than she had ever done when a slave. Her husband was a drunken, worthless fellow, whom she had to support; she had poor health, and a household of poorly clad, poorly fed children to care for. Brought up in the midst of slavery, and being at the time a very young man, I had never realized the cruelty of that institution, and as I looked about my old nurse's cabin I could but contrast her surroundings with what they had been when I was a child and she was a slave. So I said to her: "Aunt Ellen, don't you think you fared much better when you were a slave? Then you had a better house to live in, plenty to eat, plenty to wear, no doctors' bills, and never any thought or care about such things."

"Dat's so, Mas' John," she replied. "I did hab mo' to eat, an' mo' to wah, an' none o' dis here kin' o' trouble; but yes, de Lawd bless ye, honey, after all, da's de feelin's!"—Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for June.

The Appomattox Apple Tree.

The truth about the surrender at Appomattox has been convincingly set forth in these columns and in a score of newspapers, to say nothing of various histories and magazine articles. But there is an almost insurmountable difficulty in the way of satisfying the Northern mind. It is the apple tree. Dealers in war relics have made good use of the story for the past twenty years, and there are few country houses in the North and West where a piece of the historic tree cannot be found.

Now it is useless to tell a man who has paid a fancy price for one of these bits of wood that the surrender took place in a white cottage. He will at once reply that it took place in the open air under a big apple tree, and it can't possibly be otherwise because he has a piece of the tree to speak for itself. Against such reasoning it is useless to contend. By the way, the tree must have been the most enormous one on record. If all the alleged pieces of it in New England could be gathered together they would make about 800 cords of well-seasoned timber. Appomattox must be a remarkable apple region. There is no other place in the country where apple trees attain such overwhelming proportions. So far, it has been the tightest kind of a race between the veracious historian and the apple tree story, and even now they seem to be neck and neck.—Atlanta Constitution.

As the result of his personal observations, M. Claret states that the walking of insects may be represented by three men in Indian file, the foremost and hindmost of whom keep step with each other, while the middle one walks in the alternate step. The walking of arachnids can be represented by four men in file, the two numbered ones walking in one step, while the odd numbered ones walk in the alternate step.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

The loss of life by the great waterspout at Lagos, Mexico, was much larger than first reported, 200 persons being drowned at Pueblo Cuaruntas alone.

A Letter of Thanks.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham; Very dear Madam: My wife Arie A. Green has suffered with a displacement which caused her unknown pains till I had almost given up all hopes of finding any relief for her. But the Guiding Spirit referred me to your Vegetable Compound. I went twelve miles to purchase a bottle and the first two doses gave her immediate relief, and after the use of the first bottle she declared herself a new person, two bottles entirely cured her. Your medicine is invaluable to me. It was indeed a messeuger of peace in my house, it cured my wife, and God knows I am the happiest man alive to-day. Words cannot express our feelings towards you.

CONSTIPATION!

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by Constipation, and there is no other ill flesh is heir to more apt to be neglected, from the fact material inconvenience may not be immediately felt from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action the retention of decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing piles, fistula, headache, impure blood and many other serious affections. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will immediately relieve, and one bottle positively cure or relieve any case of Constipation.

The Senatorial Election.

Concord correspondents intimate that the indications point to the nomination of Hon. Henry W. Blair for United States senator by the republican legislative caucus, his competitors for the honor not appearing to develope the strength hoped for by themselves and their supporters. We believe his renomination is desired by a large majority of the republican voters of the state, and that if he is defeated it will be by the wire pullers and not by the people. There is no pretence even, to seriously question his record, which is clean; and his education bill is the most important measure introduced in Congress for years.

A Mistake Somewhere.

It seems that before the late secretary of the navy had become so well posted in regard to iron ships, he had such implicit faith in the integrity of wooden vessels that he was induced to pay a large sum for some process of preserving ship timber, now discovered to be of no account. Then it was that our somewhat fresh secretary was deceived by that old salt who "impregnated" him with the importance of making a payment for his nostrum, two days before he went out of office! This is a singular circumstance. We suppose it was all right; as far as the secretary was concerned, of course it was; but it was a close shave. Well, we are glad this is the only alleged impropriety that can be brought against the official conduct of the ex-secretary, and even this is a barnacle passed down by his predecessors, the character of which he perhaps did not have time to properly investigate.

The Lake Shore Railroad.

A delegation of citizens from Laconia recently appeared before the directors of the Boston & Maine railroad to urge the extension of the line of the Dover & Winnepiseogee railway from its terminus at Alton Bay to some point at or near Laconia. The great advantages of this direct connection between the county of Belknap and tide-water at Portsmouth, as well as the short cut to the west from the sea coast, were set out. A committee of the board of directors of the Boston & Maine have since gone over the proposed line of road. The estimated cost of the new road, a little over sixteen miles in length, is put at $250,000, which sum at the present low rates of money could be easily obtained for the purpose. Its value to the Boston & Maine system of roads east, west and south of Dover, and its capacity for increase of business at this point, can hardly be over-estimated. There will come a day when the road will be built, but whether it will be, as the man said when asked when he would pay a note, "in the near future" or some other day, of course depends upon the activity of the Boston & Maine management, and their desire to bring to the line business which legitimately pertains to it.

Statistics of the Rebellion.

Adjt. Gen. Drum, U. S. A., has just completed a list of casualties in the federal army during the late war. The list is thought to be the most accurate yet published. The aggregate number of deaths is shown to have been 359,496. Of these, 29 498 occurred among Union soldiers held as prisoners of war in the south. The total number of troops reported as furnished by the various states under the several calls is 2,772,408. Some of the returns were duplicated, and it is estimated that the actual number was about 2,500,000.

The fact that nearly two-thirds of all deaths from diarrhœal diseases among children during the year occur in the months of July and August is made the leading theme in "Babyhood" for June, and considerable space is devoted to a comprehensive article on "Summer Complaint," with a special view to prevention. There are few subjects connected with the care of children which are of such vital importance as this, and there can be no doubt the startling mortality of infants could be materially reduced if parents would allow themselves the full benefit of such literature as this. Of other interesting articles contained in this number of Babyhood may be mentioned "Photographing the Baby," "Creeping-Aprons," "A Remedy for Sleeplessness," "Baby's First Attire," "Eating Between Meals," "Obstinate Children," etc. Babyhood Pub. Co., No. 18 Spruce street, New York; $1.50 a year.

The naval board appointed to investigate the wood preserving process used at the Boston navy yard report to Sec. Whitney that the Thilmany patent and process are of "no practical value whatever; that the works belonging to the government could be duplicated for much less than was paid for them; and that a very large part of the expenditure of the government ($156,168.62) has resulted in no practical advantage." The report is signed by Capt. F. M. Bunce, United States navy, president of the board; C. E. Chandler, Ph. D., M. D., professor of chemistry at Columbia college; and Capt. H. L. Howison of the navy, member of the board.

At Dover on the evening of the 9th inst., Capt. Happy Bill Gray of Portland, Capt. Shaw of Newburyport, and Mrs. George Swain, of the salvation army, were arrested for creating a disturbance, the army persisting in parading with their big drum and tambourines, though prohibited by the authorities.

The canker worms have appeared in large numbers at New Boston, for the first time in thirty-two years, and are doing much damage.

A STORY OF TO-DAY.

A Millionaire's Misery and Its Cause.

"What Would I not Give to Have the Health of Those Happy Children!"

"Drive faster, John, I cannot bear to look at them."

And the driver quickened the pace of the high-spirited horses, to get his millionaire master past a group of children who, with laugh and shout, were keenly enjoying themselves in front of an old-fashioned country house.

But the vision of the children lingered in his mind. At length with a deep sigh, he said aloud:

"What would I not give to have the health of those happy children!"

Soon the horses turned into the grounds, before an elegant mansion, and the carriage passed over the graveled road, by smoothly kept lawns, till it stopped at the door of the house. The occupant of the carriage slowly and painfully stepped from it, ascended the steps, and passed in.

Poor man! Prosperity and high living had done sad work for him. His former vigorous constitution and healthy digestion had gradually been broken down by late suppers, over-indulgences, too much rich food. As a result, dyspepsia claimed him. The distress after eating, headache, heartburn, sour stomach, depression and confusion of mind, irritability and languor, suffered by one in his condition, cannot be described. When once it gains a hold, dyspepsia does not get well of itself. A remedy is required which will remove the causes, tone up the digestive organs, overcome the dizziness and faintness, and restore the lost appetite.

That remedy thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla; and if you suffer from dyspepsia in any degree, you should surely give this medicine a trial.

Mr. J. S. Bailey is the popular keeper of the government light-house at Marblehead, Mass. His wife was for three years a great sufferer from dyspepsia, there being hardly anything she could eat without distress. After trying various remedies without effect, she began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. She says: "The result was entirely satisfactory. I can eat with comfort anything desirable for me to eat, and enjoy it." Mr. Bailey fully confirms his wife's cure, and considers the money spent for Hood's Sarsaparilla one of the best investments he ever made.

John B. Watkins, Youngstown, Ohio, had dyspepsia, and derived a vast amount of benefit from a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. M. J. Ryan, Indianapolis, Ind., after suffering with dyspepsia for years, tried Hood's Sarsaparilla with the best results.

Many more statements from people who have been cured of dyspepsia by Hood's Sarsaparilla, might be given if necessary. Give this medicine a fair trial and it will cure you, if you suffer from dyspepsia, headache, loss of appetite, indigestion, heartburn, or any other affection caused by debility of the digestive organs.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, June 10th.

William Clark, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90; with a sojourn at the county farm in default of payment.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Wm. M. Bird, Reed master, arrived from Philadelphia on the 10th inst. with 1232 tons coal to J. Albert Walker.

The brick schooner Triton, and sloop Stephen Orr, from this port, arrived at Boston on the 9th inst., and the schooners Estella, G. W. Raitt and Lillie on the 10th. The Leonora, from Bangor, and the Gulnare, from York, also arrived at Boston on the 10th.

THE PORTSMOUTH CASE.

The recent turn-over in the collectorship of Portsmouth, N. H., was rather extraordinary on both sides. Collector Howard resigned, as he publicly announced, because his conscience would not allow him to hold the office any longer. He considered himself an offensive partisan, and believing that to the victor belongs the spoils, he got out. Viewed as an act of political self-denial, his resignation was rather startling; but on the heels of it came the statement that it was simply the result of a "trade" between Hon. Frank Jones and himself, by which he was to be set up in the insurance business. This tale is branded by the Portsmouth papers as bosh of the most ridiculous sort, which it evidently is. In the first place, the office is of too small importance to be worth trading for, as it pays no salary at all, only "fees," and one can imagine how small these must be in the antiquated seaport town of Portsmouth; and finally, Mr. Jones is too shrewd a business man and politician to offer Mr. Howard pecuniary inducements to quit an office which he (Jones) could dispose of by the wave of his hand. But as Mr. Howard has in fact opened an insurance office, this whole business will give a boom which will be worth more to him than many collectorships; which shows that Mr. Howard is a shrewd man, too.

But how about the new incumbent, Alpheus A. Hanscom, Esq., editor and proprietor of the weekly States and Union, and Daily Evening Times? Postmaster General Vilas laid down the broad rule, which was endorsed by the president, that he would require no more conclusive evidence of offensive partisanship than "editing a party organ and publishing offensive articles." With this rule in force, the appointment of Mr. Hanscom is certainly extraordinary. Mr. Hanscom was for many years a partisan publisher and editor of the hardest-headed sort in our sister city of Saco, and the fact that he now publishes in Portsmouth two partisan newspapers, is pretty good evidence that he is none the less an offensive partisan than when in Maine. We trust this will not prove to be another case in which the president was "deceived," but it certainly looks that way, for of course he would not thus deliberately violate an official rule of his own administration. May we not reasonably expect that, as soon as Brother Hanscom becomes fully aware that he is quite as much an offensive partisan as was Mr. Howard, he, too, will promptly resign? Turn the offensive partisans out.—Biddeford Journal.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., June 10th.

Miss Lizzie Thomas is having excellent success with her school in district No. 3; and Miss Urch of Portsmouth, teaching in No. 4 north, is highly commended by our committee, and her efforts will no doubt be entirely satisfactory to the parents of the pupils. Both the young ladies named are teaching their first school.

Mr. Alvin Libby has been getting out lumber the past winter preparatory to erecting a new set of buildings on the lot where his others were burned about two years ago.

Olive Branch Commandery, U. O. G. C., are preparing for an entertainment which will be given soon.

Elmer H. Frye, now employed by H. B. Parker in his store at the depot, has been engaged by E. F. Safford, Esq., to act in the office of the Pepperell house at Kittery Point during the season.

Mr. Samuel Paul of west Kittery was struck in the side of the face on Wednesday, the 3d inst., by an axe which was being used by Sylvester Lowry. They were engaged with others in repairing a barn for Burlington Paul, and Mr. Lowry was driving a shore while Mr. Samuel Paul was standing opposite to sight it, when the axe flew off the handle, striking Mr. Paul with great force and inflicting a severe and painful wound. He was immediately taken to the residence of Dr. M. F. Wentworth, who took several stitches and dressed the wound; and he is now doing well.

It is with pleasure that we chronicle this week among the "arrivals,"—to H. B. Parker, Esq., the genial postmaster at Kittery Depot, an eight-pound boy.

SUB ROSA.

The canker worms are reported to be doing great injury to trees in some places on the outskirts of the city.

The poles for the electric fire alarm add variety to the attractions of the city, if nothing else; they point in every direction except toward the zenith, and being now ornamented with innumerable quack-medicine advertisement are indeed things of beauty. But the city ought to receive something from the quack-medicine men for the use of the poles.

Maud Forester's Burlesque and Specialty Co. will be at Music hall on Monday and Tuesday evenings, June 22d and 23d.

The following, which we take from the Biddeford Journal of the 8th inst., will interest many persons in this city: "On Saturday evening at half past ten o'clock, at Foote's restaurant on Main street in Saco, occurred the marriage of Eugene I. Foote, of Portsmouth, N. H., the popular meat cook at the above restaurant, and Miss Angie Andrews, of South Waterloo. The officiating clergymen was Rev. J. W. Parsons, pastor of the Free Baptist church in Saco. There was a large number of friends of both parties present. Mr. Foote and wife will reside in Saco."

Sunday, June 7th, was the 20th anniversary of Rev. J. C. White's pastorate with the Congregational church at Newmarket.

The annual meeting of the Howe Water Meter Co. was held in this city on the 10th inst., and Jonathan Janes, Edson Kemp, Daniel Tompkins and Guilford S. Reed were elected to serve as directors for the ensuing year.

Mr. George E. Sides, formerly of this city but for the past fourteen years a resident of Vallejo, Cal., arrived here on a visit on the 10th inst.

Howe Call, Esq., started from this city for Washington, D. C., on Wednesday morning.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

The largest catch of salmon in the Penobscot river yet reported to have been made in one weir in any single day was made last week in a large weir just below Fort Point. Thirty-three large salmon were taken from this weir, and weighed a little over 400 pounds. The day's work was worth more than $100 to the owner of the weir. The most of the salmon now being taken in the Penobscot river are marketed in Boston.

On the afternoon of the 9th inst. John R. Spaulding of Lewiston, Me., shot his wife in a dressmaking shop. The ball passed through her upraised hand, and then plowed its way through the skin and integuments of her temple, making a bad but not fatal wound. Spaulding is said to have been drinking heavily several days, and this, combined with the fact that his wife left him a short time since, was probably the cause for the attempted murder.

The annual meeting of the York county conference of Congregational churches was held with the Pavilion church in Biddeford on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, among the pastors present being Rev. W. W. Dow of Kittery Point, Rev. D. B. Sewall of the 1st church, York, Rev. George Lewis of South Berwick, and Rev. A. Norton of the 1st church and Rev. H. Houston of the 2d church, of Wells. Rev. W. W. Dow preached the sermon with which the exercises closed on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Franklin R. Bragdon of York, formerly assisting keeper of White island light, is engaged this season in boat fishing out of York harbor, at which he is reported to be satisfactorily successful, bringing in many good fares.

The body of Capt. Nicholas H. Costello, drowned in the river at Wells on the evening of June 7th, had not been recovered up to a late hour on the 9th, though a coat, frock and other articles supposed to have belonged to him had been picked up. The horse and wagon were found and taken home uninjured, the story that the wagon was smashed and the horse drowned being incorrect. The deceased leaves a wife and two children.

Charles E. Dimmock has been appointed postmaster at Limington, in place of Mr. Ford, who resigned.

The house of Isaac Hussey at North Berwick was entered a few days ago while the family were at dinner, by some thief who got away with a gold watch and a pocket book containing a small sum of money.

William Perkins of Waterbury, Conn., who weighs 325 pounds, wants to be divorced from his hundred-pound wife because she snow-balls him with stove-lids and lifters. Mrs. Perkins couldn't possibly hit a hen in the garden, but she can't help hitting her husband every time.

The cholera is spreading in Spain, and increasing in virulence in the infected districts.

Dubuque, Iowa, and New Albin and Victory, Wis., report destructive tornadoes.

George Dallas and wife, formerly of Lynn, Mass., were drowned at Pittsburg, Pa., June 7th, by the upsetting of a boat.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their nature. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

34 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to the frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No render of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, bones, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any officer of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—she said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and remove said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

The Devil.

Men don't believe in a devil now, as their fathers used to do;
They've forced the door of the broadest creed to let his Majesty through;
There isn't a print of his cloven foot or a fiery dart from his bow,
To be found in earth or air to-day, for the world has voted so.

But who is mixing the fatal draught that palsies heart and brain,
And loads the earth of each passing year with ten hundred thousand slain?
Who blights the bloom of the land to-day with the fiery breath of hell,
If the devil isn't and never was? Won't somebody rise and tell?

Who dogs the steps of the toiling saint, and digs the pits for his feet?
Who sows the tares in the field of Time wherever God sows his wheat?
The devil is voted not to be, and of course the thing is true;
But who is the people would like to know who carries his business on.

—Denver Tribune-Republican.

'TWAS BUT A DREAM.

Coming events do not always cast their shadows before; and the momentous occurrences of our mortal existence are as often as not ushered in upon us without any preface whatever, the even tenor of our everyday life continuing unbroken to the very threshold of our new and weighty experience.

The Saturday on the evening of which young Henry Smith left his store a little earlier than was his custom to walk home to the small hotel of his own country town, in which hotel he had taken up his abode since his father and family had moved to another village, was unmarked by any occurrence which distinguished it from all its predecessors.

It was a damp, warm evening, with some premonitions of spring in the air, but young Smith walked rapidly, as his wont was, flourishing his stick, greeting a passing acquaintance with a lighting up of his honest and handsome face, and thinking that if he made haste over the meal which he called, in homely phrase, supper, he would get to Nellie Dobson's before half-past seven o'clock.

He was near the hotel when he came upon two small dogs engaged in a fight.

He would undoubtedly have passed on without any instinct of prevention of cruelty to animals springing within his heart to lead him to separate the combatants, but that he became aware of a lady in black standing on the piazza steps, waving her hands and handkerchief, and giving forth a series of inarticulate little calls and cries, which, being interpreted, meant that one of the dogs belonged to her, and that she was endeavoring to coax or threaten him away from this bloody warfare.

Young Smith thereupon used his walking-stick freely to the right and left for a moment or two, and succeeded in putting an end to the affray.

He then, being a very good-natured fellow, lifted one of the belligerents, whom, from his pampered appearance, he rightly judged to be the lady's property, and, raising his hat at the same moment, mounted the steps and restored him to a pair of outstretched hands.

In so doing Harry Smith naturally raised his eyes.

He beheld a vision in widow's weeds, with gold-shot hair under something that looked like a snowflake, but was probably, in one versed in millinery, a diminutive and very coquettish cap, and with eyes that reminded him of deep blue violets, and with a skin fair as a lily, and black eyebrows.

But it was not these material charms alone which quite took away Harry Smith's breath. The lady had a wonderful smile, which brought dimples to one of her cheeks, and a very soft low voice, with an intonation which was quite unlike that of Harry Smith's concitizens, and equally unlike anything he had ever heard in his life.

The lady murmured some words of thanks and stroked the panting and ruffled poodle, whom she called Bijou, with a caressing hand which was very white and very delicate, and had long fingers tipped with pink nails that were polished to shine like ten small gems.

Those wonderful hands being fully occupied, it occurred in the moment that young Harry stood there bare-headed and stammering, that her handkerchief dropped from them. And Harry, as in courtesy bound, stooped precipitately to pick it up, and was conscious for a brief second of something very soft and fine, impregnated with some faint and haunting odor, lying against his palm.

This additional little act of civility called forth a fresh bewildering smile, and some renewed murmured thanks to the lady, and seemed to establish a certain sort of acquaintance there and then between her and her dog's champion.

She bowed to him most graciously as she moved away with Bijou under her arm, and Harry Smith, still blushing and confused, walked into the office, feeling as though he had suddenly been transported to some other planet, in an atmosphere the brightness of which dazzled and stunned him.

Harry had considerable shyness in making a few evasive enquiries at the desk.

The young widow, it appeared, was a Mrs. Chalmers; she was from town. She had come here for a short time to look after some property.

Harry did not eat his supper with as much precipitancy as he had intended.

When he was going out again he looked about him casually, and was rewarded by having the lady in mourning suddenly sweep by him.

She had been sitting on the piazza, for she wore some large wrap that hung in picturesque folds almost to her feet, to protect her against the chilliness of the evening air. Behind her came a maid who carried Bijou.

Mrs. Chalmers gave a bow of recognition, another of her dazzling smiles, and enveloped him for a second in the faint odor which had emanated from her handkerchief, and seemed to detach itself from the flowing train that swished behind her.

Harry Smith had a most extraordinary sensation of tingling blood through all his veins and of quickening throbs at his heart.

He walked more slowly than usual as far as Nellie Dobson's house. In the course of the evening he asked her why she wore her hair frizzed so much.

Miss Dobson, in feminine indulgence for man's inferiority, created by ignorance in such respects, said briefly, with a smile not unsatisfied, that such was the fashion.

But Harry had a vague misgiving on this score. Mrs. Chalmers's hair was done quite differently. It occurred to him, for the first time, that Nellie's ideas of what was fashionable might possibly leave something to be desired in point of authenticity.

Well, this was the beginning of the end with young Harry.

He was caught in a net from which he never thought of extricating himself; from which he never wished to. All his past life had been a monotonous treadmill; all his future was a blank. The present was his, and it was glorious—so glorious sometimes that it suffocated him.

All the incidents of his everyday existence became alike to his indifference. He only really had a consciousness of living when he was near that slim dark-robed figure, within sound of that low voice and peculiar tantalising little laugh, which followed him into the depths of his dreams, within sight of two eyes like stars, and that blinding smile which brought a dimple into the left cheek.

He was continually being surprised afresh. What bewildering things she wore, though it was only widow's black! That scent-bottle he had held, that huge fan, with always the same elusive stinging perfume, her little boots, her long gloves. All this atmosphere of elegance which enveloped her worked madness in the unworn senses of the honest country fellow. These nameless and countless refinements—they threw a spell over him.

She belonged to a world where things of that sort were the staple of everyday existence. He turned with a sort of shrinking from the commonplace attributes of the village-life around him.

How must all these platitudes, this heavy-handed obtuseness, this humdrum deadening routine affect her?

He began to give, surreptitiously, and with a stealthy blush, though he was alone in the secrecy of his chamber, a certain amount of additional and delicate care to his finger-nails.

He thought of Nellie Dobson sometimes; but she seemed to have receded into some far-away and dim vista, and to have no reality, like all the rest of his past.

What struck him at times almost with a shock of wonder was that this fair-haired woman in the widow's weeds could ever have cared for him. He felt as though she was condescending from an immeasurable distance when she turned that long look of hers upon him, or gave him one of her priceless smiles.

And her soft silences when he poured forth his confused raptures, his trance-like ecstasies, his vows, and dreams, and prayers, in the stillness of that little parlor of hers, which had become transfigured, through the personality of her who inhabited it, from the bold and vulgar blankness of an hotel room into a little temple not quite unfit for the divinity.

And once even, in the midst of one of those silences, she had bent forward lightly and laid her cool hand against his thick close-cropped hair. Harry felt the touch for days. It seemed to obliterate everything else.

He had known her—how long? Three weeks—a month—six weeks? He could not have told. Time had ceased to be to him.

He only knew, as he sped up the stairs four steps at a time, that he had not seen her before that day.

She was half reclining on a lounge at the farther end of the room when he came in.

The sight of her golden head and white face, after his deprivation of twenty-four hours, sent a sudden thrill dashing like a great wave over him.

He threw himself on his knees beside her, and buried his face in her dress.

"What a child you are," she said, with a motion to free her hand from his clasp.

He thought he had offended, and hurried on breathlessly:

"Oh, forgive me! I don't know what I do. I am rough, I know. But if you could see into my heart—if I could make you feel how much I love you! You are everything to me, darling, darling! You are my star—my sun! You are all the life and all the beauty to me! Dearest—dearest!"

There was no mistaking her movements now. She was angry.

"Please get up," she said.

He rose obediently, and stood before her humbly.

"Forgive me," he said again. "I won't say anything more now, if it offends you."

Her face was quite unresponsive.

"Yes, I know," he went on. "I see that you are offended. I should have known that I must not speak so soon to you in this way."

Still no change in her face. He was growing a trifle bewildered.

"Of course I understand that it is not customary in society"—alas, poor Harry!—"to address a widow so soon on such a subject. But I will wait." He was getting eager again. "I won't speak to you yet a while. We have time before us, darling—oh, a lifetime—to be happy in! You know that I love you; and when the hour comes that I can ask you to be my wife——"

He stood there ingenuous, naive, beaming, full of good faith. She looked at him just one minute, and burst into a ringing laugh.

The color ebbed out of Harry's face; it ebbed very slowly; his cheeks took on an ashen hue; he did not speak or move.

When Mrs. Chalmers had finished laughing she sat up. His immovability, and something in his eyes, seemed to sober her uneasy.

"You foolish boy," she said a trifle nervously, still fixing him with her gaze. "You must pardon my laughing. It was very rude; but you look so—so—like the good Sunday-school young man that you are! Silly fellow!"

This last very caressingly, with her hand on his shoulder. For she had risen, with a glance toward the door. Men of this sort were sometimes capable of such things when roused.

But the tone, the touch, had exorcised the blind elemental fury before which Mrs. Chalmers had quailed.

With a fierce movement he caught her in his arms.

"Oh, I don't care what you say—how much you laugh at me—if you will only love me—love me!" He had pushed his face against her cheek, and before she could struggle away had pressed his lips to hers.

She did free herself then, and with a violent recoil of her whole being she pushed him from her. That phase of his anger had frightened her; but she knew well enough how to deal with this sort of thing.

"Clown!" burst from her white lips. "How dare you presume! You have taken far too much for granted. Let me tell you that, strange as it may appear to you, I have no intention of marrying you whatever! I never, in the wildest of my dreams, contemplated such an august possibility. I was dull here—it is the stupidest place on the face of the earth—and you amused me. I liked you very well—I like you now;" her anger was subsiding; it wasn't worth being angry about.

"You have helped me pass these few weeks somewhat agreeably. But when a man shows that he has quite mistaken one's meaning—takes a false stand altogether—I think it right to open his eyes at once. Anyhow," she continued placidly, "it is perhaps as well that we should have had this explanation to-night, because I shall in all probability leave here in a day or two."

She was going out of the room, since he still stood there and made no motion. But, as she got to the door, he raised his hand and pressed it in a dazed sort of way over his forehead.

"Did you say you were—going away—that it had all been a mistake?"

"Better put him at peace at once," thought Mrs. Chalmers. And she said: "Yes, I had a visit to-day from my confidential friend and lawyer. There is no need of my stopping here any longer."

The door had been closed behind her some minutes when Harry Smith stirred.

He went down the stairs and into the street slowly. He was repeating to himself over and over again some words he had heard the hotel-clerk say as he went up, and which had made no impression and conveyed no meaning then:

"A tip-top swell; came up from town for the day; seemed to be mighty sweet on the widow."

Meantime Mrs. Chalmers, as her maid took down her hair, was saying to herself:

"These country lads are so absurd! How was one to know this one would take it so to heart. He'll go on thinking of me as a sort of murderess. I suppose, to the end of his days. Silly fellow! He was very good-looking, though so very fresh—and he helped me pass the time. I really like him. Why couldn't he let it rest at that? But they never can—so tiresome! Let him get back to his Nellie Dobson, or Hobson, or whatever it is—she'll console him. Braid my hair in closer strands, Annette—it gives it a prettier wave—and pack up my things. We shall go back to-morrow."

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you often feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

A Letter of Thanks.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham; Very dear Madam: My wife Arie A. Green has suffered with a displacement which caused her unknown pains till I had almost given up all hopes of finding any relief for her. But the Guiding Spirit referred me to your Vegetable Compound. I went twelve miles to purchase a bottle and the first two doses gave her immediate relief, and after the use of the first bottle she declared herself a new person, two bottles entirely cured her. Your medicine is invaluable to me. It was indeed a messenger of peace in my house, it cured my wife, and God knows I am the happiest man alive to-day. Words cannot express our feelings towards you.

Chicago's pioneer wholesale druggist, the Hon. Peter Van Schaack, thinks that the most popular medicine in America will shortly be Red Star Cough Cure on account of its great efficacy and freedom from poisonous matter. His house purchased over five thousand bottles of it during January.

Anniversary exercises at Colby academy, New London, will begin June 21st and close June 24th. The baccalaureate sermon will be by Rev. H. F. Brown of Rumney. The address before the literary societies will be by Rev. Alvan Hovey, D. D., LL. D. The graduating exercises will take place Wednesday afternoon, the 24th.

In Exeter, on the morning of the 10th inst., the statue of the Goddess of Liberty on the cupola of the town hall was found draped with clothing, the work having been done some time during the previous night. The same thing was accomplished three years ago, and it cost the town $5 to get a man who would ascend the cupola and take down the clothing. In order to reach the cupola the person must climb the side of the hall on the water conductors, and then climb the steep slated roof and up a high cupola (all slated) by the aid of the lightning rod. The venture was a risky one, but was probably done by some of the students of Phillips academy, who as the year is nearing its close, are full of pranks of all kinds.

Modern Improvements. Among the many articles put forth in the interest of housekeepers, nothing has become more popular than James Pyle's Pearline. Five years ago it was scarcely known; since then it has found its way to all parts of the country. HON. HENRY W. BLAIR RE-NOMINATED.

A despatch from Concord, Thursday evening, announced that Henry W. Blair was nominated for United States senator by the republican caucus on the first ballot. This is as it should be, and will meet the approbation of the great majority of the citizens of New Hampshire.

New Hampshire Legislature.

The republican caucus for the nomination of candidates for secretary of state, public printer, state treasurer and commissary-general was held in Phenix hall on the evening of the 10th inst. On a ballot, Al B. Thompson was nominated for secretary of state, he having 120 votes to sixty-nine for James O. Lyford, and one each for John B. Clarke and Parsons B. Cogswell. Solon A. Carter of Keene was nominated for treasurer by acclamation, and Frank P. Brown for commissary-general. For state printer a ballot was taken, resulting in 103 votes for John B. Clarke of the Manchester Mirror, to eighty-eight for Parsons B. Cogswell of the Concord Monitor, and one for James E. Lyford.

The time of holding the senatorial caucus was considered. Mr. Sise of Portsmouth moved that it be held on Monday evening, the 15th, but the caucus by a large viva voce vote decided to hold the senatorial caucus on the evening of the 11th.

The democratic caucus also was held on the evening of the 10th, and nominations made as follows: For secretary of state, Charles F. Stone of Laconia; treasurer, Edson C. Eastman of Concord; commissary-general, Major Timothy B. Crowley of Manchester. It was voted not to nominate a candidate for state printer, as a resolution providing for a reduction of twenty per cent in the existing rates for printing was to be introduced in the legislature on the 11th by the democrats. A ballot was taken for a candidate for United States senator, resulting as follows: Frank Jones, 1; Henry O. Kent, 12; John H. George, 22; Harry Bingham, 54. Mr. Bingham's nomination was made unanimous on motion of Colonel Kent.

New Hampshire Patents.

The following list of patents granted June 9th to citizens of New Hampshire is specially reported by Franklin H. Hough, Solicitor of American & Foreign Patents, 925 F. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.:

No. 319,720. J. M. Hubbard, Lake Village, advertiser and card-holder.

No. 319,731. J. C. Larkin, Whitefield, brake-shoe.

No. 319,638. D. S. Simpson, Concord, dumping-car.

The whole number of patents granted to citizens of the United States for the week ending June 9th was 479.

The centre building of the Eastern lunatic asylum of Virginia, at Williamsburg, was burned on the night of the 7th inst. The building contained 200 female patients, of whom all were rescued but one; and one other wandered away and was drowned in a brook.

Monsignour Bourget, Roman Catholic archbishop of Martianopolis, died in Montreal on the 8th inst., aged eighty-six years. He was made bishop of Montreal in 1840, and archbishop in 1876, being the oldest wearer of the mitre in America, and with but one senior in the world. He published many literary works, and instituted the first chapter of titular canons in this country.

J. W. Campbell's tannery in Woodstock was burned June 7th. The fire caught in the engine room, and the entire stock in the mill, with machinery, was lost. A large amount of bark outside was saved. Loss $1500; insurance $7000.

By the fall of the stone stairway of a court house at Theirs, France, at the close of a murder trial on the 10th inst., twenty-four persons were killed and 163 wounded, some of them fatally.

TAKING THE CENSUS.

What Was Learned by an Enumerator in Middleboro, Mass.

A Congregational Pastor—Supt. Ryder's Statement.

"O Mr. Burgess, I'm glad to see you, for I must tell the good news to somebody." So said Mrs. A. W. Leonard, of Middleboro, Mass., as she answered a summons to the door the other day.

Census Enumerator James A. Burgess looked up from his open book.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Why, you know my little boy Stillman, who is now six years old—I think he has been saved from total blindness. I never saw so much improvement in a child in my life."

"What has benefitted him so much?"

"Well, the whole credit is due to that excellent remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla. I will tell you all about it. Last September I sent my boy to school. He attended only two days, when I was obliged to keep him at home, as ulcers began to come on his right eye. The sores growing worse, I consulted Dr. Smith and Dr. Hodgson, and they said the cause was scrofulous humor in the blood. After a time he could not open his eyes at all; the humor grew worse, and his face became sore. Then his left eye began to be affected, and I feared he would be entirely blind. Then I bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla just for a trial.

WHAT WAS MY SURPRISE,

before the bottle was gone his face had healed up, and he could even open his eyes a little bit, which he had not done for four months. He is taking the sixth bottle now and I am happy to say can see as well as he ever did. A week ago he left off the shade he has worn over his eyes so long. I feel that if it had not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla my child would have been blind. I cannot find words to praise it enough. I thank God that things grew to make a good medicine."

"Has his general health been improved any?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. When he began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla he was nothing but a skeleton. Pretty soon his appetite began to improve, and he grew stronger and more fleshy, till now he is better than he has ever been in his life before. Every word which I say about the good the medicine has accomplished is strictly true."

"It is wonderful." The numerator proceeded to official business, and the interview ended.

Rev. H. M. Grant is pastor of the Congregational church in Middleboro, and Mr. Alonzo Ryder, of the dry goods firm of Geo. T. Ryder & Co., is superintendent of the Sunday school. Mr. Ryder said: "Little Stillman Leonard attends our Sunday school, and I am acquainted with his mother, who is highly respected. Her statements may be implicitly relied upon."

The above case is only one of many which illustrate the great power of Hood's Sarsaparilla in curing scrofula, whether affecting the eyes or in the form of running sores, or any of the many other forms which this disease of the blood may assume. If you are troubled with scrofula, or impure blood in any way, give this great blood purifier a trial.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, June 11th.

A resident of Newcastle, whose premises have been defaced and injured by boys and young men until his buildings were half worn out and his patience wholly so, caught one of the biggest of them in the act, and made trouble for him then and there. This action of the irate property owner not being strictly according to the statutes, he was brought before the court and fined $8, with costs taxed at $9.96, which was at once paid.

Stephen Bosworth, charged with drunkenness, had his case continued to Friday forenoon, not being in just the proper condition for trial.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Maggie Mulvey, Granville master, from Port Johnson with 430 tons of coal to E. F. Sise & Co., arrived on the 11th. Also the schooner Charles H. Trickey, with coal to the Cocheco Manufacturing Co. of Dover, and others.

The schooner John Lenthall, Sawyer master, from New York for Exeter with coal, started up the river on the afternoon of the 10th inst. in tow of the steamer James Sampson.

The schooner E. A. Creed is this week being calked by Oliver Adams, preparatory to the summer's work in connection with the hotels at the Isles of Shoals.

The schooner Wm. M. Bird, which arrived at this port on the 10th inst. with nearly 1300 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker, is a four-master.

Mr. Augustus Stevenson of Kittery is building a yacht, which will be ready to put in the water this season. George W. Green and George L. Parks of this city are at work on her, a guaranty that the work will be well done.

The gondola "Cock of the Walk" came down river on the 10th inst. to load with lime ashes for Exeter from the schooner Lizzie Guptill, arrived the first of the week from Rockland. This gondola made a large number of trips up and down the river last season, and has this spring brought down from the up-river brickyards three cargoes of bricks to A. Brackett Trefethen.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

A special meeting of both branches of the city government was held Wednesday evening, for the purpose of providing money for the abatement of the North pond nuisance by the construction of a sewer, work upon which it is desirable to commence as soon as possible. An ordinance providing for the transfer of the money received from the sale of a part of the city farm in such a manner that it may be available for the building of a sewer, was submitted to the council and by that body referred to the committee on bills on their second reading, some of the council alleging that they were not familiar with the question and wanted some time to consider the matter. A similar ordinance was submitted to the aldermen and unanimously passed under a suspension of the rules and ordered sent to the common council for their concurrence.

Although it occasions some delay, the council perhaps did well to refer the matter to the committee on the second reading of bills. It is right and proper that important actions of this kind should be taken cautiously. As to the proposed plan, it is the most feasible yet proposed, embodying the ideas of every engineer and practical man who has ever had anything to do with the matter, or in any way investigated it, and we have no doubt that the council will soon come a favorable conclusion as to the matter and concur with the aldermen in the passage of the ordinance which provides the money. The subject is one which every citizen is more of less familiar with, it having been discussed very frequently in the last 12 or 15 years, and has been before every city government elected during that time. The citizens who have suffered long from the nuisance which has been created by the pond, are anxious that something should be done, and now look with favor upon the action of the committee who have worked hard that something might be done to abate this nuisance.

Hon. Frank Jones was given leave to encumber Warren street for building purposes, with the usual restrictions and under the direction of the street commissioner.

Hon. Marcellus Eldredge was given permission to encumber Morning street for building purposes. The matter of repairs on the water way on Creek street, referred to by Mr. Eldredge, was referred to the committee on repairing drains, with power.

The appointment of a superintendent of the fire alarm telegraph, was considered necessary, as Mr. Rogers who wanted to give whoever was appointed such instruction as may be necessary, was desirous of getting away. The committee on fire department recommended that Wilbur I. Trafton be appointed with a salary at the rate of $200 per year, he to to furnish all materials and to furnish a bond of $1000 acceptable to the board of aldermen.

Adjourned.—Times, 11th.

POLO.

At the Portsmouth skating rink, this evening, a game of polo will be played by lady poloists, whose performances have proved a great attraction in other cities, and have been witnessed by large audiences. Before the polo there will be an exhibition of fancy skating by twelve skaters. Tickets at Goodrich's bookstore.

CORPORATION MEETING.

The incorporators of the California Malt Co. held their first meeting at the Kearsarge house in this city on the 11th inst., and elected John W. Free, Isaac S. Morse, Andrew Wiggin, William Mansfield and Jas. L. Milliken as their board of directors for the ensuing year.

Subsequently at a directors' meeting John W. Free was chosen president, Isaac S. Morse vice president, Wm. Mansfield treasurer, H. A. Tarlton secretary, and Wm. H. Bailey clerk.

Patrick Quill, of Greenland, on Thursday reported to the police that his son had on the previous day taken a check for $15.54, payable to his (Mr. Quill's) order, and gone off with it. The police on enquiry learned that the check had been cashed at the First National bank, young Quill having forged his father's name.

On Tuesday of this week George W. Randall & Son received 300 lobsters taken on the eastern and western shores, just outside the harbor. On Wednesday John Hall's boat was towed in from Lemuel B. Caswell's at Smuttynose island, Isles of Shoals, with 600 lobsters; and William Brewster Brooks arrived in with 470. On Thursday William Randall brought in from Randall & Hiltz of Duck island, Isles of Shoals, 1600 lobsters of good size and in lively condition. Mr. Hiltz will shortly take up his summer residence at Rye beach, to supply the Farragut house with fresh fish during the season. Mackerel, which had for some days been hourly expected to strike in, had not up to Thursday put in an appearance; and other varieties of fish were reported scarce, though G. W. Randall & Son on that day received 1000 lbs. of haddock from the Becker Bros. of Newcastle.

Boynton's teams are kept very busily engaged at present in supplying families, stores and retail dealers with bottled lager and the various delicious summer drinks manufactured at his establishment on Bow street.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

That Tuesday of this week was an oppressively warm day, and Tuesday night an unusually cool one for the season, is pretty well known; but it may not be generally known that early on Wednesday morning the wharves were white with a very heavy frost, and that shallow puddles of fresh water on the wharves where the steamers had taken supplies, were skimmed with ice. No harm was done to vegetation, so far as we have heard.

One of the York stages took a heavy load of passengers and baggage across Portsmouth bridge on Thursday, on its outward trip. The York Harbor house, formerly the Goodwin house, will be opened to the public on the 15th inst., under the management of Horace Mitchell, Jr., of Kittery Point.

At C. W. Taylor's stove and kitchen-furnishings store, No. 44 Market street, can be found in variety ice-cream freezers, oil stoves and refrigerators of the best makes, and all the other household articles of convenience and comfort in the hot weather which from use have become indispensable.

Mr. Wm. E. Noyes of Kittery on Monday, the 15th inst., assumes a position with Mr. William Conn in his butter, cheese, pork and produce store corner of State and Pleasant streets. Mr. Conn deals only in the best articles in his line —"no oleo" in his"—and the practical knowledge of Mr. Noyes should make him a valuable aid to Mr. Conn in carrying on the large business he has built up by close attention and the squarest of square dealing.

A large number of loads of loose hay arrived on the Parade on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, from the adjacent towns in York county, Me. Seventeen dollars per ton was asked, but it was generally sold at $16. There is promise of a very heavy crop of hay this year in this vicinity, but the old stock is being very rapidly diminished.

The Congregational church and society of Eliot have invited Mr. James Lake to be their pastor, and a council will meet there on Tuesday, June 23d, to examine the candidate, and if found acceptable to ordain him to the Christian ministry.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a torpid or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

J. C. Whittaker, the cadet whose treatment at West Point made him famous, has just been admitted to the bar at Columbia, S. C. He is a good public speaker, is popular in Charleston and other South Carolina cities, and will probably make a successful lawyer.

Biliousness.

Is very prevalent at this season, the symptoms being bitter taste, breath offensive, tongue coated, sick headache, drowsiness, dizziness, loss of appetite. If this condition is allowed to continue, serious consequences may follow. By promptly taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, a fever may be avoided or premature death prevented. It is a positive cure for biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

Attention is called to the fact that the president and several of his cabinet ride in special railway cars placed at their disposal. When republicans did this it was the occasion of very hot democratic indignation.

I have been very much benefitted by a 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. When I began using it my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since to amount to anything. Please send me two more bottles.—John H. Summers, Stepney, Conn.

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove and destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, cover cellar or tide mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

"Oh, Clara, aren't these pretty?" said a stout, well-dressed lady to a small thin one as she examined the silver bracelets on the bargain-counter in a Fulton street store.

"Yes, they're altogether too pretty," piped out the little one.

"How much are they?"

"Eighty cents each," said the saleswoman, pointing to the sign in very large figures on the tray.

"Is that for a pair?"

"No, for a single one."

"Eighty cents each?" in an accent of surprise. "Have you any prettier than these? They look awfully cheap, don't they, Clara?"

"Yes, indeed," Clara piped.

"Here are some for $1.50," said the saleswoman, as she passed them a tray, meanwhile attending to the wants of a couple of other customers.

"They are sweet, aren't they, Clara? How would they look on me? How do you put them on? Would you mind putting them on for me?" This to the saleswoman, who quickly adjusted them and attended others. After a moment's admiration of the silver-encircled wrists, she resumed:

"Are these really silver?"

"Warranted," was the brief response.

"How can they sell them so cheap?" No answer.

"How much did you say they were?"

"A dollar and a half."

"I'll take the pair."

"That will be $3."

"What do you mean? You said they were $1.50 a pair."

"I don't think so."

"I know you did. Didn't she, Clara?"

"Yes," piped Clara.

"I wouldn't pay $3 for them. That's outrageous. I really believe they are only $1.50," with a slightly indicative emphasis. "Take them off, please."

They were taken off and the couple turned to go, and the saleswoman smiled wearily.

"See here, Clara," said the stout shopper, pointing to some oxidized chain bracelets at a cheap price, "wouldn't that fit Fido?"

"Yes," piped Clara.

"Do you think they'll fit a poodle? Oh, say, would you mind trying it on?" And the saleswoman meekly submitted to an attempt to fasten the bracelet about her neck.

"Oh, I don't think it would look nice. Let's go."

And the twain walked away, and the Union reporter, who had been an interested watcher, made a couple of purchases in as many minutes, and congratulated himself on his success in that direction.

He took the articles home, and his wife said:

"Dear me, you couidn't have looked about to make such selections as these. Let's go down to-night and look around."—Brooklyn Union.

The Kit Cat Club.

One of the most celebrated of London clubs was founded about the year 1700. It was a convivial assembly of young patriots, poets, and wits, and included among its members Montague, Dorset, Prior, Garth, and others. The club was originally formed in Shire Lane, about the time of the trial of the bishops, for a little free evening conversation. It is said to have derived its name from a certain Christopher Katt, a mutton-pie man and a pastry cook, whose house in Shire Lane was the place where the first meetings of the club were held. Being the chief society for the leaders among the Whigs, the membership included thirty-nine noblemen and gentlemen known for their warm attachment to the house of Hanover. The reputation of the club became literary, artistic, and political. During its existence the members included Sir Robert Walpole, the Duke of Marlborough, Addison, Steele, and other noted men. At the Kit Cat Club "used to meet many of the finest gentlemen and choicest wits of the days of Queen Anne and the first George. Halifax conversed and Somers unbent, Addison mellowed over a bottle, Congreve flashed his wit, Vanbrugh let loose his easy humor, Garth talked and rhymed."

Horace Walpole says the club, though generally mentioned as a set of wits, were in fact the patriots who saved Britain. Addison speaks of the origin of the club as convivial and remote. "Our modern clubs," says he, "are founded upon eating and drinking, which are points wherein most men agree, and in which the learned and illiterate, the dull and airy, the philosopher and buffoon, can all of them bear a part. The Kit Cat itself is said to have taken its origin from a mutton-pie."

The mutton pies made by Katt, the pastry cook in Shire Lane, used to form the standing-dish of the society at their suppers. Ned Ward, in his humorous account of remarkable clubs, claims that the cook's name was Christopher, and that he lived at the sign of the Cat and Fiddle, in Gray Inn's Lane. Ward says: "The cook's name being Christopher, he was called Kit for brevity, and his sign being the Cat and Fiddle, they very merrily derived a quaint denomination from puss and her master, and from thence called themselves the Kit Cat Club."

Arbuthnot wrote of the club a famous epigram which alluded to the name of the organization:

Whence deathless Kit Cat took its name,
Few critics can unriddle;
Some say from pastry cook it came,
And some from Cat and Fiddle.

From no trim beaux its name it boasts,
Gray statesmen or green wits;
But from its pell-mell pack of toasts,
Of old cats and young Kits.

Jacob Tonson, a celebrated bookseller, was the first secretary, and, it is said, the founder of the club. Patronized by his distinguished visitors, Christopher Katt moved his establishment to the Fountain Tavern, in the Strand. During the summer months the Flash Tavern, at Hampstead, was the scene of the club's revels. It was customary for the society to toast their favorite ladies at their meetings, and Garth wrote poems on the most celebrated beauties of the day, for their drinking glasses, which gave rise to the epigram written by Arbuthnot, already quoted.—Will M. Clemens, in the Current.

A Strange New York Trade.

A belated New York reporter found himself in front of a handsome house, on Madison avenue, at two a. m. A dilapidated wagon, drawn by an aged horse, stood before the house. The reporter noticed two men hurrying from the cart, with empty pans and pails, into the basement of the house, and returning speedily with the same filled to the brim. For a moment it looked like a burglary, but the presence of a policeman on the nearest corner was assurance to the contrary. One of the men paused as if to rest for a moment, and the reporter accosted him:

"What's the racket?"

"The same old thing. Free lunches, cheap restaurants and Eyetalians."

"I don't quite catch. What are you doing in the place?"

"Why don't you see, they've had a party there to-night, and a big supper. They've left three times as much as they've eaten, and we're buying it up from the steward. We'll take it around to our regular customers, and sell it all before nine o'clock to-morrow."

"Regular customers? Why, is this a regular trade?"

"Of course it is, and has been for over ten years. You see there are over a hundred parties given every night in New York. Nearly all of them are supplied by regular caterers. Now, they always put up a lot more than they want; because it would never do to have just as much as needed and no more. It would look just as if they were dead broke. Old families order generally twice as much as they use, new families three or four times as much, and shoddies five and ten times as much. Why, last week we took in a swell place where they had fifty people and they had enough grub for five hundred. Now, what happens? The party is over, and there's all that stuff left untasted. All they can do is to throw it into the swill-barrel. That's where we come in. We come along and buy it up. Sometimes we buy it from the caterer. Sometimes we make the deal with the cook or the butler, and sometimes, but not very often, with the old man of the house. Anyway, we manage to connect and get the stuff?"

"What do you do with the stuff?"

"Sell it to our customers. There's, first, the cheap restaurants. They're always ready to take anything cheap. Then there's the free lunch saloons. They don't pay much, but they'll take all you bring. There's one place down-town where they give a fried oyster, a sandwich, or something, with every drink. That man is one of my best customers.

"After you've worked the restaurants and free lunches, you can always sell out what's left to the Eyetalians. They'll buy anything if it's cheap enough."

"What do you get mostly from parties?"

"It all depends on the kind of party it is. Literaries are the worst of all; they only have coffee, sandwiches, and salad, and there's nothing left over. Musical are almost as bad. Kettle-drums and afternoon rackets are not much good either. The best is a wedding. Receptions to public men are the next best. Then come birthday, christening, and tin-wedding parties, etc."

"Do you ever get any wine?"

"No—o! The old man of the house always comes down and collars what's left. If he don't the waiters drink it, and they are always helped out by the servants. I've been in the business for ten years, and I never got even a half bottle. But I've got to stop, as I'm off now to Washington Market for our first customer."

Short on Wheat.

"Love you!" echoed the young man; "why, I'd walk through the fires of Hades to sit by your side for ten minutes!"

"That's awfully nice. I wish pa loved ma that way."

"Doesn't he?"

"O, no. She asked him at dinner for a $300 camel's-hair shawl, and he made her cry."

"How?"

"Why, he said that, with wheat touching a dollar, and he half a million bushels short on a delivery at 87 cents, she'd better be thinking of calico at 6 cents a yard. Why, what ails you, Augustus.?"

"I—I—that is, I've got to meet a man at sharp 3. Half a million bushels short, eh? Good-day, Miss Fairbanks."

And he went off kicking himself for not being in love with an ice-dealer's daughter.—Wall Street Daily News.

The young man who knows how to lay off corn and cotton rows, and to regulate the distance of the same so as to get the largest crops, is worth a cow-pen full of nice, kid-gloved, fancy-overcoated fellows who may know how to lead the german or capor around at a fashionable waltz. Siding cotton, setting a plow just right, and adjusting gears so that shoulders and backs of horses will never hurt, are worth a thousand-fold more to the country than knowing how to pose in a parlor or how to adjust the shade of the cravat to the complexion of the wearer.—*Carolina (S. Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

Is It Really Consumption?

Many a case supposed to be radical lung disease is really one of liver complaint and indigestion, but, unless that diseased liver can be restored to healthy action, it will so clog the lungs with corrupting matter as to bring on their speedy decay, and then indeed we have consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, in its worst form. Nothing can be more happily calculated to nip this danger in the bud than is Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By druggists.

A Letter of Thanks.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham; Very dear Madam: My wife Arie A. Green has suffered with a displacement which caused her unknown pains till I had almost given up all hopes of finding any relief for her. But the Guiding Spirit referred me to your Vegetable Compound. I went twelve miles to purchase a bottle and the first two doses gave her immediate relief, and after the use of the first bottle she declared herself a new person, two bottles entirely cured her. Your medicine is invaluable to me. It was indeed a messenger of peace in my house, it cured my wife, and God knows I am the happiest man alive to-day. Words cannot express our feelings towards you.

Dyspepsia.

GENTS:—I feel it my duty to say respecting Burdock Blood Bitters, that it is the best medicine I ever took. I suffered two or three years from stomach troubles and dyspepsia as what we call from liver and kidney complaint. I was not able to attend to my business. My wife was afflicted in much the same way. We read of your Bitters in the papers and made up our minds that we would try them. The result is my wife and I began to improve at once, and I am now able to do more hard work than before in ten years. It relieved my kidney troubles as well. We both wish you, the makers of it, Godspeed.

New Hampshire Legislature.

In the house, on the 11th inst., bills increasing the salary of the solicitor of Rockingham county to $800, and abolishing the present and establishing a new judiciary system, consisting of a superior court of judicature, with three justices, and a circuit court of five justices, were read and referred. The senate met the house in joint convention at eleven o'clock and proceeded to the election of state officers, the nominees of the republican caucus being elected.

On the morning of the 12th both houses adjourned to Monday evening, the 15th, and a majority of the members left Concord before night.

Mr. Blair's Renomination.

The following was the vote in the republican legislative caucus at Concord on the evening of the 11th inst., for a candidate for United States senator to be elected by the legislature June 10th:

Whole number of votes	198
Necessary for choice	100
James W. Patterson	4
Edward H. Rollins	16
Oscian Ray	12
Gilman Marston	14
Charles H. Burns	15
William E. Chandler	87
Henry W. Blair	100

Mr. Blair was notified of his nomination by a committee, and appeared before the caucus, making a brief speech of acceptance and thanks.

The Chicago Election Frauds.

Renewed interest in the Chicago election fraud cases has been developed by the confession of Charles E. Gilmore—, who was arrested for perjury on the trial of Mackin and Gallagher in the United States district court. Gilmore's perjury consisted of an attempt to show that tickets found in the 18th-ward ballot-box had been printed prior to the election, while the facts were clear that they were printed after the election and substituted for the ballots regularly cast. Gilmore now makes affidavit that the scheme of perjury was prepared by Mackin. He also confesses that he (Gilmore) participated in the substitution of the ballots, and declares that the entire affair was arranged by Mackin, Gallagher and a New York "Fine worker" whom he has described to the authorities. Gilmore carried the bogus tickets to the county clerk's office early on Monday, November 24th, and there gave the envelope to Thomas Dwyer, cashier of the county clerk's office, a person who has never heretofore been mentioned in connection with the crime.

A despatch from New River, Tenn., 100 miles above Chattanooga on the Cincinnati Southern railroad, says that a tunnel caved in on a construction train, June 11th, and six persons were killed and twenty wounded.

James Haggard, the man who acted as a decoy to the police while Professor Odlum made his fatal jump from the Brooklyn bridge, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for eight months. The accused was admitted to bail pending an appeal.

"An ounce of prevention worth a pound of cure," is an old adage but true. In view of predictions that this country is liable to be visited by more than an ordinary amount of contagious diseases this year, it behooves all to inquire about and practice every sanitary measure, especially cleanliness, which, as a preventative, offers one some means of escape at least; and in this how important the article of soap, as to quality fit for use; certainly all inferior grades, made so by foreign substances and adulterations of a questionable character, should be rejected, that there may be no taint left on the person or clothes which might in any way invite the germs of these various diseases. A first class article, made by known reliable manufacturers, is the only kind that can be safely used or recommended. In the use of a standard soap, like the "Welcome," made by Curtis Davis & Co., there can be no risk, being the goods of a firm whose name on soap is a sufficient guarantee of its purity.

Secretary Manning has ordered the revenue marine cutters to observe unusual vigilance, and particularly those which patrol the Atlantic coast from New England to the Virginia capes, to prevent the arrival of vessels infected with cholera, yellow fever or other contagion.

The United States steamer Pensacola, which arrived at Madeira on June 10th, reports that on May 27th she fell in with the wreck of the German bark Bertha Bahlowhs, from Darien April 7th for Newport, Eng., before reported abandoned. As the wreck was dangerous to navigation the Pensacola destroyed it by means of torpedoes.

A sensation has been caused in Kansas City, Mo., by the publication in the Times of that place of legal documents and interviews from Rochester, N. Y., going to show that Rev. Henry D. Jardine, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church of Kansas City, served a term of two years in Monroe penitentiary, New York, having been sentenced when he was seventeen years of age, for burglary. A libel for $50,000 has been for sometime pending against the Times for publishing charges of immorality against Mr. Jardine.

Ex-Gov. Hale on the 11th said to a reporter that he believed he could pay all his debts if he was allowed time.

THE MIGHTY DOLLAR.

The Government Millions Correctly Accounted For.

How a Dollar may be Wisely and Economically Expended.

"You may sin at times,
But the worst of all crimes
Is to find yourself short of a dollar or two."
—Old Paper.

"The count of the government money in the treasury has been completed, and the amount, $180,000,000, has been found correct to a cent."—Washington despatch.

The above brief paragraph suggests how much good even a small portion of the money which the government has stored away in its strong vaults would do in certain quarters. Even a dollar has in the past kept a family from starving, and many have doubtless perished for want of only a dollar. A dollar wrongfully expended has deprived many a man of reason and led to crime, while rightly expended it has conferred untold blessings.

It was a dollar expended for Hood's Sarsaparilla which showed Mr. Charles A. Roberts, of East Wilson, N. Y., how he might be cured of his terrible sufferings. Read his straightforward statement. It may be of great importance to you.

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with scrofula in one of its most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter, disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with chronic catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after taking twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming 'smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.' I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it."

Mr. W. J. Huntley, a well known druggist of Lockport, N. Y., says: "The statement of Charles A. Roberts is perfectly reliable. He began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for scrofulous ulcers by my advice, and when he had taken five or six bottles the ulcers had entirely disappeared. But he continued until he had taken twelve bottles, and stands to-day a well man. He stopped taking it about three or four months ago, and I was fearful that the ulcers would reappear, but they have not, and the case is certainly a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine now outsells all other blood purifiers in this city."

Are not the above statements conclusive proof of the medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla? This and many similar statements show that Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of the best medicines ever produced for scrofula in its most severe forms, whether hereditary or acquired; for Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, Ulcers, or any affections caused by impure blood.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, June 12th.

Stephen Bosworth, drunk, (case continued from the 11th,) was fined $8, costs $6.90. Jail in default of payment.

Ellen Sullivan, complained of by her husband for drunkenness, signed the pledge and promised earnestly never to drink any more intoxicants, on which she was allowed to depart.

MARITIME NOTES.

Mr. "Nattie" Yeaton, the veteran river boatman of the Piscataqua, came down to this city from Durham one day this week in an hour and a half, bringing as a passenger Mr. Stephen Paul.

The brick schooners Triton, Estella, Hattie Lewis, Lillie and Satellite arrived from Boston on the 12th, and proceeded up river to load. The Louisa Smith arrived on the same date from Elizabethport with 235 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker, and the Delia Hinds from Calais with 105,000 feet hemlock boards.

The rowboat "North-end Charmer," under command of Coxswain Joe. Hutton, with Timothy Sullivan as stroke and a crew of eleven other picked men, made her first trip of the season on the 7th inst., from Concord railroad wharf to Whalesback, then up the river to Dover point and back to the starting point, making quick time all the way.

A raft of logs belonging to Mr. Daniel Littlefield broke apart on the 10th inst. though coming in contact with Portsmouth bridge, and went down river on the go-as-you-please plan; but most of them were secured before reaching the narrows.

Hugh Hunter of Kittery on the evening of the 11th inst. started to cross the river from this city in a sailboat, but being very tired went to sleep on the way, and the flood tide (fortunately for him it was then nearly full sea) took the boat to Portsmouth bridge and wedged her in between two piles, breaking her mast in doing so. The police officers on the north-end beat became aware of the matter about ten o'clock, and procuring another boat went to the bridge and took Hunter out of his own boat, and brought him to the station to get rested. Hunter's boat was left in charge of the bridge watchman, who at slack water got it clear of the bridge and took it to a place of safety.

The chief engineer and clerk of the fire department were on Friday locating and delivering the keys to the fire-alarm boxes.

The first arrival of guests at Appledore was on Thursday, the 11th inst., when Dr. Sumner, wife, two children and two servants were taken out in the Pinafore, to stop for the entire season. A party of fifteen, from Baltimore, are to arrive on the 19th. The steamer Appledore, Capt. Bird, will commence her regular trips between this city and the islands on the 25th.

The statement that the $800 said to have been left to Faith Home by a deceased inmate had all been expended before her death in caring for her during the three years she was an inmate of the house, was correct; but the including of "doctor's bills" in the list of items which consumed it was an error, the physician (Dr. Folsom) rendering his services gratuitously, and having neither asked nor received any compensation for attending the old lady.

Our old friend G. W. S. Putnam, Esq., of York,—irreverently called "Bill Put" by the unregenerate, for short, — is bound to continue in the service of his country, democratic administration or no democratic administration, and from the 1st day of July, 1885, to the 30th of June, 1889, will daily (Sundays excepted) transport the mails from York to Portsmouth and from Portsmouth to York. So we are informed, at any rate.

A lobster weighing eleven pounds, and full and firm of flesh, was caught near Whalesback and brought in alive to Geo. W. Randall & Son on Friday, by Alock Amazeen.

The Methodist society of Greenland on Thursday evening last gave a strawberry festival in Brackett academy in that town, music being furnished by Miss Fannie P. Hoyt, violinist, and the Newington quartette club. A number of members of the Rockingham bicycle club went out from this city on their wheels, to take part in the festival.

At Springvale, a village in the town of Sanford, York county, shortly after midnight on the night of the 10th inst., six men armed with revolvers and stones visited the residences of several of the prominent temperance men of the place, breaking windows, firing revolvers through doors, and committing other outrages. They also attacked the Advocate office, and did some damage there. This ruffianism is supposed to be due to efforts made to enforce the liquor law in the town. None of the perpetrators were recognized. The scoundrels sent volleys of revolver shots into houses where women, children and unarmed old men were sleeping, with a perfect recklessness of results, and it is to be hoped they will get their deserts.

Wednesday afternoon, the 10th inst., Hon. Henry B. Cleaves and Hon. J. H. Drummond made the closing arguments at Wells before the York county commissioners, who were in session to determine the expediency of a bridge across the Ogunquit river, in the town of Wells.

The following officers were elected June 11th at the annual meeting of the York Manufacturing company in Saco, Me.: Treasurer, William G. Saltonstall of Boston; clerk, L. L. Milliken of Saco; directors, Thomas Wigglesworth, Samuel J. Snelling, Seth Bemis, James Longley, John F. Osgood, Henry S. Green and William G. Saltonstall, all of Boston.

Some two or three weeks ago a very young infant was left on the doorstep of Elder Vance, the "head man" of the Shaker family at Alfred, by whom the child was immediately put under the care of the selectmen of the town, who began an investigation, and by the aid of a name on a newspaper found with the child ascertained that parties in Limerick by the name of Smith were the guilty ones. On being accused the mother confessed, saying that she intended no harm, but thought as her family were poor that the child would receive better care at the hands of the Shakers. The "man of the house" and the mother have both been lodged in jail.

What is Vegetine?—It is a compound extracted from barks, roots and herbs. It is Nature's remedy.

WATERTOWN AND BRIGHTON STOCK MARKET.

For week ending Tuesday, June 9th.

Amount of live stock at market: Cattle, 1002; Sheep and Lambs, 2205; Calves, 1769; Horses, 153; Swine, 9,945.

Prices of Market Beef—A few choice, none; extra, $6 00 @ $6 50; first quality, $7 00 @ $7 50; second quality, $5 00 @ $6 50; third quality, $4 00 @ $4 50.

Prices of Store Cattle—Working oxen ⅌ pair, from $100 @ $225; Farrow cows, $15 @ $31; Fancy cows, $50 @ $80; Milch cows and calves, $25 @ $48; yearlings, $10 @ $20; two years old, $14 @ $30; three years old, $24 @ $42.

Swine—Western fat, live, 4 @ 4¼c ⅌ lb; northern dressed hogs, 5 @ 5¼c ⅌ lb.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs—In lots, $2 50, $3 00 @ $4 50 each; extra, $4 75 @ $5 25, or from 2½ @ 5½c ⅌ lb; spring lambs, $5 00 @ $9 00 ⅌ head; yearlings, 6½ @ 6½c ⅌ lb.

Veal Calves 2½ @ 5½c ⅌ lb.

The number of country cattle at Watertown was light, but with a quantity of western cattle the home trade was well supplied. We do not find the cattle market in any way improved as regards prices and activity. A number of western cattle found sale from $5 55 @ $6 00 ⅌ cwt, live weight.

Milch Cows—Supply fair with sales from $25 @ $75, as to quality. A lot of 7 springers were sold at $2 90.

The Sheep Market—Country lots were selling within the range of last week's prices. Now is the season when the supply from the north is the largest of the year. After the first of July next there will be arrivals of Canada lambs. The tone of the market is steady, but the demand is less urgent while veal calves are numerous. Sales this week are mostly confined to small lots.

Fat Hogs—Prices of last week fairly sustained on western, while northern dressed prts moved at 5 @ 5¼c ⅌ lb, dead weight.

Veals—Best grades ½c better in price.

Live Poultry—1½ tons sold at 13c.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

Quite an extensive revival of religion is in progress at Kennebunk Depot village, revivalists from Kennebunkport, Kennebunk Landing and Biddeford holding largely-attended and very interesting meetings three times a week in the Advent chapel at that place. The Advent church in that village has been practically closed for several years, but now the interest is greater than in any other reform in the vicinity. A number of conversions have occurred, and many backsliders have been quickened in the work.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicine relieves and cures a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to extreme measures for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Ten miners were killed and as many more injured by an explosion in the Santo Lebarcis de Lavata Grande mine, Mexico. Five hundred cases of giant powder had been accidentally set of.

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

Jack Darling of Lowell, Me., for violation of the game laws of that state, has been fined $40 and cost.

Educated and Experienced.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass., who have a thorough knowledge of pharmacy, and many years practical experience in the business. It is prepared with the greatest skill and care, under the direction of the men who originated it. Hence Hood's Sarsaparilla may be depended upon as a thoroughly pure, honest, and reliable medicine.

A majority of the kiln men of Rockland, Me., are on strike. They have been getting $1.75 per day, but they want $2.

I have been very much benefitted by a 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. When I began using it my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since to amount to anything. Please send me two more bottles.—John H. Summers, Stepney, Conn.

There was a frost Tuesday night, June 9th, in Norfolk county, Mass., which has probaly injured the early vegetables considerably.

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

The new despatch boat Dolphin made her sea trial of six hours on the 11th inst., loaded down with coal and iron to her deep waterline. The trip was entirely satisfactory, the boat making a higher rate of speed than was demanded by the specifications, without the use of her artificial draughts. She made an average speed of 14 1-10 knots an hour, and beat the Despatch fifteen miles in a three-hours run. The naval experts on board said that with a smooth sea she could make seventeen knots.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for the first and or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

A Difference of Opinion.

I met Andrew Carnegie the other evening, writes Clara Belle. He is the awfully rich Pennsylvania iron man, you know; and lately he has taken to lecturing forth his views on social topics. Having previously heard him say to an audience that the Chinese woman was compelled to be obedient to her father, her husband, and her eldest son, and that the American woman was, at all events, freed from the latter bondage—while practically so as to the second—I got up a conversation with him on that point.

"Our wives are let to do as they please, within the limits of propriety," said he; and then he quoted the couplet from a love poem that he had just read somewhere:

Blithesome maiden, fancy free,
I devote myself to thee.

He intimated that the devotion, beginning with courtship and lasting till death or divorce, was mostly on the man's side. What nonsense! I didn't say so, like that, to the millionaire; but I did argue to him that a girl is free only up to the time that she submits to betrothal, from which instant she is the bounden slave of a jealous master—forbidden to smile on any fellow else, or to control her goings and comings, or to scarcely wink without asking the permission of her tyrant. Fashion is wrong in compelling the affianced bride and the wife to submit so entirely to the will of her lord.

"Now, Mr. Carnegie, I said, "the language of the wooer whom you quoted ought, according to my notion, to be changed to something like this:

Blithsome maiden, fancy free,
O enslave yourself to me."

The Law Didn't Cover the Case.

A "lost, strayed or stolen" dude was arrested in Texas, with a parlor pistol in his pocket, and taken before the judge, a broad-shouldered, bluff sort of a man, who had roughed it on the plains before coming to the bench.

"What's the row?" inquired the court, glowering on the prisoner, who shivered like a man kindling the fire on a winter morning, and looked like he wanted to crawl under the table.

"May it please the court," replied the arresting officer, "the prisoner was carrying this pistol," holding up the weapon.

"Well, what of that?" changing front from the prisoner to officer.

"Your honor, the law says that a man who carries deadly weapons shall be fined or imprisoned."

"May be it does. It's none of my business to doubt your statement, but the law don't fit the case."

"Your honor, the prisoner had it in his pocket."

"I don't care where he had it. As long as it was in his possession, it wasn't a deadly weapon; for I'll bet a drove of steers such a looking bud of promise as he couldn't hit a four-story meeting house, with it, five steps. Turn him loose and give him his gun; the peace and safety of the commonwealth will not be disturbed."—Merchant Traveler.

An Old Acquaintance.

"I am so glad to know you, Mrs. Johnson. I am an old acquaintance of your husband."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, long years ago, twenty years ago, before he knew you. I was his first love. We were, indeed, betrothed."

"Yes, my dear," puts in Mr. Johnson. "Yes, that was very long ago."

"But you have not forgotten it, John, have you?"

"No, no; but——"

"Do you remember our parting? Oh, how sad!"

"Yes, it was; but——"

"We can talk about it now, for your wife must know me as a friend of her's as well. See this, Mrs. Johnson. Let me give you this. It was the ring John, your husband, pressed upon my finger when his heart was free, when we plighted our troth. I give it to you, because——"

"Why, John! I declare! If this isn't the ring you said you lost; the ring I gave to you when I was engaged to you in 1865."

"There's a coolness among the three now.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Discouraging an Artist.

Alex. E. Sweet, in an editorial letter, addressed to the editor of this paper, says:

Huddle is in New York. He has just got back from Munich, Germany. I forgot that you are not personally acquainted with Huddle. He is an artist, and probably the best in the south. He is a Virginian by birth, but after failing to destroy the United States government during the war he moved to Austin, Texas, where he has painted the portraits of most of the leading citizens.

For the last six months he has been in Munich, Germany, where the best beer in the world is brewed, studying the old Dutch masters. Huddle has come back with so much knowledge of techniques, compositions, mezzotints, etc., that I don't believe he has left any of them behind them. He is so full of art that he doesn't care to talk about anything else, but I have discouraged him.

"You must come around to my room at the Ashland House and see my pictures. I've got ahead of Rembrandt."

"Now, Huddle, stop right there. Quit bragging. You are pretty good at spoiling canvas, but it will take you a week or so to get ahead of Rembrandt. Why, there are not more than twenty or thirty painters in New York who are ahead of Rembrandt."

"I didn't mean that I was a better artist than Rembrandt, but that I had copied three or four of his heads."

"Now, look here, Huddle; I believe you have been doing the most of your work with a beer mug. Rembrandt only had one head. He was not in a dime museum."

After that he didn't say anything more about Van Dyke, Rembrandt, Rubens and the rest of the students at Munich for a day or so. Then he broke out in the same old place.

"I tell you, that portrait of Rembrandt, painted by himself, is wonderful. Such color! It is wonderful! Wonderful!"

"Painted his own face, did you say? There's nothing wonderful about that. Thousands of women paint their own faces, and Rembrandt couldn't touch them on color with a forty-foot pole. I know——"

"Quit your nonsense. Rembrandt used a mirror."

"Well, what of it? Some of the artists I am talking about did not use a mirror in painting their faces, but they used a glass, which is the same thing. I've known lots of men in Texas who used a glass and other ingredients in painting their own faces, and they never bragged about it like Rembrandt. Of course, I have never seen the coloring of Rembrandt's face, but if it had more color in it than the faces of some of the San Antonio artists, he is a good one, sure. I am willing to concede that some of the Dutch artists were good at painting faces, but, tell me, did you see at Munich or any other German city, an artist who could come up to Ben Thompson in painting a town red? Ben was a poor Texas boy, and had no classical advantages. Don't go back on Texas. I know you are going back to Texas, but don't go back on Texas. Own up, now, that Ben Thompson had real genius."

Huddle refused to talk to me much more on that subject, but a few days afterwards he broke out again:

"Can anything equal the old Dutch masters?"

"Now, Huddle, quit blowing about the old masters. I knew lots of old masters in the south before the war, some of them owned lots of niggers, and those old southern masters were gentlemen from the ground up, and they were the equals of any old Dutch masters that ever lived. Some of their former slaves will tell you so to this day, and living in Texas, you ought to know it. How many niggers did Rembrandt own before the war? How many bales of cotton did Rubens raise to the acre? Talk to me about your old Dutch masters."

That quieted him. I think you will have a chance to see him. He is going back to Texas pretty soon. Ever since I told him that you loved art, and had treated me on credit at the saloon at the Little Rock depot, he talks of going home to Texas by that route, and stopping over for a week or so with you. He wants to show his mug, his Bavarian beer mug I mean. You will enjoy his talk about the old masters at the depot saloon at Little Rock.—Ark-Traveler.

The Only Fighting Apostle.

It is well known that the late Elias Howe, Jr., the inventor of the sewing-machine, not only enlisted as a common soldier in the ranks of the Seventeenth Connecticut Regiment, carried a musket and did full military duty during the war, but at a certain juncture when national finances were at a low ebb, he paid soldiers of the regiment their wages for three months out of his own pocket. Relative to this incident P. T. Barnum yesterday told the following story, never before published:

While Mr. Howe was counting out the money referred to, a stranger who was a clergyman entered the tent and said he had heard of Mr. Howe's liberality and had called to ask him to contribute toward building a church for his congregation.

"Church, church," said Mr. Howe, without looking up from the bills which he was counting. "Building churches in war times when so much is needed to save our country! What church is it?"

"St. Peter's Church," replied the clergyman.

"Oh, St. Peter's," said Mr. Howe. "Well, St. Peter was the only fighting apostle—he cut the man's ear off. I'll go 500 on St. Peter, but I am spending most of my money on salt-petre now."

Turned to Stone.

Twenty-one years ago the mother of Mr. A. D. Newland died and was buried in the old family graveyard. Desiring to have the body placed in Buffalo Spring cemetery, Mr. Newland had it disinterred Tuesday, when it was found that it had turned to stone. Those who saw it state that the face, save that it had changed to a brownish hue, was almost life-like in its naturalness. The features were good, and even the hair on the face could be plainly seen. The hands were perfect and had not changed color. The case was a metallic one, and inside the lining appeared fresh and clean. The grave clothes were all in a good state of preservation, and the ribbons and laces looked like they had just been placed there. An effort to get Mr. Newland to place the remains in the vault proved unavailing, and so fearful was he that they would be sought by scientific men that he placed huge stones on the coffin and rammed the earth around it with heavy mauls. The case was very heavy, requiring several men to handle it.—Stanford Journal.

Several cows in pastures at Cape Elizabeth, Me., were poisoned last week with Paris green by some person unknown.

"I have no appetite," complains many a sufferer. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives an appetite and enables the stomach to perform its duty.

The seventeen-year locusts have appeared in vast numbers in central New Jersey.

Doctors!

Of all the different schools in the country, have thousands die every year of Bright's disease of the Kidneys, who could be living to-day if they had used Sulpher Bitters. They are unequalled in the world for all diseases of the kidneys.—New Haven Union.

A week or so ago a horse belonging to Benjamin Odiorne of Rye came to the conclusion that his shoes needed something done to them, and leaving his home went alone to a blacksmith shop three-quarters of a mile away, where he had before been shod, and where his wishes were again attended to, after which he returned home.

Cure for Croup.—Use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil according to directions. It is the best remedy for all sudden attacks of colds, pain and inflammation, and for injuries.

Mrs. Nora Nolan of South Berwick, aged about eighty years, while walking on the Boston & Maine railroad track Saturday forenoon was instantly killed by a passenger train bound from Portland to Boston.

Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer is a sure and safe remedy for coughs, colds, diphtheria and pneumonia. Before the public 40 years. Has saved thousands of lives. 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Try it.

Mr. John O. Berry of Rye on the 26th of March last bought a pair of ducks, one of which since that time has for seven days laid two eggs a day. Mr. Berry says that any person doubting the truth of this statement may call on him, and he will prove its correctness. We presume he can show the very eggs.

Ely's Cream Balm has cured me of catarrh of several years standing. I have recovered my sense of taste and smell. The Balm has no equal as a cure. FRANK C. OGDEN, Elizabeth, N. J. Apply with finger.

After using a large number of preparations for catarrh, I have become satisfied that of them all Ely's Cream Balm gives me the most relief. I can recommend it to any one who may have catarrh, cold in the head or hay fever.— S. B. LEWIS, Principal Graded School, Clinton, Wis. Easy to use. Price 50 cents.

—Simpkins and his landlord occupy flats in the same house in New York. The landlord has several times raised the tenant's rent when the latter betrayed evidence of growing prosperity. A few days ago when Simpkins came home to dinner he smelled roast turkey. "What do you mean by having such expensive things as roast turkey for dinner?" said Simpkins to his wife; "don't you know our landlord will raise the rent on us if he smells it?" "He will not be a particle the wiser if he does smell it," responded Mrs. Simpkins. "How is that?" "Because he has got roast turkey himself to-day. If he smells our turkey he will think he is only smelling his own turkey. I asked his cook what they had for dinner before I bought our turkey."

Suffering Womanhood.

Too much effort cannot be made to bring to the attention of suffering womanhood the great value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the diseases of women, and perhaps nothing is more effectual than the testimony of those who have been cured by it. Such an one is the wife of General Barringer of Winston, N. C., and we quote from the General's letter as follows: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Please allow me to add my testimony to the most excellent medicinal qualities of your Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Barringer was treated for several years for what the physicians called Leucorrhea and Prolapsus Uteri combined. I sent her to Richmond, Va., where she remained for six months under the treatment of an eminent physician without any permanent benefit. She was induced to try your medicine and after a reasonable time commenced to improve and is now able to attend to her business and considers herself fully relieved." [General Barringer is the proprietor of the American Hotel, Winston, N. C., and is widely known.]

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eod,ly&w

"Keep politics out of naval construction and naval management," said William E. Chandler at the Concord dinner the other night. William's position reminds us of a Scotch minister invited by a friend to take a drive. During the ride the horse showed signs of becoming unmanageable, and the minister said: "Soothe your horse, Jemmy. Don't irritate the animal. Perhaps I had better get out." Once on terra firma, his tone changed, and he said: "Now Jemmy, give it to him. Never allow your horse to get the better of you."—Boston Post.

The First Issue.

The first issue brought before the republican members of the general court was that of the case Woods vs. Putney. Woods wanted the state printing kept in Mr. Chandler's office, and Putney desired it sent to Manchester. Woods went all over the state before the legislature assembled, and saw the members in advance. Putney was on hand at Concord to do his work as the representatives gathered in. Then Chandler, who seldom opens his mouth for an after-dinner speech without putting his foot in it, made a silly and impolitic speech at the dinner of the Amoskeag Veterans. Manchester was offended, and Putney had a perfect walkover. Col. Clarke very properly remained at home, while Chandler, attempting to carry an office on either shoulder, tripped and lost both. The result last week at Concord seems to show that if this is not as "able a house" as the last, as some of the disappointed contend, it manages to perform its duties speedily, and satisfactorily to the people, while the unloading of the "able" obstructionists has proved most beneficial to the state, and to the republican party, which will progress all the better for having thrown overboard its too heavy deckload.

The President Makes a Good Selection.

The appointment of Richard R. McMahon of West Virginia to be deputy second comptroller is an excellent one. Mr. McMahon is a gentleman familiar with duties in the treasury department, having served in a prominent position in the office of the first comptroller. He possesses excellent business traits, is of scholarly tastes, and has in times past developed no little skill as a journalistic correspondent. The appointment is in every respect a creditable one to the good judgment of the executive.

The various ambitious candidates for senatorial honors will at once return to their pursuits of happiness in other directions. Mr. Chandler will learn the printer's trade at the Statesman office in order to be a candidate for state printer with practical accomplishments two years hence; Gen. Marston will bend his energies toward accomplishing the passage of a law increasing the salary of the county solicitor; Mr. Ray will study up the Bemis will case; Mr. Burns will consider how much better off the Low and road would have been in regard to legislative action had Col. George been in charge of legislative duties at this session; Ex-Senator Rollins will devote himself to farm loans and the hay crop at Rollinsford.

The Boston Post deprecates the use of money by candidates for elective office. This evil has been a source of much solicitude among the class of politicians in the democratic party who have in several states been obliged to give way to the possessors of barrels. The election of Mr. Blair, whom Mr. Chandler published was so poor that he was obliged to do his own electioneering, instead of retaining, as was done in regard to the nomination of state printer, political workers in every county, has probably convinced the Post that the people and not the millionaires should designate candidates for office.

It is stated that Col. George has invited a number of prominent democrats in the state to meet at Concord, to consider if it is advantageous to the democracy to have all the federal offices in the state filled by one man, or whether incumbents should be designated by the joint action of the heretofore accredited leaders of the party in accordance with ancient usage.

The store of Fred S. Wendell, corner of Deer and Market streets, was broken into during Friday night, and tobacco and other goods carried away; the exact value is not known, but as near as Mr. Wendell can estimate, the value of the stolen goods is upwards of $15. An entrance was effected through a back window by breaking a square of glass, throwing back the catch and raising the lower sash.

The schooners Hattie L. Curtis and Evergreen came down the river on the 13th from Dover, where they had discharged cargoes of coal, and proceeded to sea—the former bound for Bangor and the latter for New York. The John J. Hanson sailed for the Kennebec to load ice for a southern port. The D. K. Ham and Estella sailed for Boston with bricks; and the G. W. Raitt, which arrived from Boston, light, proceeded up river to load at the brickyards.

The schooner Gulnare, of York, Goodwin master, was at the draw of Portsmouth bridge on Saturday morning, having on board twenty-five tons of pressed hay from Samuel Dixon of Eliot, bound for Boston.

A TALK WITH A VETERAN.

Butler in New Orleans—Sheridan in Shenandoah Valley.

President Bennett, Erie Telephone Co.—Post 120, G. A. R.

"O yes, I could talk for hours about my long service in the army, and I can sit and hear others tell of their experiences in the service," said Mr. Albert Estes, a well known member of J. A. Garfield Post 102, G. A. R., Lowell, Mass.

"What regiment were you in?" he was asked.

"I was in the Twelfth Maine. Enlisted in 1861, and in the spring of 1862 went to New Orleans, under General Butler. Our regiment was first quartered in the U. S. Mint in New Orleans, and afterward was in various places in Louisiana, and on Ship Island. We had a good many skirmishes there, but saw the severest fighting when we were sent to Virginia in '64. We were with Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley, Aug. 19; fought at Winchester, Sept. 19, and at Cedar Creek, Oct. 19."

"Were you ever wounded?"

"Fortunately not; but I had some very narrow escapes. I had a bullet go through my blouse and shirt in two places, and was struck in the abdomen by a piece of shell; but neither even broke the skin. In fact, I had nothing so serious in my whole army experience as that which affected me the past three years."

"What was that, Mr. Estes?"

"Why, it was a terrible scrofulous sore on my leg. You see, from boyhood I have had a scrofula or salt rheum humor, which broke out occasionally in sores. I once had a large bunch come in my neck, which grew into a running sore, and troubled me a long time. The most serious affection appeared three years ago. From a slight injury to my right leg, between the knee and ankle, there came, as the result of a cold and humor, a running sore, which was SIMPLY TERRIBLE.

At one time it covered a place fully six inches long by three or four inches wide. I was obliged to keep it bandaged constantly, and when I changed the bandage every night it caused a severe burning sensation. The sore was also very sensitive, and when at work a slight touch would cause it to bleed, and pain intensely. When I had suffered in this way about a year, I happened to be reading of the cures Hood's Sarsaparilla had effected in cases similar to mine, and I decided to give it a trial. In connection with the Sarsaparilla, I used Hood's Olive Ointment for the purpose of cooling and soothing the sore, and it served its purpose admirably. The effects of the Sarsaparilla were also soon apparent. The sore began to grow less, and in a few months had entirely healed, leaving a large scar which I suppose I shall always have upon me. My blood seems to have been thoroughly purified, as I have not been troubled by the humor in any way since, though before I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was seldom free from it in some form. I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to anybody troubled with scrofula or salt rheum, or impurity of the blood."

Hon. James W. Bennett, President of the Erie Telephone Company, and a leading Contractor and Builder of Lowell, says: "Mr. Estes has been in my employ as a boss carpenter for 14 years, and is a thoroughly honest, reliable man. Whatever he says may be relied upon as strictly true."

Past Commander H. M. Potter says Mr. Estes is a valued member of Post 102, G. A. R.

Such a statement as the above, from a man so thoroughly reliable, is certainly convincing evidence of the value of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for scrofula, salt rheum, boils, pimples, or any other affection caused by impurity of the blood. If you need anything to purify your blood, give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

The ex-secretary of the navy tried his "Wood-preserving process" on the legislature, with a poor result. The members would not be "wooed" in that way. The state printing this week comes from the etablissement Francois.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, June 13th.

John Sullivan, for drunkness, was fined $5, costs being taxed at $6.90. He appealed, and furnished bonds in $100 for his appearance at the October term of the supreme court.

John Sullivan, for an assault on Officer Ozro J. Hobbs, was held in $200 for the supreme court, and furnished the required bonds.

Andrew Geddie, for an assault on John Lyons, was fined $5, costs $6.90, which he paid.

THE FEMALE POLO PLAYERS.

If any of the young men about town attended the Portsmouth skating rink on Friday evening, on the occasion of the polo [contest between two clubs of female players, in expectation of seeing an exhibition verging on impropriety if indeed not overstepping the line, they were egregiously "sold," the young women being modestly attired, and far more circumspect and reserved in their communications with the other skaters on the floor (there was general skating after the polo game was over) than are the majority of the young girls who attend the public rinks. They are evidently under good discipline, and carefully looked after by their manager. They are good skaters; and persons who understand the game—which we don't—say they play good polo. There was a very good attendance of spectators, and there would have been still more there had the unobjectionable nature of the entertainment been generally understood. The "Pythian Blaines" beat the "Pythian Clevelands" in the polo match, three goals to two.

THE ROCKINGHAM.

The part of the old Rockingham house on Warren street which was once the stable of the Woodbury Langdon mansion, was taken down last week. It was a substantially built structure; the roofing-boards were nailed with the wrought nail of the period of its construction. Very many years ago the second story was finished on the inside, and used as a billiard room, the only reminder of the stable uses being where the round window, such as is seen in brick stables built here nearly a hundred years ago, and made to allow hay to be pitched in, had been bricked-up to make an ordinary square window. Of late years the building had been used for storage of supplies, etc. It has been entirely taken down, and there will be put up in its stead a building of three stories, the upper two to be used as sleeping rooms.

The boilers will be taken into the yard between this extension and the main house, so that the heat from the furnaces will not be felt in summer, while danger from fire, etc., will be materially decreased. The plumbing work at the Rockingham is being done by the plumbers from the Machine Shop. There are seven bath rooms. No set-bowls will be placed in sleeping apartments; this is in accordance with the latest ideas that the possibility of sewer gas coming into sleeping rooms through these pipes makes it dangerous to health to have bowls set in this way. The number of men employed on the new work, and the care taken to have everything completed in the most thorough manner in every respect, convince one that in point of comfort, elegance and solidity in structure, the Rockingham will be second to no hotel in the country.

SEND 'EM UP.

Information having been given to City Marshal Norton last week that four tramps had for several days been infesting the Creek district, begging at houses, and terrifying women whom they found alone, the marshal on Saturday took a walk around that region, and discovered four bummers asleep in the Woodbury field. Summoning a couple of the officers as quickly as possible, they proceeded to the place and caught two of the fellows, the other two escaping.

A dose of the tramp law administered occasionally is a good thing to teach these gentry caution—teaching them decency is of course out of the question. They care nothing for a few weeks at Brentwood, where they get more and better food than they are accustomed to when at liberty, and whence they can decamp without any great difficulty if they get tired of stopping; but lying in jail until the supreme court sits, and then taking a spell at hard labor in the state prison, touches their feelings. They have been getting rather bold of late; send a few of them up, as a reminder to the profession that the tramp law is still in force.

DEMOCRATIC "REFORM."

The Dover Republican tells the following story as illustrating democratic Reform (with large "R") in the administration of the government:

Mr. Charles H. Card of Newcastle has been mail carrier from Portsmouth to that town for many years past. He is a staunch and honest republican, and has done the job for $100 per year. He put in his bid this year for the same sum, $100, and it was the first to be on file in Washington for that place. Another man, a democrat, put in a bid to carry it for $190 per year, and in strict accordance with democratic reform Postmaster-General Vilas, or those of his understrappers who have charge of the machine, gave the job to the democrat for $190. The democrat then came home and sublet it for $100 to Mr. Card, the republican, who offered to do it for the government for that sum. The democrat puts $90 in his pocket for the trouble of getting the appointment. How is that for democratic reform? Is that democrat one of Frank Jones' pets? That is a specimen of the manner in which the present administration will conduct business.

ON DIT,

That the Portsmouth delegation will take their thin suits to Concord this week;

That several house owners in different places in this state and in Maine have contracted with the Portsmouth Machine Co. to put steam heating apparatus in their houses before the next cold term sets in;

That Reuben J. Donnelly of Manchester wants to be master plumber at the navy yard;

That the Kennard mansion on Austin street has been sold to the Catholic society, which owns other real estate in the neighborhood;

That by reason of a bountiful supply of water the factories at Manchester are using less coal than common, and the receipts at this port this season are expected to be lighter than usual;

That Capt. Bradford of the navy is on duty as a member of the board of inspection at Norfolk, Va., and with the board will visit all the navy yards north of Norfolk this week and next.

The single stroke on the north church bell last week, about two minutes before the striking of the hour of twelve at noon, signified noon by the time of Cambridge (Mass.) observatory. The single blow is struck by Mr. Wilbur I. Trafton, superintendent of the electric fire alarm, who has in his store a regulator in communication with Cambridge. On Sunday the single stroke was given at half-past twelve o'clock, Cambridge time, and we understand this will be the rule in the future, thereby avoiding any possible interference with the striking of the clock, and being more readily noticed than if struck at high twelve.

Sunday last was "Children's day," and there were special services appropriate to the little people in the Methodist and Middle street Baptist churches; the Methodist church was handsomely dressed with flowers, and a dozen or more birds in cages made the services bright with their singing. At the Pearl street church the pastor, Rev. J. D. Waldron, preached a sermon especially adapted to children in the forenoon, and in the evening a children's praise and promise meeting was held. Rev. C. P. Smith on Sunday preached in the Court street Christian church, now without a pastor; and Rev. Swift Byington of Exeter preached in the Congregational church, on exchange with Rev. W. A. McGinley.

The plank conduit which the last city government laid from low-water mark to a tank on the made land beside the new part of Vaughan street near the Raynes estate, is being extended by the present officials about forty feet westward, and the tank will be placed at its end, so that fire engines can reach it from the street. The work progresses slowly, as the tides have to be observed, and a great number of huge pine timbers and logs have to be cut through; these logs are part of the old wharf, and have been there probably over a hundred years, and some of them possibly double that length of time; one of them, apparently a capsill, was sided out about three feet square, free of sap; and the wood of all is as sound and bright as when they were laid down. Alderman Littlefield is in charge of the job, which when completed will be well worth its cost.

The canker worms are doing a great deal of damage in Eliot.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

A special meeting of the Common Council was held Friday evening for the consideration of the ordinance transferring the money received from the sale of the city farm to an appropriation for the abatement of the North pond nuisance. The members discussed the bill and the merits of the case at considerable length quite informally. The result of their deliberations was the passage of an ordinance, similar to that passed last Wednesday evening by the aldermen.

The following is the report of the committee on bills on second reading, which was accepted and adopted:

Your committee report in relation to the ordinance abating the North mill pond nuisance, recommending that the bill be amended so as to read $20,000 instead of $22,366.60, and that there shall be appointed a special committee of the councilmen from each ward with the president of the council to act in conjunction with a similar committee from the board of aldermen in the abatement of the North mill pond nuisance, and that no part of the said $20,000 shall be paid for work to any person not a citizen of Portsmouth, and that all materials used in the construction of the sewer shall be purchased of Portsmouth dealers.

The committee appointed in accordance with the provisions of their ordinance consists of the president of the council, Messrs. Ward, ward 1; Stackpole, ward 2; Hand, ward 3, and Gray of ward 4.—Times.

COUNTY LEGISLATIVE CONVENTION.

A meeting of the Rockingham county delegation in the legislature was held last Thursday at Concord. The convention organized by the choice of John J. Bell of Exeter for chairman and J. E. Simpson of South Newmarket as Secretary.

Leonard A. Morrison of Windham and John F. Magraw of Portsmouth were elected Auditors for the ensuing two years.

The mattery of increasing the salary of the county solicitor was introduced, and Attorney General Tappan came before the convention and spoke earnestly in favor of the proposed increase.

On motion of Major Urch of Portsmouth the matter was postponed to the next meeting, in order to give the convention time for its consideration.

The convention adjourned to meet Thursday, June 18th.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they present to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex, Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Three Reasons

Why every one needs, and should take, Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than at any other time. Take it now.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars; and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

American Literature.

In an interview with a reporter of the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph Mark Twain said:

"It seems to me, however, that there has been a wonderful advance of late years in the general tone of the magazines. There has been no 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table,' to be sure, but what do you expect? You do not want more than one 'Autocrat' in a century—you cannot hope for more than one. Such men as Holmes, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Fields and others of that school upheld the literary reputation of two generations and made the Atlantic so brilliant. Most of these men have gone, but the general work in magazines is far superior to that of ten years ago. The trouble is that the two or three magazines which are a good market for a writer and which can aid him in his work for fame are over-crowded. The Century has perhaps $100,000 worth of accepted articles in its vault which may not appear for years. They are pushed aside by articles on timely topics which cannot be delayed. There are other magazines, it is true, but when you send them an article you send them a burial permit with it, for you know that it will be entombed even if it is printed. These combinations of newspapers which print stories and sketches once a week will, it seems to me, give rising and capable writers the field they desire as well as the market. Charles Dudley Warner told me of one of these syndicates which is in charge of Thorndyke Rice, of the North American Review. He has fifteen of the leading papers of the country which pay liberally for a page of matter for their Sunday issue, or for any other day they may select. The idea is, I believe, to give at least one sketch or story by some very well known writer in each issue, and give other articles on the same page by clever people not so well known. This will bring into Mr. Rice's hands about $10,000 a month to pay his corps of writers. He can pay them just as good if not better prices than any of the magazines, and besides he can handle matters of passing interest before the magazines get at them. Mr. Rice has written to me and has offered me handsome terms for articles. He seems to think I am a magazine writer, but I really am not."

"He has asked Mr. Henry Irving to write for him, also."

"His he? Well, the idea is to have at his command the men who are eminent in all the branches of art, literature, drama, the sciences and professions. There are few good writers of short stories now, and there never have been very many. Such men as Poe and Aldrich stand out so that you can at once recall them. I do not believe in the decrying of the books of the day, which are so common. I admit I am not a careful reader of novels. I read portions of them, but do not read them through with the care some of them deserve. Much of my opinion is based upon what I hear of men and women of sound judgment whom I know intimately and whom I can rely upon. Take Hawthorne as an example of my peculiar literary bent of thought. It has been quite a custom to speak of him as the greatest of all American romancists. I read him now and then for his style, the exquisite manner in which he writes, but I do not care for his stories, for I do not think they are as great as many others by American writers. Howells' newspaper man, who is brought before the public a second time in 'Silas Lapham,' is a wonderful creation, a photograph of many such men who do exist; not a cheerful, nice sort of a man to sit at a communion table, perhaps, but still a strong, living man. I was in Europe when Henry James' 'Daisy Miller' reached there. I chanced to be where there was a great many American ladies, and I must confess I never heard a literary production so roundly denounced as was 'Daisy Miller.' It was called an absurd exaggeration, a gross libel on the American girls, and all sorts of things. Nothing was too bad to say of it. And yet within a few hours I heard these same ladies allude to young American girls as perfect 'Daisy Millers,' and saw them point out to each other girls who just fitted into the description of that irrepressible young lady. The work has been cavilled at and found fault with, but it is true, and just and close to the truth in spite of all that. The blemishes complained of in recent American books are to be found just as readily in English works as those of other countries."

The Arabian Nights.

In a letter written by Rev. Robert Hall to Sir J. Mackintosh, in the third year of the present century, we read of a gentleman who, before the age of 17, had made himself master of Hebrew, Caldee, Persian, Arabic, and Turkish, besides Latin and Greek and French and Italian, and many other languages. This gentleman, who began Arabic at 9 and Chinese at 14; who was devoted to the study of music; who was well skilled in horsemanship and in the management of the cimetar and lance; who had the eye and pencil of an artist, and a deep-rooted sense of religion in addition to other physical and moral excellencies, was Claudius James Rich. It is he who gathered together, while consul at Bagdad, the fine collection of Oriental manuscripts in over eight hundred volumes, which having been purchased by parliament for the British museum, now forms a portion of what is termed the manuscript department of our national library. Of this large collection, Nos. 7,405, 7,405, and 7,406 are the three codices, composed of Oriental paper, the first small quarto and the other two 12mo., containing altogether some six hundred folios of "The Arabian Nights," written in the Naskhi character, or that of modern Arabic by various penmen, who are not on all occasions to be congratulated on the care bestowed on their writing or the perspicuity of their meaning.

"The Arabian Nights" is not a tale emanating from one person. It is a vehicle for many tales told by various story-tellers with very different degrees of ability. Many of the stories in the Rich MSS. present a remarkable similarity to western anecdotes. Nor will any reader be surprised at this who remembers how closely connected is the old history, first told by Galland in a western tongue, of Schahriar and Schahzenan with that of Aristo's "Orlando," or the genie imprisoned in the brazen vessel in the story in the Fisherman, with the "Diablo Conjuelo," in a vial of Luis de Guevara, or the "Sleeper Awakened," with the induction to "The Taming of the Shrew," or "The Enchanted Horse," with Chaucer's "Steed of Brass," on which Pierre carried off the fair Maguelone, afterward imitated by Cervantes in his "Clavileno."—London Society.

Washington Oddities.

There were only three hundred copies of the trial of Guiteau printed at the government printing office, and these were controlled exclusively by the department of justice. Certain speculators have, however, managed to get the most of them in their control. The report of the trial is only valuable from the fact that it contains a great deal of "expert" testimony on the question of insanity, which lawyers use frequently in other cases. It is generally admitted now, however, that the testimony offered by the defense was much more valuable than that offered by the prosecution, from a legal as well as a scientific standpoint. Congress refuses to perpetuate the record by increasing the number of copies, the opinion being that the history of the case ought to be blotted out.

"You would be surprised," said a postoffice official, "how many people send live snakes, frogs, centipedes, miniature alligators, and things of that kind through the mails. When the postal employes ascertain what is in the perforated tin cases that are generally used in sending such stuff they always throw them away, for they do not want to run the risk of being poisoned by them. The people who put up such mail are as a rule intelligent people, and know full well that they are unmailable, but they persist in sending it. As it is, not over one in ten of these unmailable packages are discovered. The senders take the chances of discovery.

German Broadway.

Of Germany Broadway is a perfect psychological map. The supercilious, purse-proud Bremen or Hamburg merchant is accosted by the poor little flower-girl from Hesse-Darmstadt, "Kaufen sie doch blumen, sie sind ja auch ein Deutscher!"—"Pray buy our flowers, we see you are a German." But Mein Herr Apfelbauer walks on with an air of wounded vanity to think that a poor, dirty child should see, under the veil with which he strives to cloak it, the common faderland, Herr Apfelbauer's highest ambition since he dined with Bunges Brothers, of Crosby square, at their rustic box at Highgate, being to walk with precisely the same air as the first partner of the firm, and pass for a pure-blooded English merchant. Scarcely has the wound inflicted by the innocent tongue of Hesse-Darmstadt been healed than mein herr stumbles on his bookkeeper, who is from Coblentz on the beautiful Rhine, upon whose classic and ruin-clad banks the Yankee traveler who had sailed in the pleasant little steamer from Colonge to Mayence will remember Ehrenbreitstein, where so many French nobles, as the luminous pages of Taine and the gossiping pages of their Murray will tell them, sought a sweet retreat from the guillotine of Robespierre and the avenging rage of Danton. From every spot of faderland comes a deputy to the great congress of counties which meets on Broadway—a Bavarian from the Rhineish Bavaria and from Munich in Bavaria proper, where old fool Louis enacted his love scenes with great Lola; strange-looking Jews from Prague in Bohemia and Breslau in Silesia, doing business in wool and rags and drugs; Saxons proper in contradiction to Anglo-Saxons, with impertinent fair hair, from Wurtemberg, where Luther thundered against Rome; a regular thick-brained good-natured, sauerkraut and Pfaumenbluethe eating Austrian from Vienna, the old Kaiserstadt; the Prussian from Aix-la-Chapelle, where in good old Saxon days the German emperors were wont to meet and in dull modern ones big, gaping Britishers pay ten silbergroschen apiece to stare at the crown which was worn by Charlemagne; walk into that store where some foolish youth, with soft confusion, has cunningly cozened into some emblematic charm a hustet of his love's dark tress or curiously set some sparkles of her sunny hair, or a bright Tyrolese will remind you, if your heart beats for liberty, of Andreas Hofer, or of some graceful Swiss girl bring back the memory of William Tell; or go into yonder Italian grocery, just a block off, on third street, and you will find the Sicilies and Tuscany and Parma all represented in the buyers round the counter. Pause for a moment and look back at the motly picture I have drawn. Are the groupings true, the coloring faithful? If so, what other land could furnish such a picture?—New York Citizen.

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

Suffering Womanhood.

Too much effort cannot be made to bring to the attention of suffering womanhood the great value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the diseases of women, and perhaps nothing is more effectual than the testimony of those who have been cured by it. Such an one is the wife of General Barringer of Winston, N. C., and we quote from the General's letter as follows: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Please allow me to add my testimony to the most excellent medicinal qualities of your Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Barringer was treated for several years for what the physicians called Leucorrhea and Prolapsus Uteri combined. I sent her to Richmond, Va., where she remained for six months under the treatment of an eminent physician without any permanent benefit. She was induced to try your medicine and after a reasonable time commenced to improve and is now able to attend to her business and considers herself fully relieved." BILIOUSNESS.

Its various symptoms invariably result from indigestion, such as coated tongue, vomiting of bile, dizziness, sick headache, irregular bowels. The liver secretes the bile and acts like a scavenger, to cleanse impurities from the blood. By irregularity in its action or suspension of its functions, the bile fails to overflow into the bowels, causing jaundice, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, biliousness, constipation, a languid, weary feeling and many other distressing symptoms. Biliousness may be properly termed an affection of the liver, and can be thoroughly cured by the grand regulator of the liver and biliary organs, BURDOCK BLOOD BITERS. Act upon the stomach, bowels and liver, making healthy bile and pure blood, and opens the salivary and sudoriferous ways for the outlet of disease. Sold everywhere and guaranteed to cure.

Governor McLane of Maryland certifies publicly from personal experience, he gives his endorsement to Red Star Cough Cure, as a safe, prompt, sure remedy.

Medical Director J. J. Dungan is detached from the naval hospital at Yokohama, Japan, on the reporting of his relief, and to return home and wait orders.

My daughter was troubled with heart disease for five years, given up by physicians, had sinking spells, constant pain, great swelling over her heart extending to left arm, and severe spells of neuralgia extending over entire body, doctors could not help her. Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator cured her in three months.—Jas. Tilton, Concord, N. H. $1.00 per bottle at druggists.

Surgeon Daniel McMurtrie is detached from the Washington navy yard, and ordered to the naval hospital at Yokohama.

Do not delay, but bear in mind that consumption often begins with a neglected gold or cough. Adamson's Botanic Balsam wins the day in curing coughs and colds. Price 10, 35 and 75 cents.

Surgeon M. L. Ruth is ordered to the Washington navy yard.

The Newspaper Problem Before the Legislature.

Major Urch of ward four, who by reason of previous service in the legislature feels the responsibility of an old member, is chairman of a committee to ascertain by what authority the house of representatives expends large sums of money for 350 copies of five daily newspapers.

The newspaper problem has ever been a prolific source of enquiry at the outset of a session; and in many former sessions, new and ambitious members have made their first oratorical display in the debate of this question. In olden times, when there were no regularly published daily papers at Concord, the Patriot and Statesman offices issued every morning when there was anything to report, copies of diminutive dailies which had full reports of the proceedings of the house and senate; as these papers were not self sustaining, the legislature, as an encouragement to have a sort of official journal of their proceedings before them, which enabled members to keep the run of business, ordered a liberal number of copies of the respective papers "for the use of the senate or house."

This was perhaps well enough. There was no statute for it, but the two houses ordered it in the scope of their powers. When Manchester came to have a daily newspaper which was a regularly published daily journal, Col. Clarke had a reporter at the capital, and published full proceedings of the legislature; and that ever formidable and cohesive corps of patriots comprising the "Manchester delegation" would contain a member who would seek to amend the resolution providing for papers by adding the journal from the Amoskeag, and with characteristic loyalty the members from Manchester would unite

"To hold as 'to ere the Mirror up" etc.

The amendment was adopted, as the friends in the back seats frequently learned more of the proceedings of the house by perusal of the papers the next day than by actual observation. The Nashua Telegraph at times would also take a hand in this divide, and to-day we infer that the Nashua and Manchester publishers regard it as legitimate for the legislature to buy their papers as can the Concord printers.

The remedy for this, if the major will allow us, is to have the synopsis of the journals printed and distributed every morning when the respective bodies assemble, with a calendar showing the condition of business and the orders of the day. This can be prepared under the direction of the clerks and will be of especial service, and "a reasonable outlay for it would be reasonable and proper, while in many respects it would prove of great value in affording information as to the condition of measures and their likelihood of being acted upon, etc.

In the Mountains.

Mr. Chas. B. Goodwin, who has had a successful season as manager of a hotel in Florida, is at Maplewood, N. H., preparing for an early opening of Maplewood Cottage. Mr. Goodwin also manages the new Maplewood Hall, an elegant and finely located hotel, one of the very best in the Bethlehem region, which has the advantage of superb prospects, new rooms and new furniture, and will be told have within its walls this season a complement of agreeable guests from various parts of the country. Maplewood Hall will ere long be regarded as one of the favorite resorts among the mountains.

Gen. Grant's Condition.

It was announced on Monday, the 15th, that Gen. Grant's condition was much worse than for some weeks; he had a bad day Sunday, followed by a bad night. The cancer is steadily increasing in size, and he suffers much pain. The doctors on Monday decided to move him to Mt. MacGregor, near Saratoga, on the 16th, if he was able to bear the journey.

The cholera in Spain daily becomes worse. At Castelton, on the 14th, there were 114 new cases and thirty-six deaths, and at Cartagena 214 new cases and sixty deaths.

About dusk on Sunday evening a buggy containing three men turned from Vaughan street into Elm street, at the junction near the north millbridge, and proceeded at a moderate rate toward the railroad station. As they turned the corner one of the hind wheels commenced to give way, and when in front of Capt. J. G. Moses' residence went all to pieces, causing considerable of a wreck to the carriage, and dumping the three men gently on the ground. The horse stopped at once, evidently appreciating that something was wrong, and the three men got up unhurt and with their cigars still alight. The team belonged to R. H. Beacham & Son.

About a dozen mechanics and laborers were taken on in the department of yards and docks at the navy yard on the 15th inst., for the remainder of the fiscal year, to erect a building near the steam fire engine house on the yard, to which it is said the boilers of the heating apparatus of the officers' quarters will be removed; the steam from the boilers in their new position will be used to keep hot the water in the boilers of the fire engines and to heat the building containing them, and also to pump water, any surplus steam going to heat the quarters as heretofore. All the men taken on are reported to be republicans.

The Traveller's financial article of the 15th spoke thus of the Eastern railroad in that day's market: "Eastern touched fifty-three this morning, and a subsequent sale of fifty shares was made at 52 3-4, and that was also bid. Strong parties are buying what little is being offered; and no stock on the list, it may be truly said, stands in better favor than this."

The dividend on the stock of the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire was paid on Monday. The dividend on Concord & Portsmouth railroad shares will hereafter be sent by mail, in checks to the order of stockholders.

Mr. Lemuel T. Davis of this city has for some time been at work in Boston, on the sails of the new sloop yacht Puritan, one of the candidates for the honor of defending the America's cup in the coming races with representative British yachts.

Hon. Moses H. Goodrich, senator from the Portsmouth district, was elected to the house from ward one as a democrat in 1854, in the midst of the Know Nothing excitement. He does not recognize in the present legislature a single member who was there with him thirty-one years ago.

Rev. A. P. Peabody, D. D., preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class at Harvard on Sunday afternoon last.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Partly cloudy weather and local rains, temperature stationary or slightly lower, winds light and variable.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 60 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

A GENERAL GROWL.

Editor Gazette: I see by my last paper that the agent of the N. H. S. P. C. A. appeared before the board of aldermen to advocate the filling up of one of the few public wells left in the city—the one on Vaughan street, near the railroad tracks. This seems to me to be *unaccountable, there being a great dearth of places where a thirsty horse or yoke of oxen can be watered in this city; and it is certainly humane to furnish thirsty creatures with water, rather than to further limit their already scanty supply. As to this well it does not appear that the neighbors have found any fault about any odor arising from it, though they have complained of the flavor of the mill-pond. The pump at this well has seldom been in working order for several years, as is likewise the case with the other pumps here; a nice modern pump was removed from it by a former street commissioner, and a decayed old-fashioned one put down in its place, which not fitting in the curb-stones, was partially chocked by pine chips, so that during heavy rains the surface water has poured down into the well. A stranger promenading our streets can scarcely get a drink of water, but if he has five cents he can get a glass of cool beer. The providing of free water by the cleaning out of the old wells, if not the putting down of new ones, would seem to be the best thing to do for temperance, as well as for the dumb animals, rather than the obliteration of what few public wells we have got.

NEIGHBOR.

*Col. Marvin, when before the board of aldermen, explained that the reason for asking that the well be filled up was because the earth in its vicinity was so saturated with sewage that the water in the well was polluted so as to be unfit to drink.—Ed.

KITTERY, ME., June 15th.

Editor of the Gazette: There was talk some time ago in the Portsmouth papers and city government, of a drinking trough for cattle being put on the Parade. Besides, I see quite often notices of meetings of various temperance organizations in Portsmouth. Now what is the use of all the talk; for water is a very scarce article in your old town. The fine spring at the old market was shut off long ago, and there is no pump going much, at least none within reach of teams from this side of the river; and the trough on the Parade is not yet to be seen. People have to drink, and if they cannot get water they drink beer and rum, of which unfortunately there is plenty on every hand over there; horses and cattle, even if they cannot get water, will not drink rum or beer, which is lucky, for the perils of Portsmouth bridge are enough already with a sober horse and a "full" driver, and would be terrible if the horses filled themselves up on the beverages their drivers sometimes do. TEAMSTER.

PORTSMOUTH, June 15th.

Mr. Editor: It is reported that Councilman Horace W. Gray, of ward four, who has been at work for the city under the street commissioner, was discharged by that official at the instance of Alderman Eldredge of ward one, last Saturday night. As Mr. Gray voted on Friday evening with the other members of the ward four delegation, in favor of the proviso that only residents of Portsmouth should do the work and only Portsmouth dealers supply the materials of the proposed north pond sewer, while the ward one delegation voted solidly against it, Mr. Gray's summary dismissal from the city's service is regarded by many as a notification that no opposition to the wishes of the "leading men" in the democratic party will be allowed. We have heard a good deal said in the past, and even the Chronicle has often had its say in the matter, about the bossism of the republican ring which so long ruled that party in this city, but is now gone to pieces; but even that ring never gave such a glaring example of "bossism" as this case of Mr. Gray affords. If the duly elected members of the city councils are not to vote as they may deem for the city's best interests, but only according to the wishes of the "leaders," then those leaders had better be at once invested with the dictatorship, and the farce of popular elections be given up. A DEMOCRATIC VOTER.

ON DIT.

That the guide board at the corner of Middle and Lafayette roads is in a shocking bad state, and shhould be repainted before the summer visitors begin to be inconvenienced by the want of information at this point;

That several men who expect to be taken on at the navy yard, will probably have an opportunity to do a little haying before they are called to go over the river;

That the proposition to build a drain from the head of the north millpond to the river is entitled to careful consideration, and that the work should begin as soon as it can be properly contracted for;

That the biographical sketch of one of the members of the house of representatives from ward two, is the most con sise of any in the pamphlet this year published;

That notwithstanding the scythe of time has done so much for the south cemetery, the other kind of a reaper does not seem to have been in use there this season, except in a few instances where especiat care has been shown in regard to burial lots;

That if there is no railroad question likely to come before the legislature by the middle of the week, the lobby will be obliged to get up something on their own account, as many of them will be out of a job by Tuesday evening;

That the assembled wisdom is regarded as the most independent set of legislators ever yet assembled at Concord;

That Speaker Aldrich of the New Hampshire house of representatives is to occupy a cottage at Foss' beach, Rye, this season;

That Horace Sawyer at Rye beach, and Albert Batchelder at Little Boar's head, have more rooms engaged by guests than in any previous season at this date;

That the recent warm weather caused Mr. Thompson of the hotel Wentworth to receive many despatches from families who no longer hesitate to take the rooms on which they had meditated;

That Mr. Gammon of Manchester, who is to begin to fresco the Rockingham in July, has taken a furnished house in Middle street for the summer;

That Ex-Judge Lowell, of the United States circuit court, will sail for Europe on July 6th, and will visit Norway this summer;

That the session of the law term of the supreme court was adjourned to July 31st in order that the judges may finish their work and have a month for rest and recreation before beginning the fall circuits;

That a prominent lawyer of Strafford county offered to pay the cost of shining up the shoes of the chief justice at Concord last week, but the integrity of the C. J. could not be compromised by such means;

That the widening of Washington street, at the crossing of State street, is a great improvement;

That notwithstanding his consistent democracy, the incoming collector of the port will change "sides" as soon as he is fairly installed in his new position. [N. B. No objections to the P. P. copying this.]

MARITIME NOTES.

Capt. Levi Downs and crew, of the schooner Agnes E. Downs, came down from Boston on Saturday evening by rail, leaving the schooner in Boston, and returned on Sunday afternoon to rejoin her. The Agnes E. Downs, with a large fleet of other fishing vessels, was at anchor in Block Island bay when the blow came on which recently drove ashore there and totally wrecked two fishing schooners; the whole fleet, excepting the two unlucky crafts which were anchored too far in, slipped their cables and clawed off, the Agnes E. Downs working to windward handsomely under double-reefed mainsail, reefed foresail and jib.

The schooner yacht Wm. H. Russell sailed for Boston at an early hour on Monday morning, under command of Capt. Charles S. Drowne, with a small party, their intention being to remain in Boston over the 17th, (Bunker Hill day,) and return in the yacht the latter part of the week.

The schooners Lillie, Triton and Hattie Lewis, with bricks, and the Gulnare with pressed hay, all for Boston, sailed on Monday, the 15th inst. The bricker J. Chester Wood arrived from Boston, light, and the Ocean Eagle arrived from Wells with a load of wood, and both proceeded up river. Other arrivals the same day were the British brig Parau, from Sydney, Cape Breton, with soft coal to J. Albert Walker; the British schooner Clara J. Wilbur, from Moncton, New Brunswick, with ties to the Boston & Maine railroad; the Annie E. Rudolph, from Hoboken with coal for South Newmarket; and the Fannie & Edith, from Hoboken with coal to J. Albert Walker, to be discharged at Newcastle. The schooner Golden Gate, Amee master, was in the lower harbor Monday morning, with salt to Elvin Newton of Lunging island, Isles of Shoals.

AT THE SEA-SHORE.

The families of Mrs. Lewis of Philadelphia and Major Chas. Adams Stott of Lowell, Mass., are established for the season at their cottages at Little Boar's head.

The family of Jacob Wendell, Esq., of New York, have arrived at Frost field in Newcastle.

The family of Ex-Congressman Robinson of New York, irreverently designated "Richielieu" Robinson, and who was famed when in Congress for the vigorous twists he gave the British lion's tail whenever it came within his reach, will arrive at their leased cottage at Little Boar's head this week.

The first installment of the hay crop at the sea side has been gathered from the lawns mown to be ready for the coming tennis players.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them apparently almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to extreme measures to remove the effects of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing, the whole system, in fact, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended to my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in good health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventive of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend and helper. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5. by all druggists.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their premises overnight, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances thereof shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

The average strength of the European troops in India in 1883 was 55,525, among whom the death rate was but 10.88 per 1,000. The native army showed an average strength of 114,350, with a death rate of 94.21. The most fatal diseases for the Indian troops were those of the respiratory organs.

Russia's coal fields on the Black sea and in its neighborhood are almost equal in extent to those of Great Britain, but, whereas England produces between 100,000,000 and 150,000,000 tons a year, the yield of the Russian coal mines for the last year for which statistics are attainable was about 135,000.

The latest claimant to the French throne, Antoine Dujal, is a timekeeper in a Marsailles factory at a salary of $25 per month. He says he is the last of the Valois line, a descendant from Francis, Duke d'Alencon—fourth son of Henry I.—who is popularly supposed to have died without legitimate offspring.

The States of New England, with New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, show a loss of 27,131 in the number of cattle kept between January 1, 1884, and the beginning of this year. The only increase in cattle was in the northwest, where the whole aggregate number is small compared to the number east of the Mississippi. These figures are thought to explain the continued high price of beef.

Lord Tennyson has realized a larger income from the sale of poetry than any writer who has ever lived. When his publishers were the Messrs. Moxon he was paid $7,500 a year in royalties. Subsequently Strahan & Co. paid him $25,000 for his books then in existence, and during the five years of his connection with them they paid him $155,000. Later, King & Co. paid him $20,000 a year. These figures by no means represent the whole of his income.

Mrs. Rawson, of Middletown, Conn., has been persecuted by a bold and bald eagle, who made forays upon her poultry. The royal bird was impudent and imprudent, for, while he sat on the barnyard fence wiping off his chin after a spring chicken lunch, the exasperated lady seized a double barreled gun, pointed it in the general direction of the marauder, shut both eyes tight and pulled both triggers. The eagle has been stuffed as a trophy and a warning.

Mrs. Custer's little book is full of vivid and realistic anecdotes which show the keen spirit of fun which possessed the young wife and her hero in those days of happiness and hardships. All in all to each other it was enough for one that the other was successful or deserving of praise. At one time the General returns home and says to his appreciative wife: "Let me get a book that I have been reading and which I have marked for you." At the same moment Mrs. Custer produced a novel which had been the companion of her lonely hours. Lo! the two books were identical, and the two congenial readers had marked almost without exception the same passages.

To be able to properly temper steel springs and implements may be considered a gift similar to that possessed by the "poet born." A man whose business in a certain toolshop was to temper springs, worked 22,000 consecutively, and of the whole number only six failed to pass the test; but during his temporary illness more than half the springs handled by his assistant, who has been under instruction a year, failed. In a large manufactory of sword blades one man does all the tempering, being called in from other employment at intervals, because, although he has always been willing to instruct others, he has never had a pupil who could equal him in the work. There is a large scythe manufactory in a New England town making 14,000 dozen scythes a year, and the president of the company has for years hardened and tempered every scythe that leaves the works, because no other man in the works can do it so well.

The M. D.'s Tale.

"I don't want to die without making myself straight on the record. I'm a doctor, and a good one. I got my degree at a boss establishment. I'd tended bar in Deadman's Gulch, and taken a flyer in a couple of mines. I hit 'em heavy, and, after getting the boodle, went east to have a hurrah. I made up my mind to be an M. D., and went at it on business principles. I didn't buy a homeopathic sheepskin for a V, nor an Eclectic for a half-century, but just pooled up a clean two-fifty for an old-school allopathic diploma.

"I went back to the diggin's and hung out my shingle. Biz came in the moment I started. Everything went gallus, and I was always flush until one day Maj. Jones fell sick. Now, Jones was the biggest bug we had in Deadman's Gulch, and he was solid with the boys. They called me in, and I came to the conclusion he had erysipelas, or else leprosy. I was kind of scared, and when the boys asked after the old man I told 'em it was an even toss-up between them and the undertaker; so I called in Bill Barker, of Tombstone, that used to be a dog-doctor in London.

"Bill looked at the major, and then went out of the house to the saloon opposite, and told me confidentially it was distemper, and that distemper in men was always fatal. He got out of his saddle-bags the medicines he carried, and we socked them into the major for a week. He didn't get any better, though, and we got sort of nervous. Because, you see, the boys had begun to growl. Of course the growl was quiet; but we knew perfectly well what it meant. So Bill and me called in Jim Brady, of Mackerelville, the hoss-doctor, and we had a consultation.

"Jim said it was glanders, and we took a hack at that. Things ran along quite comfortable for a few days, because the major kept first-class whisky and cigars, and whenever we went out the boys set 'em up.

"It was Friday night, and we were figuring up the bills we'd have against the major's estate—I believe mine was $2,553.75—when the door opened and in came Tom Coffey, an old pard of the major's. They shook hands, and Tom said: 'Old fellier, what's the row? and the major said: 'Lord knows. Ask the sawbones there.' So I said it was erysipelas, complicated with distemper and glanders, and Bill and Jim acknowledged I was giving a square deal. Tom looked at us, and walked to the door, laughed, and said: 'Hell! it's boils!

"You might have knocked us out with a straw, particularly when we heard the major chuckling under the sheets. We began to buzz together, when all of a sudden the door was thrown open and the boys rushed in, headed by Tom Coffey. Before we could draw they'd the drop on us, and we held our hands up. Then they went to work and made us swallow all the medicine we had put up for the major. My own stuff wasn't very bad, but Bill's and Jim's would kill in twenty-four hours.

"I have only three more hours to live. I write this to show that I did the best I knew how, and that I wasn't putting up any job whatever.

WILLIAM BARKER, M. D.
JOHN SANDIESON, M. D."

Charlotte Cushman "had a foot of her own" in size, and generally wore fours, but could crowd into a three-and-a-half on "a tight squeeze." One night, soon after recovering from a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, she was wearing a pair of slippers much too small for her. Darting behind the wings between the scenes, she snatched them off and threw them as far as she could, exclaiming: "Ye gods! Somebody lend me a pair of slippers, or I'll go on in my stockings!" "What number do you wear?" asked a young actor, ready to help her in her emergency. "O, never mind the number; anything from five to twenty!" she replied.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES,

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.
MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and as the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My great pleasure is in recommending such an article.

Suffering Womanhood.

Too much effort cannot be made to bring to the attention of suffering womanhood the great value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the diseases of women, and perhaps nothing is more effectual than the testimony of those who have been cured by it. Such an one is the wife of General Barringer of Winston, N. C., and we quote from the General's letter as follows: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Please allow me to add my testimony to the most excellent medicinal qualities of your Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Barringer was treated for several years for what the physicians called Leucorrhea and Prolapsus Uteri combined. I sent her to Richmond, Va., where she remained for six months under the treatment of an eminent physician without any permanent benefit. She was induced to try your medicine and after a reasonable time commenced to improve and is now able to attend to her business and considers herself fully relieved." [General Barringer is the proprietor of the American Hotel, Winston, N. C., and is widely known.]

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., June 15th.

Joseph Plaisted, Jr., who died here on the 29th ultimo, was the ninth of a family of ten children of Francis (and Mercy) Plaisted, who died Aug. 14, 1852, aged 79 years and 6 months. A rather remarkable fact in connection with this family is an unbroken circle for over fifty years. The first child died when about one year old. The second child (Henry) died April 25th, 1824, about twenty-two years of age. The third (Ebenezer) died July 27, 1874, at the age of 69 years, 3 months and 21 days, the family of brothers and sisters having thus remained unbroken for 50 years, 3 months and 2 days. Then Francis, the sixth child, died Aug. 3, 1882, aged 69 years and 10 mos., and lastly Joseph, above named, aged 64 yrs., 9 mos. and 25 days. The survivors are Mary Ann, over 77 years of age, widow of Joseph D. Ackerman, late of your city; Mercy, widow of Jothan Nowell, late of York, over 75 years of age; Susan K., widow of Masterson Young, late of York, over 70 years of age; and Jonathan K., over 67 years. The 10th child was born April 17, 1824, and survived only two days.

The new meat market at the corner, conducted by Messrs. Chas. H. Jenkins and Geo. W. Freeman, was formally opened on Saturday last, and we trust it is to be a permanent adjunct to the business of "the Corner." They have a splendid new cart and all new paraphernalia for the business, and we hope for them the best of success. We believe a market here is a want long felt, and is now filled. George W. drives the cart, and we know he has got business jingle enough in him to do his part; and as to Charles, he is so long and well known as to need no saying.

Business of all kinds is booming. The beach business is the great impetus.

Mr. Joseph L. Grant, one of our most industrious and growing farmers, has just added a large new shed to his barn, for a carriage and harness room, etc. He has also recently put into his house a new and improved dairy; he produces and takes to market "gilt edge butter," and receives fancy prices therefor. Everything about his premises is a marvel of neatness, showing scrupulous care on his part, as well as upon the part of his estimable help-meet, and,—well, I suppose Miss Sarah will claim part of the credit.

Here is another gentle reminder to our honorable board of selectmen: The railing on Rice's bridge is not of sufficient strength in many places to withstand the weight of a heavy man who might fall against it. Yesterday a young man with a livery team was on his way from Portsmouth to the Marshall house, and when he had got on the bridge the forward axle broke short off at the collar, the horse took fright, ran against the south rail a little, then crossed over and ran against the drawpost, knocking off the railing of the draw, the carriage caught and hung, and the horse at that time cleared himself and ran furiously toward York Corner; he was stopped by Mr. Timothy Furbish. The young man was taken to the Marshall house and telephoned to the owner of the team, who sent another for him and the wreck. The carriage was totally demolished, the horse cut, the young man considerably shook up and somewhat startled at his narrow escape from rolling off into York river. His hat went up river with wind and tide in its favor. Gentlemen of the board, see to that railing or the town will have another bridge disaster to settle for.

Secretary Whitney seems determined to investigate thoroughly the administration of the navy department by his illustrious predecessor. Mr. Chandler having been convinced that there is nothing more coming before the legislature which is likely to interest him, left for Washington on Saturday last. While at the capital, it would be well enough for the late secretary to step into the department, and assure the present incumbent that it is all right. Of course, the present talk of investigation is made to smoke out chiefs of bureaus who have served under Mr. Chandler, and whose removal would look better if it could be accomplished under a cry of reform. Whitney knows the ropes. As a Washington correspondent said recently, he is the politico-manager of the present cabinet, and knows how to accomplish results almost as well as did the versatile Chandler, whom he in some respects—we trust not in all—resembles.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Fair weather, followed by local rains and lower temperature.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 69 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

ON DIT,

That the White Mountain express trains will leave Boston at 9:30 A. M. and 1:30 P. M., and run thorugh to Bethlehem Junction, reaching that place via this city at the same time that trains leaving Boston via Lowell at earlier hours reach the same point;

That passengers for the mountains via the Fall River boats will go to Lowell and thence to Great Falls, and so on via Conway and the Notch to Fabyan's, as the shortest and quickest route from New York by steamer;

That the train leaving Portsmouth at about eleven o'clock A. M. will be shortened in its running time:

That the Concord railroad should run to Concord a train leaving Portsmouth after the train from Augusta arrives, and not have it delayed till one o'clock P. M., though it may save a train and set of hands by starting at this inconvenient hour.

WARD ONE.

It is reported that ward one (and possibly all the wards of the city) will be again gerrymandered by the legislature, so as to secure a republican victory at the municipal election in August, though it is possible that the scheme exists only in the minds of the unterrified democracy, and that there is not enough "offensive partisanship" left in the local republican party to plan and engineer through the legislature anything of the kind. Ward one has been the principal battle ground of the political parties ever since the first organization of the city government, having often been closely contested, with results usually anti-democratic. In 1858 Peter Jenness, William Rand and Nathaniel K. Raynes, democrats, were declared elected as representatives from this ward, but the elections of Rand and Jenness were contested in the house, the result being that Mr. Rand was declared not elected—counted out, the democrats alleged—while Mr. Jenness was conceded to have a majority of one. The ward lines were "straightened and improved" at this session of the legislature, but in 1859 the same gentlemen were elected by decisive majorities. Mr. Rand was refused pay for the time he sat in the house in 1858, but upon the accession of the democrats to power in the state in 1874, the house voted to pay Mr. Rand's widow the amount of her late husband's salary. In that year the city was gerrymandered under George Hodgdon's patent into seven wards, and the entire election machinery being placed in the hands of the democrats, Hon. Moses H. Goodrich was elected mayor by a small majority over Hon. Frank W. Miller, republican, the previous incumbent. With the advent to power of the republicans once more, the Hodgdon patent was set aside and the city divided into four wards, the new deal resulting in republican victories in ward one until last year, when Hon. Frank Jones and Hon. Marcellus Eldredge, aided by republican disaffection, carried the ward and the city government for the democracy, and secured control of the checklists.

Mrs. Geo. A. Munroe of Boston, Mass., is visiting her brother, Robert S. Dame, of East Sixth street. This is the first time they have met in twenty-one years, and they take great pleasure in talking over their childhood days.—Erie (Pa.) Sunday Graphic.

Mr. Dame is a son of Hon. John Dame of this city, and is in the United States naval service, being attached to the U. S. S. Michigan, employed on the lakes.

Two women, mother and daughter, were taken to the police station late on Monday night for fast driving on the streets. After being some time detained they were driven to their home in a neighboring town by a man sent from one of the livery stables for the purpose.

THE FIRE ALARM.

The following orders relative to the new fire alarm telegraph system, giving the locations of boxes and keys, with rules and regulations governing alarms has been issued by the chief engineer. Cards on which the same information is printed will be ready for circulation in a few days.

Committee on Fire Department—Aldermen Littlefield, Eldredge, Coffin and Walker; Councilmen Gray, Junkins and Wardwell.

Chief Engineer—Herbert A. Marden.

Assistant Engineers—Geo. P. Philbrick, Geo. A. Jackson, John E. Harmon, Androw J. Langdon.

Clerk—Samuel R. Gardner.

Supt. of fire alarm apparatus—W. I. Trafton.

The different companies will respond to alarms as follows:

First alarm, steamer No. 3 and hose carriage will respond in all cases; also hook and ladder truck, supply wagon company, and No. 1 hose jumper. No 4 will respond to first alarm only when in reach of Hanover St. reservoir.

Extinguisher No. 5 will respond to boxes 32, 35, 38, 43, 46.

Extinguisher No. 6 will respond to boxes 7, 14, 17, 19, 24, 26.

Second alarm, No. 2 steamer and hose carriage will respond.

Third alarm will be answered by all apparatus of the department not in use.

DIRECTIONS:

Alarms are to be given from the box nearest the fire.

Open the box and pull the hook all the way down, once, and let go.

After giving the alarm, remain by the box, if possible, so as to direct the firemen to the exact locality of the fire.

Second alarm for same fire will be given only by one of the engineers.

Never open the box or touch the apparatus except in case of fire.

Never sound the alarm for a fire seen at a distance; be reasonably sure there is a fire before sounding the alarm.

Never let the key go out of your possession, except to some responsible person, to give an alarm of fire; and be sure the key is returned.

The key cannot be taken from the box except by an engineer.

If you remove from your house or place of business, return the key to any member of the board of engineers.

Citizens are requested to inform themselves where keys to the boxes are kept.

The companies will respond to alarms of fire given from boxes according to orders given by the chief engineer.

When an alarm of fire is given, all companies not responding will remain at their respective house 30 minutes, unless dismissed by telegraph signal, which is as follows:

Three blows signify that the fire is under control and companies not in attendance will be dismissed.

Cambridge time will be struck each day at 12.30 on the bell of the North church, from W. I. Trafton's jewelry store.

NAVY YARD SIGNALS.

In case assistance is needed from navy yard, seven whistles will be blown from Portsmouth brewery, and repeated.

When assistance is needed on the navy yard the signal by day will be two guns from the battery; by night, two guns from the battery and two rockets. One gun being a signal for Kittery.

All alarms will be sounded from the North church bell, and the whistle at Eldredge's brewery, and be repeated four times.

LOCATION OF BOXES AND KEYS.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

At a meeting of De Witt Clinton Commandery, held in Masonic hall Monday evening for work, there were present several prominent members of the order from nearly all sections of the country. The meeting was called for work to be followed by the usual banquet. There were 80 Sir Knights present. The work, as exemplified by the local commandery, was a most beautiful and correct demonstration of the honored Masonic principles. Among the visitors present were Charles A. Stott and Caleb Saunders, P. R. E. G. C. of Massachusetts and Rhode Island; Charles C. Dame and John L. Stephens, P. E. C., Boston Commandery; L. F. McKinney, E. C., Manchester Commandery; Chauncy H. Green, P. R. E. G. C., of New Hampshire; Nathaniel B. Boutwell of Palestine Commandery, New York; M. Perry Sargent of Haverhill Commandery; Rudolph Jacoby and E. F. Russell of Newburyport Commandery; W. G. Norris of St. Albans Commandery, Portland; J. L. Davis of Elwood Commandery, Springfield, Ill.; Charles K. Wadham, De Molay Commandery, Boston; George E. Sides, Naval Commandery, San Francisco, California, and E. P. Carman. The salads and ices which were served in the banquet hall were refreshing and invigorating, inspiring the members and guests with appropriate and fitting remarks.

Tuesday was too warm for comfort, the thermometer standing at ninety-three in the shade at noon on the corner of Market and Daniel streets. One hundred in the shade was indicated in some places in the city at about three o'clock.

Green Clay Goodloe, major and paymaster of the marine corps, arrived at this navy yard on the 16th inst. to pay the marines stationed there. As the men who went to the isthmus of Panama had not been paid for three months, they had a nice little sum to receive.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of it. Yours, &c.,
24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable, Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine
DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S
FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure condition of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is commended as a truly provident and unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Boy Wanted!

AT THIS OFFICE, to learn the Printer's trade. Must have a good common-school education, be of suitable age and have a desire to learn the business.

I Had a Dreadful Cough, and raised a considerable amount of blood and matter; besides, I was very thin, and so weak I could scarcely go about the house. This was the case of a man with consumption arising from liver complaint. He recovered his health completely by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Thousands of others bear similar testimony.

At Toledo, Ohio, Arthur B. Wakeley killed his wife and himself through jealousy.

Life Preserver.

If you are losing your grip on life, try "Well's Health Renewer." Goes direct to weak spots.

The corporate existence of the Saco National bank of Saco has been extended to June 19th, 1905.

"Rough on Piles"

Cures piles or hemorrhoids, itching, protruding, bleeding, internal or other. Internal and external remedy in each package. Sure cure, 50c. Druggists.

At Baltimore, Md., Henry A. Myers was sentenced to receive twenty lashes, pay $10 fine, and be imprisoned one year. He is a wife beater.

Pretty Women.

Ladies who would retain freshness and vivacity. Don't fail to try "Well's Health Renewer."

The Dorrance shaft of the Lehigh Valley Co. near Wilkesbarre, Pa., is on fire, and the mine will have to be flooded.

"Rough on Itch."

"Rough on Itch" cures humors, eruptions, ringworm, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains.

At Laconia, while attending a circus, Benjamin Perkins of Meredith Centre had his pocket picked of about $200.

"Gentle Spring."

Among spring preparations, do not neglect that which is most important of all—your own body. During the winter the blood absorbs many impurities, which, if not expelled, are liable to break out in scrofula or other disease. The best spring medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It expels every impurity from the blood, and gives strength to every function of the body. Sold by all druggists.

Timothy J. Collins, nineteen years old, was fatally shot in Boston on the night of June 15th by Francis J. Rorke, a baker, on account of some trouble concerning Delia Farrell, Rorke's adopted daughter.

Doctors!

Of all the different schools in the country, have thousands die every year of Bright's disease of the Kidneys, who could be living to-day if they had used Sulpher Bitters. They are unequalled in the world for all diseases of the kidneys.—New Haven Union.

How is your back? If it aches put on a Hop Plaster. For crick, stitches, rheumatism, pains in the side or hip, chest and lung difficulties or soreness in any part, nothing equals this porous plaster for curing pain and strengthening. Fresh Hops, Burgundy Pitch and Balsams combined. 25c, druggists.

Mr. Hamilton Cole, the well known New York lawyer, who bought a copy of the Gutenberg Bible in 1881 at the Brinley sale for $8000, sold it recently for $15,000.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.

DR. O. KILLING, of Oakland, Cal., says: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in my own case and found it a most valuable preparation, and have since used it extensively in my practice with very surprising results to myself and patients."

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eodlan8,25

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any state meats, heads, or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any drain or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters conquers and prevents malarial fevers, dyspepsia, chronic constipation, a tendency to kidney and bladder ailments and rheumatism, and is of the greatest value in cases of bodily trouble arising from weakness. Old people are greatly aided by it, and it is highly serviceable to convalescents and ladies in delicate health. It is, moreover, a useful medicine to take with one on long journeys, and counteracts the effects of mental exhaustion. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

STOMACH BITTERS

"A Chump."

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night there was a telephone call for a hack from the Delmonico restaurant, on Seventh street. The boy from the exchange mounted the box of Pete Carney's fine rig, and Pete drove to the popular resort designated. Here it proved that a New York drummer had been giving an elegant supper, with wine sauce, to a couple of Cincinnati "young ladies"—probably "school girls" out for a lark—whom he had met and captivated, after the manner of certain bold, bad commercial tourists, on one of the fashionable promenades during the afternoon.

The girls enjoyed the dinner and accepted the subsequent invitation of the new-found admirer to take a ride over the Rhine. They "did" the notable beer-halls until it became with the stranger, who was putting up at a fashionable hotel, a decided case of "How happy I could be with either if t'other dear charmer were away." Meanwhile the liberal knight of the gripsack had parted with $10 to each fair friend, when they playfully begged for some of his "change" just for pinnoyn. It was finally agreed that Minnie should elope, or its equivalent, with the New Yorker, and she left her friend and the gentleman in the beer-hall while she drove home for certain essentials to a traveling toilet. When she returned a great white bundle lay upon one of the seats. Minnie's friend was "shaken,"——were soon registered at a Race street hotel, the hackman paid $6 for his trouble and dismissed. But alas! at the head of the stairs Minnie found she had forgotton her trousseau left it in the hack. Drummer hastened to the hack stand. He is assured that nothing was left in the carriage but the hackman's rubber coat wrapped in a newspaper. A race back for the hotel. N. G.—No girl. Tableux. Drummer out $36. If he informs the police it will probably do no good, besides the wine it would cost to quiet the laugh. So he keeps mum, realizing that he had been played for a chump.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Jewish Longevity.

In enumerating the causes which have made the Jewish people so strong and vigorous, particular mention must be made of their observance of the Sabbath. This day was appointed for the double purpose of securing a set portion of time for the worship of God and affording rest to the body wearied with its six day's labors. Obedience to this primeval law is held by the Jews to be as strictly binding on them as any other religious obligation. In Christian countries where the Sunday is kept sacred or observed as a holiday, another day of rest in addition to their own Sabbath is obtained, thus fortifying them against the crushing toil and nervous strain of modern life. The loss accruing from this enforced abstinence from business worries is more than counterbalanced by the gain in nerve power with which periodical cessation from any harassing employment is compensated. This is doubtless one of the factors which have helped to invigorate both mind and body, and to develop in them those high qualities for which they are justly distinguished.

To sum up: the longevity of the Jew is an acknowledged fact. In his surroundings he is on a par with his Christian neighbor. If the locality in which he dwells is unhealthy he also suffers, but to a less degree. If the climate is ungenial, its influence tells on him, too, but with less injurious effect. His vigorous health enables him to resist the onset of disease to which others succumb. These advantages are for the most part owing to his food, his temperate habits, and the care taken of him in sickness and poverty. No doubt he is specially fortunate in inheriting a constitution which has been built up by attention, for many centuries, to hygienic details. His meat is drained of blood, so that by that means morbid germs are not likely to be conveyed into his system. It is also most carefully inspected so as to prevent the consumption of what is unsound, hence his comparative immunity from scrofulous and tuberculous forms of disease.

The bible is regarded by some scientists as an old-fashioned book; but its teaching in relation to hygiene, even they will confess, has not become antiquated. It must be credited with having anticipated and recorded for our instruction and profit doctrines which are accepted as beyond dispute in this department of knowledge. In the Mosaic law are preserved sanitary rules, the habitual observance of which by the Jew, from generation to generation, has made him superior to all other races in respect of health and longevity. —Leisure Hour.

An Editor's Resource.

A New York paper says that England can boast one editor, at least, who might be trusted to run a country paper in the United States. In his youth Sir Richard Phillips edited and published a paper at Leicester called the Herald. One day an article appeared in it headed, "Dutch Mail," and added to it was an announcement that it had arrived too late for translation, and so had been set up and printed in the original. This wondrous article drove half England crazy, and for years the best Dutch scholars squabbled and pored over it without being able to arrive at any idea of what it meant. This famous "Dutch Mail" was in reality merely a column of "pi." The story Sir Richard tells of the particular "pi" he had a whole hand in is this: "One evening, before one of our publications, my men and a boy overturned two or three columns of the paper in type. We had to get ready in some way for the coaches, which, at four in the morning, required four or five hundred papers. After every exertion, we were short nearly a column; but there stood on the galleys a tempting column of pi. It suddenly struck me that this might be thought Dutch. I made up the column, overcame the scruples of the foreman, and so away the country edition went, with its philological puzzle, to worry the honest agricultural reader's head. There was plenty of time to set up a column of plain English for the local edition." Sir Richard tells of one man, whom he met in Nottingham, who for thirty-four years preserved a copy of the Leicester Herald, hoping that some day the letter would be explained.

Styles in Canes.

There is a decided change in the style of canes this season. The very swell cane is thicker than ever—fully twice as thick as the cane in vogue a year or two ago, and the tendency is toward dark woods. Malacca is quite the rage, and more canes are sold made of that wood than any other. A later thing, however, is to have canes of the natural wood, without the bark striped off. These are now popular in London and New York, and are likely to be so in Philadelphia.

Small, round, hammered-silver heads are much in demand, and upon these the fashionable young man usually has his monogram and address engraved, but a later thing is the buck-horn handle, partially blazed in pieces, with the handle usually notched in front and often extending into what is known in London as a "crutch." The crutch cane will be the dude cane of the season, and the "swell" way of carrying it is under the arm, with the handle behind and the point projecting downward. Leading jewelers who deal in high-priced canes say that an unusual demand has sprung up among fashionable young men for gold-headed canes, which are no longer in demand for old gentlemen, such presentations having very much gone out of fashion. Some of these gold-headed canes have dainty handles, elaborately chased.

Among the men who sell canes on the street corners and in the hotels, now so numerous, and in the cane stores as well, the style of cane mostly sold is of a natural wood, all one piece, with a crook, or what is known as a "pistol" handle. A general knock-around cane, much sought after, but very scarce, is the true Irish blackthorn with the thorns smoothed off.

A curious fact but little known is that dagger and sword canes have come into use to a most extraordinary extent, and some of the fashionable men in town carry them. A good many young men effect canes that have very small photographs inside the handle that can be seen when held to the light.—Philadelphia Times.

Absent-Minded.

We talk of genius and talent; but what are these but the power which some men have of putting their whole mind into what they do? Doubtless men have special gifts; but these would be worthless unless they gave their best thought to the present work. That was what the artist meant who, being asked with what he mixed his colors, replied, "with brains." I read yesterday, two statements; one was that there was a scythe factory in New England which turns out 14,000 dozen scythes a year, and the President of the company tempers all the scythes that leave his works, because no other man can do it so well. The other fact stated is that there is another man so famous for making knife-blades that a knife with a blade of his workmanship is double in value. These facts illustrate my thesis that we must put our whole mind into our work in order to do it well; the active human intellect being superior to all machinery, all mere training and all mechanical habit. Genius and talent are nothing without application, and application means putting mind into work.—James Freeman Clarke.

Before Paper.

Wood was one of the earliest substances employed on which to inscribe names and record events. Stone, brass, lead, and copper were also used at an early period; after which the leaves of trees. These were superseded by the outer bark of the tree, but this being too coarse the inner bark came soon after to be used, that of the lime being preferred. This bark was called by the Romans liber, the Latin word for book, and these bark books, that they might be more conveniently carried about, were rolled up, and called volumen, hence our word volume. The skins of sheep, goats, and asses were the next materials used, and so nicely were they prepared that long narratives were inscribed on them with the greatest accuracy. Some of these were 15 feet long, containing 50 and 60 skins, fastened together by thongs of the same material. The intestines of certain reptiles were also used, for it is a well-authenticated fact the poems of Homer were written on intestines of serpents in letters of gold. This roll was 120 feet long, and was deposited in the great library of Constantinople, where it was destroyed by fire in the sixth century. The next material was parchment—skins smoothed and polished by pumice stone—to which succeeded vellum, a finer description of parchment, made from the skins of very young animals. On this vellum gold and silver were stamped with hot metal types. Some of these productions are very beautiful, requiring much time and labor to prepare and complete them, and the more carefully they are examined the more do we admire the taste and ingenuity displayed.—Chamber's Journal.

Suffering Womanhood.

Too much effort cannot be made to bring to the attention of suffering womanhood the great value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the diseases of women, and perhaps nothing is more effectual than the testimony of those who have been cured by it. Such an one is the wife of General Barringer of Winston, N. C., and we quote from the General's letter as follows: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Please allow me to add my testimony to the most excellent medicinal qualities of your Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Barringer was treated for several years for what the physicians called Leucorrhea and Prolapsus Uteri combined. I sent her to Richmond, Va., where she remained for six months under the treatment of an eminent physician without any permanent benefit. She was induced to try your medicine and after a reasonable time commenced to improve and is now able to attend to her business and considers herself fully relieved." Fond mothers, beware of morphia in cough syrups. A purely vegetable, safe, sure remedy is Red Star Cough Cure.

Warren Danforth was drowned at Laconia on the 14th inst., by the capsizing of his sailboat.

My daughter was troubled with heart disease for five years, given up by physicians, had sinking spells, constant pain, great swelling over her heart extending to left arm, and severe spells of neuralgia extending over entire body, doctors could not help her. Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator cured her in three months.—Jas. Tilton, Concord, N. H. $1.00 per bottle at druggists.

Shocks of earthquakes have reoccurred in Cashmere with increased violence. It is reported that 2281 persons have perished in the district of Muzuffarabad.

Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer is a sure and safe remedy for coughs, colds, diphtheria and pneumonia. Before the public 40 years. Has saved thousands of lives. 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Try it.

It was stated in the Washington despatches of the 16th that the inspecting board appointed by Sec. Whitney to test the Dolphin had reported that the vessel was totally unsuited, from both plan and construction, for a man-of-war.

An Experience of Twenty Years.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 1885.

The Cholera.

The cholera commission of the Spanish government, and also many native and foreign doctors, declare that the cholera in the south of Spain is Asiatic and of a virulent and rapid character, attacking all classes of society. The Official Gazette confirms the statements regarding cholera in Madrid and the provinces. In the province of Castellon de la Plana, on the 15th, there were eighty new cases and sixty deaths reported; in the city of Murcia, sixty-four new cases and thirty deaths, and outside the city fifty new cases and sixteen deaths.

The Wheat Crop.

The Ohio state board of agriculture has completed a comparative statement of the wheat shortage, based on official telegrams and private sources, of the present probabilities as compared with the known average for five years as estimated by the United States department of agriculture. The total average for the past five years in the United States was 412,355,699 bushels, while the estimate for 1885 is 230,779,000 bushels, showing a shortage of 181,576,699 bushels. The board gives a list of twenty states, and assumes that, if those not mentioned have a full average crop, there would still be a probable shortage of 180,000,000 bushels, or over 240,000,000 bushels as compared with last year's full crop. Michigan and New York seem to be the only two states showing a full wheat crop. The shortage is in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and California. Six great winter wheat sections of these states only provide for a yield of 90,000,000 bushels, which is a shortage of 118,000,000 bushels over the five years average. The report concludes: "There can be no longer any possible doubt that this year's wheat crop of the United States is to be the most disastrous failure for nearly a score of years, and there is nothing to be gained by denying or striving to mitigate the fact or by trying to let the public down gently to the knowledge of it."

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., June 16th.

The Sunday schools in town are making arrangements to hold a union picnic on the 4th of July, in which the schools of the surrounding towns will probably be invited to participate; the location is not yet decided on.

Miss Susie Tuckerman, a young lady from Dorchester, Mass., is passing a few days with friends in North Kittery.

There is a report current that Mr. Janvrin of Great Falls, who has sold cheese on the road through several towns in this county, is missing, and it is thought dead.

Mr. Frank W. Binney of North Kittery left town on Monday last for Old Orchard, where he will pass the summer in his cottage on the camp ground.

The mail on the route between York and Portsmouth, lately contracted for by Geo. W. S. Putnam of York, will be carried by his two sons, Will and Perley, who will run in connection with it an express. The mail, instead of being distributed at Kittery depot as formerly, has been extended to Portsmouth. The two young men are well known in this vicinity and Portsmouth, the former having been employed for several years by Charles E. Laighton & Son, and is well recommended. With strict attention to business we trust they will receive a liberal patronage in their new departure.

The Biddeford Journal scribbler from this town, since he has lost his billet as boss boat-builder on the yard, and having got his squibs of "Bending machines," "steam ferrics," "society gossip," and his conceited opinion of himself, worn threadbare with the public, has turned his attention to scandal, but we opine that it is not safe for people who live in glass houses to throw stones.

A company of about sixty of the neighbors and friends of Mr. Irving Wilson and wife made them a wedding call on Thursday evening, the 11th inst. The evening was spent in social amusement, and a collation consisting of ice cream, cake, confectionery and fruit was served, which was first class in every particular; all were highly entertained, and went away satisfied that this was one of the pleasantest gatherings of the season.

SUB ROSA.

The "Army & Navy Quarterly," published by L. R. Hamersly & Co., Philadelphia, at $2 per year, single number fifty cents, comprises in its contents the cream of the army and navy publications of England, France, Germany—indeed of all Europe. The July number (No. 3 of Vol. I.) has articles on "Machine guns in the field," "Torpedo-boat Warfare" (concluded,) "Gen. Lebrun and the twelfth French corps at Sedan," "The functions of cavalry in modern war," "Gen. Gordon's life and letters," etc. This periodical is of especial value to military and naval men, but also contains much of interest to the civilian.

The "Sons of Veterans Review" is a magazine "devoted to the interests of the Sons of Veterans of New England, the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Woman's Relief Corps," published at Lake Village, N. H., by the Review Pub. Co., at $1 per annum. We have received the first number, which contains much information of special interest to the members of the orders named.

The "United Service" for June contains papers on "England vs. Russia," by Capt. Edw. Field, U. S. A.; "the Vicksburg campaign," by Gen. Thomas Jordan; Lieut. Shufeldt's third paper on Madagascar; installments of Alice King Hamilton's story, "One of the Duanes," and of "Jack Haultaut," or life at the naval academy; the loss of the U. S. S. Mississippi at Port Hudson, with a poem; a very pretty little poetical conceit, "Bobby Shaftoe;" other contributed papers, editorial notes, etc., making a number worthy the high reputation this periodical has maintained in the past. T. H. S. Hamersly, publisher, New York; $4 per year.

Passed Assistant Engineer William L. Baille, Boatswains Peter Johnson and James Heron, and Carpenter John A. Dixon, have been ordered to appear before the retiring board.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, June 17th.

John Golden was before the court for drunkenness, which was conclusively proved against him; but he pleaded hard to be let off, alleging that he had secured a job in one of the breweries, and was to go to work Thursday morning. "Mr. Hurley, please telephone to the brewery and ask if this man's story is true," said the magistrate to the assistant marshal who was attending to the court business; and in about three minutes the officer, standing within three feet of the judge, received answer from the head man at the brewery that Golden was there the day before, drunk, and endeavoring to raise a little cash on some kind of a subscription paper, and that he was "fired out," with instructions to come back when sober, if he had any business to transact. Mr. Golden, who was astonished at the quickness with which his story was sifted and indignant at its refutation, was given sixty days at the county house of correction, and ordered to pay $6.90 costs.

CORPORATION MEETINGS.

The "Lawson Card Co." was organized in this city on the 16th inst. under the general laws of the state relating to corporations, and officers were chosen as follows: Edward L. Chaffee of Boston, president; Charles A. Burgess of Boston, treasurer; Calvin Page of this city, clerk. The capital stock is placed at $100,000, and the business of the company will be to deal in the newly-invented base-ball playing cards, a patent game invented by a Harvard student who was thoroughly conversant with base-ball and not wholly ignorant of cards.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Portsmouth Machine Co. was held in the common council room on the 17th inst. The reports of the directors, treasurer and secretary were read and accepted, and the old board of directors re-elected, with the exception that Jeremiah Sanborn was chosen in place of Nathan Whalley, who resigned from the last board.

GOOD FOR THE MAJOR.

Major Urch of ward four, though "on the wrong side of the house," has already made himself known to the new men in the legislature, by causing the overthrow of an abuse which had only its age to recommend it. The house this year having voted (as all previous legislatures within our memory, republican and democratic alike, have done) to take a large number of daily papers — 350 copies each, of four different papers — for the use of the senate and house, to be paid for out of the public purse, the energetic and pugnacious major introduced a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to enquire by what authority of law the house incurred this expense, which resolution passed, and Major Urch was of course appointed chairman of the committee. As there was no warrant of law for the expenditure, it was understood that the major would make things lively when the matter was reported on by his committee, so on Tuesday morning, the 16th, Mr. Edgerly of Somersworth engineered through the house a resolution receding from the former action, and discontinuing the big lot of papers the members had voted themselves, on which the major, having carried his point, asked that his committee be discharged from further consideration of the matter. Pretty good work, for a member of the minority.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner yacht Wm. H. Russell is expected to arrive from Boston on Friday, and will sail on Saturday for Portland with a party, Mr. James E. Drisco going as mate. Mr. Drisco has been continuously in the employ of Mr. W. Freeman for nineteen years, and goes as mate of the yacht for this trip just for fun.

The schooners Hattie Lewis and Lillie, from this port with bricks; the Gulnare, with pressed hay from Eliot, and the Emily A. Staples, from Saco with bricks, arrived at Boston on the 16th inst.

The bouncing big schooner C. B. Church arrived on the 17th inst. from Philadelphia with 1232 tons coal to J. Albert Walker.

At Kennebunkport, Me., June 13th, a steam fishing-schooner of about 200 tons was launched from the yard of David Clark, and has been towed to Portland to receive her machinery. She is owned by Capt. H. B. Joyce, and will be employed in the mackerel fishery.

The mast of the steamer Appledore has been put in, and she will be ready to run on the day set for commencing her regular trips between this city and the Isles of Shoals, June 25th.

The barque Furness Abbey, of this port, Marcy master, from Iloilo, Phillippine islands, for Boston, passed Anjier May 3d.

The appearance of four-horse coaches on our streets from the beaches betokens the close approach of the summer rush—we hope it will be a rush, and all the indications, including the thermometer, now point that way—of summer tourists. A few of the private teams of summer visitors at the beaches are also seen occasionally.

Pleasant street is receiving a coating of gravel. The removal of some of the unused crosswalks on that street would be an improvement.

Hon. Marcellus Eldredge arrived home on Tuesday, the 16th, from Massachusetts.

Many of the representatives returned on Wednesday evening, the 17th, glad to escape the heat at the capitol, as well as to avoid any temptations from the railway magnates who assembled at Concord on that day to look over the situation and see if they could afford to do anything for the lobby this year.

Mr. Nathaniel Wiggin is building at his farm on Greenland road a hennery fourteen feet long and 101 feet wide.

John Hall came in from Smuttynose island, Shoals, with 620 lobsters, on Wednesday.

The floating stage of the steamboat landing at Appledore island will be towed out on Friday.

Mr. Martin Hoyt's hair dressing rooms at No. 26 Congress street have recently been entirely refurnished and refitted, and provided with chairs of the Archer patent for the convenience and comfort of patrons in the shaving line; the establishment runs four chairs, and consequently long waits are not the rule there. The room in the northwest corner of the building, on the same floor (the second) as the barber shop, over the Chinese laundry, has for some months been occupied as a pool room, it having previously been vacant ever since Capt. Edw. D. Coffin removed his paint shop from there; the lighting up of the windows at night has given that side of the street a much more cheerful appearance than when they were as black as the ace of spades, and it is needless, to those who know Mr. Hoyt, to say that the pool room is conducted as a pool room only, and that there are no objectionable accessories.

Ex-Collector Howard, of Portsmouth, N. H., received $100,000 worth of advertising by resigning a $500 office on the ground of being an offensive partisan. A man possessed of that kind of business shrewdness will be heard of in the future.—Minneapolis Mercury.

On June 16th, twenty-six members of the marine corps at the Boston navy yard reported to be placed on the sick list, and several were sent to the hospital at Chelsea. It was thought that the Chagres fever had broken out among the men, as the disease with few exceptions was confined to the men who were at Panama. The sale of milk on the yard was prohibited, and the canteen closed. No reports have been made of any unusual amount of sickness among the marines on the Portsmouth navy yard who returned from Panama.

The Portland District Ministerial Association convened at the Methodist church in Saco on the evening of the 15th inst., among those present being Rev. H. F. A. Patterson of Eliot and Rev. T. F. Jones of Berwick. Rev. J. A. Corey of York, who had been announced to preach the opening sermon, was not there, and the sermon was preached by another.

It is reported that Mr. Daniel McIntire of York has been missing for several weeks, having disappeared about the time the unknown man's body was found on Rye beach. The last information heard of him by his friends, was to the effect that he was seen at Salmon Falls a day or two after leaving York.

Mr. John A. Hooper of South Berwick has been appointed postal clerk on the Boston & Maine railroad, to succeed Caspar E. Marshall, Esq., of Berwick, who resigned June 2d. Foster's Dover, N. H., Democrat says he "has the honor of being the first democrat in South Berwick to receive an appointment under President Cleveland." Carry the news to Col. Wm. A. Cromwell, agent of the Lake Shore line. When a clean-handed democrat like the colonel, who rightfully should have led the S. B. column, must give place to a man whose chief recommendation for office consists in being a local offensive partisan, the times are sadly out of joint. But the Col. may be happy yet.—Biddeford Journal.

Biddeford has a new city liquor agency. It is supplied with everything in the shape of liquors, beer and porter. There are kegs of angelica; also port and sherry wine and claret in bottles, but no champagne or Rhine wine. Every person who makes a purchase is required to register in a book kept for the purpose, which is exposed to public view, and whoever buys for other purpose than is specified is liable to prosecution. Of the first six persons who registered, five called for rye whiskey for colds.

The York Beach post-office at York, Me., was opened for the season on Monday, the 15th inst.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for the reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them apparently almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly recommended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

The Root of the Evil.

To thoroughly cure scrofula it is necessary to strike directly at the root of the evil. This is exactly what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, by acting upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing it of all impurities, and leaving not even a taint of scrofula in the vital fluid. Thousands who have been cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, testify to its wonderful blood-purifying qualities. Sold by all druggists.

There has been a renewal of Agrarian outrages in Ireland. A farmer was killed on the 13th inst. at Mill street, Cork, and a farm laborer near Tipperary was shot but not fatally injured.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

There is no longer any doubt of an abatement of fever at Plymouth, Pa. No new cases or deaths have been reported for a week.

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eodjan8,y3

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of house, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, bones, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any vender of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so that any offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter house, privy, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters conquers and prevents malarial fevers, dyspepsia, chronic constipation, a tendency to kidney and bladder ailments and rheumatism, and is of the greatest value in case of bodily trouble arising from weakness. Old people are greatly aided by it, and it is highly serviceable to convalescents and ladies in delicate health. It is, moreover, a useful medicine to take with one on long journeys, and counteracts the effects of mental exhaustion. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

The Dry Goods Bill.

Nothing seems more unreasonable than the dignified superiority of the husband or the brother who first preaches the unimportance of dress, perhaps consistently fortifying his words by his own example, and then turns to criticise his wife or daughter for being less well dressed than some fair neighbor who gives her whole mind to that absorbing department. Does he really suppose that a woman can be bien mise by giving to it three-quarters of an hour in the spring and three-quarters of an hour in the autumn, which are all, as James Parton boasts, that a man now needs to devote to his tailor? Let the wife plead what has to be called the "gospel of good gowns" as completely as the husband disregards that of good hats, for instance, and let him see how he likes it. But whether he adopts the policy of indifference or not, let him at least be consistent. If we hold it the duty of intellectual women to be well-dressed also, let us give them full credit for doing the double duty. If, on the other hand, we make no such demand on them, let us omit all the jeers at the faded "water proof" of the literary woman and the dyed and turned dress, and even the short hair—cut off, let us charitably suppose, to save time for study or for work. In the same way if the husband expects his wife to be well dressed, let him not sneer at the time mercilessly spent in shopping, or even groan at the bills when the results of shopping come in. Let him not complain as I heard a young husband the other day, that two women when they meet always talk about dress, when perhaps the very point under discussion was the question how to dress as their husband wished without its costing those husbands too much money.—Harper's Bazaar.

The Pre-occupied Editor.

We went out into the country the other evening to preach. We stopped at the house of a brother for supper and were most graciously entertained—the ladies of the house making themselves specially entertaining and devoting themselves ardently to the promotion of our comfort. Leaving the house in advance of the family, we hurried to the church and began the services. The members of the family came afterwards and took their seats with the rest of the congregation, without our observing their entrance. After the sermon we undertook to play the part of the agreeable and began to shake hands with the saints, and chat around to the best of our poor ability. Presently we found a strikingly good-looking sister in front of us, and holding out our hand, expressed a wish to form her acquaintance. A vicious titter ran through the crowd, and the sister looked a little scornful. We asked what it all meant, and to our undoing found that the lady in question was the one who gave us our supper. We spent a good part of the night in trying to explain how it happened, but we cannot say that our transgression will ever be forgiven.—Richmond (Va.) Religious Herald.

Bagpipes.

It appears that it is all a mistake to assume that oatmeal is the cause of the national Scotch dyspepsia. The natural interpretation of the facts that the Scotch eat oatmeal and suffer from dyspepsia is that oatmeal produces dyspepsia. "When the Times expressed the opinion it did so in perfect good faith, but now that a real Scotchman, who is an expert in dyspepsia, not only denies that oatmeal is indigestible, but explains in a perfect satisfactory way the true cause of Scotch dyspepsia, it would be dishonest not to proclaim the innocence of oatmeal. Dyspepsia among Scotchmen is the result of listening to the bagpipes, and the moment this assertion is made the truth becomes almost self-evident.

It may be urged by ignorant persons that the impression of a sound received on the tympanum of the ear cannot affect the stomach. This is, of course, entirely untrue. It is a well-established fact that certain songs will produce nausea on the part of sensitive hearers. Excursionists on their way to Rockaway by sea have often been made violently sick by hearing the steamer's band play "Mona, Emma," and a physician of this city has frequently prescribed "Dites lui" as an emetic in case of poisoning.

It is a well-attested fact that the bagpipes, when heard by persons who are not accustomed to them, give rise to violent griping pains in the stomach which closely resemble the pains of Asiatic cholera. During the sepoy mutiny the Scotch regiments more than once placed large bodies of sepoys hors de combat by the use of the bagpipes alone. Had not Havelock's little army included a strong corps of pipers it could never have made its way into Lucknow through the vast besieging force. Mr. Whittaker speaks of the pipes of Lucknow as "stinging all the plain to life." The sepoys would hardly have described in that way the effect of pipe-playing. As a matter of fact, thousands of the rebels as soon as they heard the bagpipes clasped their hands to their abdominal regions and rolled on the plain in agony. Even those whose stomachs withstood the sounds imagined that the sepoy camp had suddenly been smitten with cholera, and became so demoralized that Havelock forced his way through the midst of them almost unmolested, and reached the residency without other casualties than the death of two wounded Englishmen, who were officially reported to have died of joy at seeing the relieving force, but who were really too weak to withstand the bagpipes.

Scottish children suffer severely from the bagpipe colic and no careful mother will allow a baby in arms to hear the pipes. When the Scotch children reach the age of 3 or 4 years they are gradually hardened to the sound of the bagpipes, and though at first they are fairly doubled up with pain—for which whisky seems to be the only antidote—they are able in time to listen to "The Wild McGregor Clan-call" without betraying any signs of uneasiness. The bagpipe colic is never fatal except to infants and persons in a very weak condition, and Scotch physicians occasionally prescribe a course of pipes to patients serving from obesity. Her majesty the queen has tried this remedy with apparently good results, though it is difficult to believe that its permanent effect upon her health can be beneficial.

No man, not even a Scotchman, can suffer for years from colic without having his digestive organs impaired. When a young Scotchman has accustomed his stomach to bear bagpipes without pain it may be safely assumed that his stomach is so weakened as to be totally unfit to digest ordinary food. In these circumstances it is possible that oatmeal is well adapted to the abnormal state of his digestive organs. At any rate, oatmeal can no longer be held to be the cause of Scotch dyspepsia, and there is good reason to believe that Carlyle owed his dyspepsia to his early exposure to bagpipes.—New York Times.

Bless My Buttons!

Did it ever occur to you, gentle reader, what a vast amount of money is annually wasted in buttons? Look at the costumes of the men and women you meet in the street, and you will notice that not one button in fifty has any legitimate business in life. Statisticians have figured up the yearly drink bills of our people and the money wasted each twelve months upon tobacco, but they have, singularly enough, entirely neglected to recognize one of the most stupendous items of extravagance of improvident people. Only let the figures be brought home to the public in all their astounding immensity, and enough may be saved on buttons in two or three years to pay the national debt.—Boston Transcript.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

H. MAAK, Champion Comique Roller Skater YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

BEST FOR ANYTHING.

Having used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for eighteen months for Tetter, and finally cured it, I am anxious to get it to sell on commission. I can recommend it beyond any remedies I have ever used for Tetter, Burns, Cuts, etc. In fact, it is the best medicine I have ever tried for anything.

R. S. HORTON. MYRTLE, MISS.

NEVER A COMPLAINT.

Since I have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES I have never heard a single complaint, but on the contrary every one who has used them has been well pleased with them, and they outsell all others. E. B. CUBBERLY, Druggist. ANDREWS, IND.

SCROFULOUS SORES.

I had a dozen bad sores upon my body, and tried all remedies I could hear of, and at last tried your CUTICURA REMEDIES and they have cured me.

Ely's Cream Balm has cured me of catarrh of several years standing. I have recovered my sense of taste and smell. The Balm has no equal as a cure. FRANK C. OGDEN, Elizabeth, N. J. Apply with finger.

After using a large number of preparations for catarrh, I have become satisfied that of them all Ely's Cream Balm gives me the most relief. I can recommend it to any one who may have catarrh, cold in the head or hay fever.—S. B. LEWIS, Principal Graded School, Clinton, Wis. Easy to use. Price 50 cents.

John Gonsalvez, captain of the schooner Onward, has been sentenced by the United States circuit court to $764 fine and three months' imprisonment, for bringing an unlawful number of passengers into New Bedford, Mass.

18 Negroes!

Who left the United States for Liberia last year have lately returned, being unable to stand the climate. Everybody going to a new climate should have a bottle of Sulphur Bitters with them as a safeguard against disease.—Hartford Courant.

Count Joseph Parise von Hochkofler, son of wealthy and noble parents of Trieste, Austria, was united in marriage at Galveston, Texas, June 14th, to Miss Minna Althrop, a beautiful but far from rich young artist who for two years has been giving lessons in painting in Galveston. The groom's parents strongly objected to his marrying the girl.

Suffering Womanhood.

Too much effort cannot be made to bring to the attention of suffering womanhood the great value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the diseases of women, and perhaps nothing is more effectual than the testimony of those who have been cured by it. Such an one is the wife of General Barringer of Winston, N. C., and we quote from the General's letter as follows: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Please allow me to add my testimony to the most excellent medicinal qualities of your Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Barringer was treated for several years for what the physicians called Leucorrhea and Prolapsus Uteri combined. I sent her to Richmond, Va., where she remained for six months under the treatment of an eminent physician without any permanent benefit. She was induced to try your medicine and after a reasonable time commenced to improve and is now able to attend to her business and considers herself fully relieved." [General Barringer is the proprietor of the American Hotel, Winston, N. C., and is widely known.]

New Hampshire Legislature.

The senate and house met in convention on the 17th, and the records of the previous day were read; and it appearing that each branch of the legislature had by a majority of the votes cast on the 16th elected Henry W. Blair as United States senator for the term ending March 4th, 1891, the speaker made declaration to that effect, and a committee was appointed to notify Mr. Blair and the governor. The convention unanimously passed a resolution of sympathy with Gen. Grant.

The special committee appointed on the 16th to consider the expediency of having the records printed daily from the report of a stenographer, reported it inexpedient to attempt anything of the kind now the session has begun, and it was finally voted to take 350 copies daily of the Concord Monitor and the Manchester Union, instead of five papers, as first voted.

Naval Intelligence.

Carpenter Nathan H. Junkins is detached from duty at New London, Conn., and placed on waiting orders.

Passed Asst. Engr. H. E. Frick is detached from the Shenandoah, and granted three months' sick leave.

Paymaster Stephen Rand is ordered to a temporary duty at the navy department.

The orders of Lieut. Comdr. E. L. Amory to the Lancaster have been revoked, and he is placed on waiting orders.

Lieut. Comdr. John Schouler is detached from the Lancaster, and ordered home.

Ensign Alfred Jeffries is ordered from the coast survey to the receiving ship at New York, for trial by court martial.

Naval Constructor George W. Much is detached from temporary duty at the navy department, and placed on waiting orders.

The secretary of the navy has received a report from Rear Admiral English, dated Congo river, May 2d, stating that he had sent Lieutenant E. H. Taunt up the Congo river to the Stanley pool on an expedition of observation. After completing this duty Lieutenant Taunt will proceed to the Mediterranean station, and report to the commanding officer for duty there.

The Powhatan and Alliance will be sent to Norfolk in July for repairs. The Alliance will receive a set of new boilers.

Another Mine Disaster.

A despatch of June 18th from London says: "A terrible explosion has occurred in the Pendlebury mine near Manchester. Sixty miners have been rescued alive, and ten dead bodies have been taken out. There are 100 men confined in the pit, and it is not believed any of them can be saved."

A later despatch says the explosion was in the Clifton colliery, that there were 349 men in the mine, of whom 160 were at work in the level in which the explosion took place, and that 120 were rescued. It was feared the other men in the mine would all perish.

Medical.

The doctors of the state held their annual conclave at Concord this week. However differing upon minor questions of professional interest, the body upon the question "What in the opinion of medical men causes the most sickness throughout the year?" were unanimous in pronouncing it to be "the prohibitory law." After this conclusion several of the savants wept out and took a "prescription."

The Cholera.

There were 632 new cases of cholera, and 151 deaths, reported in the cities of Castellon de la Plana, Valencia and Murcia on the 17th inst. One new case and six deaths occurred in Madrid.

The old fashioned well-sweep with the moss-covered bucket hangs in many a well in York. Water keeps much better there than in Portsmouth; other liquids don't last so long, except cider; and that goes off very fast.

Ex-Gov. George C. Perkins of California, with his wife and two daughters, have arrived at Kennebunk to remain during the summer months. Kennebunk is Mr. Perkins' native town, and he has a mother and sister who still live on the old homestead, which is beautifully situated on the banks of the Kennebunk river in one of the most romantic spots in the village.

The Congregationalist society, which is now holding its fifty-ninth annual conference at Lewiston, has many old landmarks in this county. The first church, in York, is over two hundred years old, having been organized in 1672, and is the first church ever organized in Maine. Mr. Dummer was its first pastor. He was killed by the Indians in an attack made upon York in 1692. The following churches are over one hundred years old; Eliot, Kennebunk First, Kittery and South Berwick. Among the longest pastorates in the state have been those of Rev. Mr. Thompson at Acton, sixteen years; Rev. Mr. Lewis, South Berwick, eleven years; and Rev. Mr. Sewall at the Frst church in York, twelve years.—Biddeford Journal.

Gov. Currier has appointed the following staff: Adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Augustus D. Ayling of Concord; inspector general, Brig. Gen. Elbert Wheeler of Nashua; quartermaster general, Brig. Gen. Charles Williams of Manchester; surgeon general, Brig. Gen. George W. Pierce of Winchester; judge advocate general, Phillip Carpenter of Lancaster; commissary general, Frank T. Brown of Whitefield; aids, Cols. Frank E. Kaley of Milford, Hiram H. Dow of Conway, George G. Davis of Marlboro, Alfred A. Collins of Danville.

John T. Ordway of Warner enlisted in the Ninth New Hampshire volunteers in 1862 for three years, but after serving nine weeks in camp in Concord was taken sick, and when the regiment went to the front he was left behind. He was never ordered to the front, and was not discharged until June 17th of this year, when his papers arrived from Washington together with $1640, due him as a private soldier.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, June 18th, Mayor Page in the chair:

Present the full board, except Alderman Walker.

The records of the last meeting were read and approved.

Samuel S. Frye's request for relay of sidewalk on Cass and Islington streets, was referred to the committee on streets, with power. Also John Conlon's request for relay of sidewalk on Middle street, and Wm. Ward's request for leave to trim a tree on Marlborough street.

The committee on drinking fountain and trough on Market square reported in favor of the same, and that it could be properly done for $550. Accepted, and the committee empowered to carry it into effect.

Petition of George Boss and others for the acceptance of a street, was granted.

Bids of several banks for the city business were submitted, and that of the New Hampshire National bank was accepted — three per cent for deposits., and five per cent for loans.

The common council gave notice that they had passed a bill for the abatement of the north millpond nuisance, appropriating $22,366 for the purpose, with a proviso as to whom should be employed and who should furnish the materials. A committee of conference, consisting of Ald. Cook, Coffin and Eldredge, with the mayor added, was appointed to meet such as the council should appoint, the result of the conference being that the bill was amended in the council by striking out the restrictions; and as amended, it was passed by the board of aldermen under suspension of the rules.

Bill of $104.40 on account of naphtha lights was ordered paid.

Capt. Marcy appeared, in favor of the extension of Mechanic street; and the special committee on the extension reported in its favor. The report was accepted, and referred to a meeting of the full board with the street commissioner added.

Samuel W. Emery appeared as counsel for John Wood, who claims $162 for sheep and lambs killed on Pest island by dogs. The claim was referred.

The mayor was authorized to have the bells rung at morning, noon and sunset on the 4th of July, and to arrange for a band concert on the Parade in the evening.

The matter of filling in the well on Court street was referred to the committee on streets, with power.

The mayor said that $4 were collected last year on dog licenses, and he thought there were more than four dogs in the city. The city marshal was instructed to enforce the law concerning licenses for dogs.

The council gave notice of the appointment of the following committee on abating the north pond nuisance, to act with the aldermanic committee: Ward one, Ward; ward two, Stackpole; ward three, Hand; ward four, Cunningham; John E. Locke.

Adjourned for one week.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

THURSDAY, June 18th.

Ellen Parks and William Woods, for drunkenness, were each sentenced to pay $3 and $6.90 costs, and for not doing so were ordered to Brentwood to work it out.

John McDonald, another drunk, was fined $5, costs $6.90, and for non-payment was sent to the country to keep the others company.

SUCCESSFUL BIDDERS.

The school committee of Beverly, Mass., have awarded the contract to build a new schoolhouse in that place to John E. Giddings & Son of this city, their bid being $19,220. Other bids were: Jeremiah White, Beverly, $19,790; James Fanning, Salem, $19,800; John T. Ober, Beverly, $21,196.

Messrs. John E. Giddings & Son are reported to have also secured the contract to build a memorial library building in Tilton, N. H., presented to the town by Mrs. Cummings of Boston, whose first husband, a Mr. Hall, was a resident of Tilton.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

A meeting of the workingmen will be held at Franklin hall this (Friday) evening at seven o'clock, in relation to making an effect to recover the back pay due under the eight-hour law.

THE COLLECTOR OF THE PORT.

Inquiries were recently addressed from the treasury department in Washington to the several collectors of customs in New England, asking if there could be any reduction of the force employed or salaries paid. The Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald sends an abstract of some of the replies, from which we take the following:

Although business at Portsmouth has fallen off during the winter, Collector A. F. Howard can recommend no reduction in force at present. He suggests, however, that the deputy collector for Dover, Exeter and Newmarket should reside at Dover, and recommends the appointment of Joshua L. Foster.

A. A. Hanscom, Esq., has taken the oath of office as collector of customs for this port, and filed his official bond with the treasury department at Washington. The new collector it is stated will enter upon his duties on the first day of July.

GREENLAND.

Mr. Editor: The strawberry festival of the Congregational society in Greenland on the 17th was a very successful affair. It was not a Bunker Hill celebration, but the olive branch of Peace waved triumphantly over the scene. Coffee, cake, ice cream and strawberries were in favor, and the proceeds amounted to $45.82. I saw in the audience the pleasant face of at least one Portsmouth citizen, who announced at the close that he had had a very enjoyable visit, and should come again.

I was sorry to hear of a criticism published in the Portsmouth Penny Post from a Greenland correspondent, reflecting severely and unjustly on the Portsmouth wheelmen who attended the strawberry festival of the sister church a few evenings ago. As this is a neuralgic time of year, perhaps "Greenland" took too large a dose of quinine and it affected his head. The arriving home of the party safely on such a dark night was sufficient evidence that they were all right. It must require asl evel a head and as steady a hand to guide one of those two-wheeled locomotive as it does to manage the terror-stricken animals which feel that their rights are infringed on when they see them. H.

GREENLAND, June 18th.

MARITIME NOTES.

The attention of patrons of the Kittery Point steamer James Sampson is called to the revised time-table in another column, notice of which is especially advisable on the part of those who intend going to the point on the boat's last trip down at night, lest they perchance "get left."

While a hogshead of molasses was being hauled from the railroad station to Ward's distillery, on the 17th inst., the fermentation induced by the intense heat caused one head to be bursted, and the saccharine liquid ran briskly out; about half of it was saved.

A case of some interest is being tried before the supreme judicial court in Boston, in which Col. Charles A. Sinclair of this city and others seek to recover of John Wooldredge (formerly president of the Eastern railroad) $75,000, for an alleged defrauding them in the sale of a mine in California which did not pan out as represented.

Early vegetables raised in this vicinity are being brought into market daily, and show much superiority over the withered and shrunken specimens coming from the south during the heated term. Augustus Shapley of Eliot came into town last Thursday morning with a handsome lot of turnips of the Dutch flat variety, to Stott.

Mr. W. W. Whitcomb of Boston has retired from the presidency of the Portsmouth Shoe Co., and a Mr. Berry of Lynn, Mass., a large shoe manufacturer there, has been temporarily appointed by the directors to oversee the business. Mr. W. J. Frost of this city, who has for several years been foreman of the cutting room at the factory, has been appointed superintendent of the shop, and the work will go on uninterrupted.

Samuel Mendum, son of Mr. Willis B. Mendum of Dorchester, graduated at Tufts college with high honors on the 18th inst.

The Walker house, hitherto so-called, on the corner of Elm and Vaughan streets near the railroad station, is now conducted as a house of public entertainment under the name Hotel Flanders, with Mr. C. R. Flanders as manager. Meals are served from six o'clock in the morning to eleven at night, and the lodging accommodations are good; the house is well located to catch transient trave by rail, and we can see no reason why the venture of the enterprising managers should not turn out to be a profitable one.

Beans which just appeared above ground on Tuesday of this week, during the succeeding hot night grew fully an inch and a half, making a very distinct show of rows on Wednesday morning. This was in the garden of the Hill estate on Vaughan street, where the land is low, moist and very rich, and entirely protected from chilling winds.

The big stone trough designed originally to be placed in front of the post-office, and afterward located in front of the jail, remains in statu quo. There is no water in it except what rains into it, for the pump won't go.

Despite the exceeding hot weather of the early part of this week it was cool enough on Thursday morning in Newington, in the low lands, for a light white frost, which however did not seem to do any damage.

The barn, house and outbuildings of Clarence Brown at Hampton Falls were burned to the ground on the 17th inst.; loss $8000, with but $2000 insurance. It was in this house that Mr. Brown's father and mother were murdered a dozen years or more ago by Pike, who was hung for the crime.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their nature. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all disease arising from a foul condition or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete without it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a medicine for the treatment of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend and blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Biliousness

Is very prevalent at this season, the symptoms being bitter taste, breath offensive, tongue coated, sick headache, drowsiness, dizziness, loss of appetite. If this condition is allowed to continue, serious consequences may follow. By promptly taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, a fever may be avoided or premature death prevented. It is a positive cure for biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

Doctors!

Of all the different schools in the country, have thousands die every year of Bright's disease of the Kidneys, who could be living to-day if they had used Sulpher Bitters. They are unequalled in the world for all diseases of the kidneys.—New Haven Union.

It will be remembered that when the house of Stephen Young at Strafford Corner was blown to pieces by an accidental explosion of dynamite last fall, George Young of Lowell, Mass., and his fiancee, Sadie Greenfield of Rochester, were among those who were so terribly injured that it was thought they could not recover. They both got well, however, and on the 17th inst. were united in marriage.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock; nor into any wharf, but shall carry them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any dead meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

"Second Wind."

The reader may not be aware that in ordinary respiration we only use a portion of our lungs, the cells at the extremity not being brought into play. This is the reason why those who are not "in training," and who try to run for any distance, soon begin to gasp, and, unless they are courageous enough to persevere in spite of the choking sensation, are forced to stop. But if they will persevere, the choking goes off, and the result is what is technically known as "second wind. When the second wind becomes fully established, the runner does not become out of breath, but goes on running as long as his legs will carry him. I know this by experience, having been accustomed to run three miles every morning over a very hilly road. The fact is, that on starting, the farthest portions of the lungs are choked with effete air and the remainder do not supply air enough to meet the increased circulation caused by exercise. By degrees, however, the neglected cells come into play, and when the entire lung is in working order the circulation and respiration again balance each other, and the "second wind" is the result. Now, let the reader experiment holding his breath against time, but let him force out of his lungs every particle of air that he can expel, and then draw as deep a breath as his lungs will hold. If this be repeated some seventy or eighty times, by way of imitation of the whale, the experimenter will find that he can hold his breath for a minute and a half without inconvenience.

Should he be a swimmer, he should always take this precaution before taking a header," and he will find that he can swim for considerable distance before he needs rise for breath.—Longman's Magazine.

How to Breathe.

One of the leading physicians of New York City, a specialist in diseases of the lungs, says that imperfect respiration is at the bottom of much trouble. In such a case he shows the patient how to swell out the whole chest full and round by a deep inspiration, elevating and throwing back the shoulders; and then, when he has gotten into his lungs the last atom of air possible, to hold it in tightly for a time and then to let it off slowly, blowing out every atom of it if he possibly can by forcible expiration, drawing the shoulderds forward and pressing the chest to the smallest possible compass, thus throwing out all of the residual air, and all this through the nose, with mouth tightly closed. "Let him take a half dozen or more such forced respirations a dozen times a day," says the doctor "and he will soon double his vital capacity and relieve himself of his supposed chest trouble. Such forced respiration will compel every air cell possible to freely admit wholesome air into the little spaces and to expel it also, and some air cells that do not often perform their functions healthily will be compelled to do so."

The Jester Morosini.

Guiseppe P. Morosini, the custodian of Jay Gould's secrets and the guardian of the latter's private papers, is a great practical joker. If he stuck a pin in Mr. Gould's chair, Gould did not let on, but Morosini is no respector of persons in his fun. Once when there was a Union Pacific meeting at Gould's old office, at No. 80 Broadway, Morosini found time hanging heavily on his hands. At last a happy thought came to him. He cut a pile of newspapers in strips and stuffed the hands of the astute directors' hats with them. When Sidney Dillon, F. L. Ames, and the other gentlemen came to put on their hats, they found them too small. Each man tried on every hat in the lot, and confusion and wonderment prevailed until Morisini's little pleasantry was discovered. When Morosini was treasurer of the New Jersey Southern railroad he had no money to handle, for the reason that the company had no funds. A great many bills were due the 1st of one cold winter month, and Morosini prepared for the event. When the day came it brought with it a great crowd of persons who had bills to present. Morosini had seen to it that no fires was built and that the windows were opened and nailed so that they could not be closed. He went out to see if he could raise some money, and left the crowd to be frozen out. The experiment was a success.

Morosini has a hobby. It is the collection of antiques of all kinds, and especially old arms. He has the finest and most complete collection of ancient arms of anybody in the country. He likewise has a large collection of old miniatures painted on ivory. Kings, queens, and the nobility generally used to have their pictures painted in this manner, and Morosini's collection includes many royal specimens. Morosini is a man of fine bearing, and when he stands in the bow-window of Gould's office at Broadway and Rector street, as he does very often, the fair sex see something to admire amid the bustle of the great financial mart.—Financial Chronicle.

Affectionate Untruths.

There is a great amount of untruth about the formal terminations to many of our letters. Formality is doubtless always more or less false; but it seems a pity and a mistake that civilization should prompt us to utter falsehoods.

* * * Seeing then that very frequently not one of these affectionate phrases have an atom of truth in them, would it not do just as well to terminate with the name of the writer and a greeting, the same as though we had met our acquaintance in the street? Face to face no one would pretend to talk such nonsense. Fancy such a thing as telling half a dozen men that we were truly theirs, and a dozen others that we were ever theirs sincerely, and our receiving similar protestations every time we meet! Foreigners kissing and hugging in the streets would be nothing to it. Yet we write the nonsense we should be above expressing verbally. What we think to be necessary politeness in a letter we should consider ridiculous formality, and an absurd parade of words if they were exchanged in person.

The Poison in Tobacco.

If smoking is really a reprehensible habit, the physicians who had opposed are largely to blame for its continuance, for the theories have been so promptly disproved by experience that men are quite right in assuming that expert opinions on poisons are not deserving much respect. For instance, it has apparently been demonstrated by laboratory experiments that there is nicotine enough in a single mild cigar to kill a man. More than 1,000,000 cigars are consumed in New York every day, but who ever heard of a man dying of the effects of a single cigar? There is poison enough in a pound of the root from which manioca is prepared to kill a dozen men, yet two or three ounces of manioca are eaten daily by each of thousands of children with no bad effects. It is known, regarding this edible, that at a certain stage of preparation heat entirely destroys its poisonous properties; evidently a similar result, though not so radical, occurs when tobacco burns, otherwise each smoker would die after consuming a cigar. That some nicotine—an undoubted poison—is inhaled with tobacco smoke is quite evident, for the physical experience of beginners are exactly those of persons who have taken an under-dose of poison; nevertheless the system speedily accommodates itself to the intruder, and among veteran and steady smokers may be found thousands of the strongest and enduring phisiques in America, and thousands, too, of delicate organizations, which would at once succumb to a poison as active and virulent as tobacco is said to be.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA, RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and if your remedies are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cocks," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

H. MACK, Champion Comique Roller Skater YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

BEST FOR ANYTHING.

Having used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for eighteen months for Tetter, Itch, and finally cured, I am anxious to get it to sell on commission. I can recommend it beyond any remedies I have ever used for Tetter, Burns, Cuts, etc. In fact, it is the best medicine I have ever tried for anything.

E. S. HORTON. MYRTLE, MISS.

NEVER A COMPLAINT.

Since I have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES I have never heard a single complaint, but on the contrary every one who has used them has been well pleased with them, and they outsell all others. E. B. CUBBERLY, Druggist. ANDREWS, IND.

SCROFULOUS SORES.

I had a dozen bad sores upon my body, and tried all remedies I could hear of, and at last tried your CUTICURA REMEDIES and they have cured me.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

Krakatoa, the volcano in the straits of Sunda, which was torn asunder in the tremendous eruption of less than two years ago, is again threatening from its broken crater. The great fragments which were hurled miles from the green and quiet island which it had been from immemorial ages until that time, have disappeared; subterranean rumblings are heard, which extend far out at sea; flames issue from the crater, and the people of Java are in dread of another destructive convulsion of nature.

Suffering Womanhood.

Too much effort cannot be made to bring to the attention of suffering womanhood the great value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the diseases of women, and perhaps nothing is more effectual than the testimony of those who have been cured by it. Such an one is the wife of General Barringer of Winston, N. C., and we quote from the General's letter as follows: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Please allow me to add my testimony to the most excellent medicinal qualities of your Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Barringer was treated for several years for what the physicians called Leucorrhea and Prolapsus Uteri combined. I sent her to Richmond, Va., where she remained for six months under the treatment of an eminent physician without any permanent benefit. She was induced to try your medicine and after a reasonable time commenced to improve and is now able to attend to her business and considers herself fully relieved." [General Barringer is the proprietor of the American Hotel, Winston, N. C., and is widely known.]

Dyspepsia.

GENTS:—I feel it my duty to say respecting Burdock Blood Bitters, that it is the best medicine I ever took. I suffered two or three years from stomach troubles and dyspepsia as well as from liver and kidney complaint. I was not able to attend to my business. My wife was afflicted in much the same way. We read of your Bitters in the papers and made up our minds that we would try them. The result is my wife and I began to improve at once, and I am now able to do more hard work than before in ten years. It relieved my kidney troubles as well. We both wish you, the makers of it, Godspeed.

Eminent men of the United States army and navy, like Quartermaster-General Ingalls, Paymaster Pritchard and Commander Coghlan, state that the best remedy for the cure of pain is St. Jacobs Oil.

The annual convention of the New England Water Works association commenced at Springfield, Mass., June 18th.

My daughter was troubled with heart disease for five years, given up by physicians, had sinking spells, constant pain, great swelling over her heart extending to left arm, and severe spells of neuralgia extending over entire body, doctors could not help her. Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator cured her in three months.—Jas. SUMMER DRESSES—WHITENESS—COMPLICATIONS—STYLISH COLORS.

Thirty varieties of white wool show that we are to have a white summer, as also a woollen one. Then again, what soft prettinesses may not arise from an after wearing of the commencement dress; chosen originally in terror of some grim Professor, then modestly giving a change from other things more ornate. A change from silky crinkle, satiny shimmer, the shine of tissue, expensive China crape or tulle, so easily worn out. In the more dressy styles, tulle, indeed, plays an important part, frequently adorned by chenille loopings, pendent fuchsias, gilded wheat, silvered oats and the like, and usually as an overdress upon silk or satin. A glittering summer, moreover, we are to have. The glitter of gold, which shows itself everywhere in millinery, attaining a climax when hats are entirely of gilt; in trimmings, when they are stiffened by it; in materials, when it shows in straight warp or woof, winds among brocades or comes in dottings even on thin cotton goods. Prevalence of yellow is skin; a bevy of ladies now being often a very yellowish affair, and some genius would do well to compute the various shades. Some a bright copper, others pale, but all more yellowish than pure yellow. Nor let us forget the glitter, and, sometimes, the jingle of jet. It is a jetted summer; many are the jet bonnets, many the broad collars, the waists, the apron fronts, the interspersed trimmings of jet, and many is the dress of waning newness, freshened once more by convenient coverings of jet. Extremists have great opportunity, and go jingling along, or in the quiet of church time disturb their neighbors. Led away by glitter and jingle, however, I have perhaps too much neglected the subject of

WHITENESS.

It is a topic vast and various. Not dead, chalky whiteness, but white delicately tinged with cream, or where we see a purity, it is in some soft fabric which takes its tone from new surroundings and loses thus a characteristic stare. Yielding mulls, gently falling nainsook, silk muli, surah silk, or the family of sprigged or dotted muslins, capable of such innocent coquetry. The laces of the day give finish; bows answer unto bows, or by tuckings that ornament economically the straight skirt, may some gullible youth be betrayed into visions of Arcadian life in a cottage. One goes not astray in choosing white, and for morning, let us not forget the time-honored cross-bars that never grow old. Hamburg embroideries are a supreme modern invention, as regards white dresses; in a gradually ascending scale, reaching styles fine enough for the finest goods. Fashion runs, moreover, to lightness when not to whiteness, and the most insensible bachelor night be struck by the great number of light-colored toilettes. No material prettier or more inexpensive than pale, colored mohair, bestrewn by sprigs in natural hues and brought out by Lord & Taylor, (where bargains are always to be had) for thirty-eight cents per yard.

JUST SO.

Safety pins were never in greater demand, since the complications of the present costume require often such nice adjustment that an inch or two makes direst confusion. As when a proud succession of puffings meant to hang directly in the back, gets fatally twisted to one side; as when some one of them gives way and goes straggling off, causing ruin to the fair fabric. My friends, it is a complicated world we live in this summer. This must hang so, and that must hang the other way; this must puff this way, and that must puff that way; the other must go the other way, and some other thing must go some other way. Do not attempt to get along without a mirror; the longer the better. Stand not hurriedly before it; turn round and round, and if possible, have a trusty friend to look at you round. It is, moreover, a colored world we live in. Delicately blend your tints, chief among which are the yellowish, running from pale ecru to deep copper. Greens, many, and running almost into light yellow, descending through grades of olive, reseda and myrtle. Blue, to some extent, from dark navy to lighter shades tinged with heliotrope, or pale, dull varieties. Red, very popular, from exceedingly bright to pale or dull brick red; usually as a combination. Brown, and its first cousin, bronze, much worn. Heliotrope has bloomed out rather unexpectedly. Pale pink for dressy goods, and brighter for touches in millinery. LUCY CARTER.

A Foreigner's View.

A staff correspondent of the Montreal Gazette writes about this country as follows:

A great deal of talk is always, apparently, in order touching the "political corruption" in the United States, and especially is this true in case of the American press itself. Reading the celebrated war cry of the New York Sun, "To turn the rascals out," a foreigner not familiar with the peculiarities of newspaper campaigning in the country would naturally reach the conclusion that the government was rotten from core to skin, and the American people themselves so thoroughly corrupt that they continued, year after year, to vote corruption into a large lease of power. What, then, must be his astonishment to learn that when the "rascals" who had been in power continuously for a quarter of a century, with every department in their absolute control, including the treasury, during which time more money had been received and paid out by this "corrupt" party than by any government in the same time since the world began, were at last turned out of office and the supreme scrutiny of hostile examination turned upon the record made, and the vast millions in the treasury counted, it is discovered that the amount actually in the vaults tallies with the total to be accounted for to a cent! At one time it was thought that the count of the millions would show a deficit of two cents, but the two cents that had broken out of a package and dropped down between the bags of coin, with which the vault was filled from floor to ceiling, were subsequently found, and the superb record of national honesty made. I would like to own the two cents that made the proud record complete.

The many friends of the late Rev. Joseph Pierpont will doubtless be pleased to learn that a memorial volume, containing a biography of the distinguished preacher and philanthropist, is now in preparation. Persons having letters or manuscript written by him will materially add to the accuracy and early completion of the work by sending their address to Pierpont, No. 3 Chauncy street, Boston, Mass.

Portsmouth Fire Alarm Telegraph.

THE new system of Fire Alarm will go into effect on Saturday, June 20, at 6 o'clock a. m. After the above named hour all alarms of fire will be given under the new system. Citizens generally are particularly requested to make themselves familiar with all the Box signals, locations &c., as by so doing they may oftentimes greatly add to the efficiency of the Department. All signals will be given only from the North Church bell and from the blowing of the whistle at Edwards's Brewery.

Those therefore who have heretofore helped give an alarm of fire, either by ringing the bells or blowing the whistles, will hereafter take no part in giving an alarm after Saturday, June 20th, 6 o'clock a. m., as it would only conflict with the working of the new system.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

LEBANON N. H., Nov. 19, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,

F. C. CHURCHILL,

(Firm of Carter & Churchill.)

SECOND REUNION OF KEARSARGE SURVIVORS.

The second annual reunion of survivors of the original crew of the U. S. S. Kearsarge took place in this city on Friday, June 19th, the 21st anniversary of the battle with the confederate cruiser Alabama. At the first reunion, a year ago, there were assembled True W. Priest, John W. Young, Martin Hoyt, Thomas Salmon and William Y. Evans of this city, George W. Remick of Newburyport, Lyman P. Spinney of Kittery and Jere. Young of Newmarket, all of whom were present at this second reunion, with the addition of Lyman H. Hartford of this city, Patrick McKeever of Boston, James Magee of Marblehead and Charles A. Poole of Waltham. Representatives of the Times, the Penny Post and the Chronicle, as invited guests, also participated in the dinner, which was served in the private dining room at the Kearsarge house at one o'clock, and was as social and agreeable as it was entirely informal, there being neither regular toasts nor set speeches, but instead a hearty interchange of friendly greetings, off-hand rehearsals of cruising reminiscences sad or ludicrous, and graphic recitals of many unwritten incidents of the famous naval duel. The occasion was thoroughly enjoyable, and evidently enjoyed to the full by all.

DECLINED, WITHOUT THANKS.

The Dover Democrat copies from the Boston Herald the item in regard to Collector Howard having recommended Mr. Joshua L. Foster (editor of the Democrat) as deputy collector of customs for Dover, Exeter and Newmarket, and comments thereupon as follows: "On the supposition that the above is true, we hardly know whether to take it as a very small manifestation of good-will on the part of Collector Howard, or as gross insult. What kind of a thing does he suppose we are anyhow? Does he take us for an insignificant little bantam among the buff-cochins and shanghies of Uncle Sam's barn yard, or a pollywog among the big turtles of the puddle, or a nibbling titmouse in the great political menagerie? If so he will see his grievous mistake before he is much older."

MARITIME NOTES.

The steamer Appledore on Friday towed to the Shoals the floating stage and brow of the steamboat landing at Appledore.

The schooner Albert Woodbury, Downs master, came in on the 18th inst. with thirty barrels of mackerel, taken off Cape Ann, the first fare brought into this port this season.

The steam whaler Mabel Bird, of Boothbay, Me., bound to Portland, was lying at Randall & Caswell's wharf on Friday evening. She recently towed into Portland a large whale, which was put on exhibition there.

The schooner Georgietta, which went around to York from this port to take forward the cargo of the schooner of the Sea Foam, picked up derelict and towed into York, arrived at New York on the 18th inst.

The little steamer Gypsey, belonging to the hotel Wentworth, was out on the river for a trial trip on Friday, her engine having been overhauled and repaired by the Portsmouth Machine Co.

The brick dividing wall between the buildings of the Portsmouth Brewing Co. and the Gas Co. would seem to be strong enough for all practical purposes, being four and one-half feet thick.

Mr. James H. Ricker, formerly of Portland but for a long while past the engineer of the steamer Mystic, on Thursday last entered into a life copartnership with one of Kittery's fair daughters, Miss Arvilla Junkins. The popular groom has a large circle of friends who wish unalloyed happiness to him and his bride.

President Lord of the Boston & Maine railroad left the Western division at Salmon Falls on Friday, and passed through this city on his way to Boston from Kennebunk. The president was accompanied by D. W. Sanborn, master of transportation, who shew him the new floral adornments on the grounds south of the restaurant.

The coal shed of the Boston & Maine railroad, west of the roundhouse in the yard of the station in this city, is being overhauled, and in some places newly planked at the sides.

The electric fire alarm goes into effect at nine o'clock this (Saturday) morning, and hereafter all alarms will be sounded by it, on the North church bell and the whistle of the Eldredge brewery, only.

Mr. Alvah Trafton is now in charge of the almshouse and town farm of York, and is clearing up the pastures and making repairs. The farm was left in good condition by the late superintendent, Mr. William P. Titcomb, who now is taking care of his own place. Under the charge of Mr. Titcomb all the bushes and weeds were removed from about the stone fences, which was a great improvement in looks, if in nothing else. The arable land is in a good state of cultivation, and the crops are promising exceedingly well. The inmates of the almshouse are mostly very old people of respectability, with some naturally unfortunate, all being generously and kindly cared for.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

Surprise Party.

Translated from De Las Novedades, N. Y., May 28.

Not one of the usual kind, where those who come furnish the music, feast and merriment, for in this instance, at least, the surprised parties do the dancing and are paid for doing so.

We refer to those who were lucky enough to hold a share of the ticket No. 5347 in the Original "Little Havana" (Gould & Co.'s) decided by Royal Havana Lottery Class 1187, drawn at Havana on the 11th inst. That number drew $50,000 in Spanish Gold in the Government Lottery at Cuba, and decided also the ticket bearing that number in the Original "Little Havana" (Gould & Co.'s) entitling the same to $12,500 U. S. Currency, which latter was divided in fractions and held: Two-fifths by J. A. Castrezana, Tailor, 218 6th Ave., N. Y. One-fifth by Mrs. Isabella Paez, 245 16th St., So. Brooklyn, N. Y. One-fifth (jointly) by A. Jrnofsky, A. Krouse and Rafael Bottel, cigar makers, employed at Stachelberg's Factory, 154 So. 5th Ave., N. Y., and the remaining one-fifth by a gentleman residing in N. Y. City, whose name and address, in deference to his wishes, are not given.

We are advised that these obligations have been promptly paid, in full, by the General Agents Shipsey Company, 1212 Broadway, N. Y., immediately on the arrival of the Official List, and that such promptness in usual with them and it is only one more evidence that the reliability of "This Little Havana" (Gould & Co.'s) cannot be questioned.

We congratulate those who have fared so well through this investment. May each and all enjoy their share while some one else, on this occasion, pays the fiddler. We would not object to being the surprised parties, and in the same manner—would you?

The "New England Limited," over the New York & New England railroad, is the popular train between Boston and New York, it making the run in six hours, leaving both cities at three P. M.

Making Unwholesome Food.

The following communication which we take from a Concord paper may be of interest to those persons, if there are such, who think think there is no warrant for the existence and work of the anti-cruelty society, but who still wish wholesome meat for food:

On June 6th, an animal was taken from the farm connected with St. Paul's school, to be butchered at East Concord. Three men, debased and brutalized, were employed to take the animal. The agent of the N. H. S. P. C. A. was called to interfere with the suffering the wretches were inflicting upon the poor beast. The cruelty was needless, the hide was cut with the cruel goad or brad, two rings were in his nose, chains on his neck and both fore legs, iron rings on his legs that had torn the flesh so that it was one mass of blood and gore—and in this condition of frenzy, excitement and heat, the poor beast was made to travel miles, to be converted into beef. Dr. D. D. Slade, professor of zoology of Harvard university, in a recent lecture before the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, says: "An animal to be slaughtered should be conducted to the spot quickly." Trifling as these measures appear to the professional butcher they are of vast importance, not only in view of avoiding cruelty, but as affecting the wholesomeness of the meat. Inhuman cases of brutality are occurring in this city every day. It is humiliating to human nature to know that beings in human form are so debased, brutalized and devoid of all feeling, that they can inflict such misery and suffering on poor, helpless, dumb animals.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them at early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office." EDMUND BURKE, late Commissioner of Patents.

BOSTON, October 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: You procured for me, in 1869, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you.

Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their nature. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, etc.,
24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following section of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any state meat, head, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flats adjacent to or near the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

CIRCUS APPRENTICES.

How Men and Women Eminent in the Ring Learned Their Business.

"There are no circus apprentices nowadays," said W. D. Hutchinson yesterday; "circus proprietors get their talent ready-made and only want the best. The old way of training for the ring was by an apprenticeship of seldom less than six years. One of the old-time trainers was Levi J. North, who was in his prime about 1840. At that time circus people were not brought up to do any particular act. A good man was supposed to be able to do everything, to be as good an acrobat as a juggler, or as clever a clown as a bareback rider. The boy apprentice would usually commence by learning to ride a pair of ponies. The method of teaching boys to be bareback riders was almost the same in those days as at the present time. They were first put to work on a 'mechanic,' which consists of a pole set in the middle of a sawdust ring, with a high arm, over which ran a rope. The end of the rope was fastened to the boy's belt as he stood on the horse and the instructor held the other. As the horse galloped around the ring the pole and arm revolved. If the pupil slipped from the horse's back he was saved a fall by the rope fastened to his belt. They were made to practice three or four hours a day.

"Levi North's circus performers were made up principally of apprentices, and North himself was a performer in the ring. For practicing on the road, where no 'mechanic' could be erected, a short rope was tied to the pupil's belt, and fastened to a ring in the saddle. This prevented him from falling to the ground. The old gymnasts always had the youngsters with them learning, but in these times gymnasts come from the city gymnasiums, or learned their business in the barn-loft of the old homestead. Sometimes a performer finds a smart boy, teaches him during the winter, and the next season brings him out in a 'brother' or combination act. There are two large schools for circus riders and gymnasts in the east. One is kept near Paterson, N. J., and the other by James Cook, an Englishman. They were first established for the use of members of the profession who wished to add new features to their acts, or to keep themselves in training during the winter."

"Did the women riders serve apprenticeship?"

"Why, no—that is, not in this country, for most of our riders are foreigners. Yet some of the best and most daring horsewomen we have ever had, in the ring were American girls. Alice Lake who captivated the whole country about 1860 by her riding, was the daughter of 'Bill' and Agnes Lake, of Robinson & Lake's circus. She was taught to ride from infancy, and what she did not know about a circus was not worth knowing, as her father was a clown and her mother a slack-wire performer. In the height of her success her death startled the professional world.

"Crossing Lake Pontchartrain on a steamboat with her husband and a crowd of friends one day, she leaned over the rail watching the water, when a large diamond cross valued at thousands of dollars became detached from about her throat and fell overboard. She clutched for it, lost her balance, fell, and was never again seen.

"Rose and Sally Stickney were great women riders twenty years ago; they served a sort of apprenticeship to Sam Stickney, the rider and general performer. Rose Madigan, another good rider of that time, was also a pupil of her father. One of the pet stories of the old-time circus men is that told about the famous bareback rider, Ella Zoyara, who appeared about 1860 with S. Q. Stokes, an old-time showman. In New York Zoyara's daring riding aroused great enthusiasm. She did things on horseback that no woman had ever yet attempted, and as she was very pretty and of splendid physique she soon had hundreds of admirers. She began a tour of the country, but had not gone far before she met with an accident. It was trivial in nature, but most alarming in its results, for in half an hour the whole show knew that Ella Zoyara, the beautiful woman rider—was—a man! It was afterward found that her proper name was Omar Kingsley, an American lad. Kingsley afterward married Sallie Stickney, the rider, and died in India.

"All the great riders served an apprenticeship in their younger days. Jim Robinson, who was famous in 1850 as a bareback rider, served under his father, John Robinson; Bob Stickney, who was a favorite in 1857, was taught by his father, Sam Stickney; 'Billy' Morgan, who was with the European circus as late as 1873 and who astonished people by his daring hurdle jumping, was another of the old-time apprentice boys. He was murdered by robbers last winter in Texas. Charles W. Fish, one of the finest of modern riders, was apprenticed to Charles Rodgers, of the old circus firm of Spaulding & Rodgers, and William Dutton served his apprenticeship with 'Bill' Lake."—Philadelphia Times.

A Hungarian Bridal Procession.

The bride-mother greeted the little rose bride cordially, and the Count, after speaking with the groom, handed her into his carriage, where she was seated at the right of the bride-mother, the Count sitting opposite to her. She showed some emotion, but bore herself with a simple, graceful dignity which would have done credit to a fine lady. Then began our progress to the church, at the other end of the little town, the bridegroom and bridemaids walking near the Count's carriage. Young beech trees had been cut down and set in the ground, forming an allee of tender green foliage from house to church, through which we passed. At least a thousand people were on foot about us, throwing torpedoes beneath our horses' feet, singing and shouting, and sometimes dancing in couples. I can give you no idea of the noise and confusion and of the discordant music; of the mad plunging of the horses; of the wild capers of the ponies of the banderium; and, but for the continued and smiling complacency of those beside me, I should have experienced terror rather than enjoyment of this very novel and un-American bridal procession.

But It Cured The Lumbago.

A veteran whaler, who has been an occasional sufferer from lumbago, got a half-dozen porous plasters yesterday, and, before retiring for the night, pasted himself together with them. His wife was quite anxious about his restlessness, which continued to grow worse until near day-light, when a succession of groans and twitchings caused her to inquire what was the matter. She was astonished with the reply: "Matter be blowed! the darned seizing has hauled itself up to the masthead!" One of the plasters didn't stick where it was planted, but worked loose, strolling leisurely up to the pillow, and was soon doing duty as a nightcap. It took two hours' scrubbing and two gallons of hot suds to holystone the stuff out of the victim's hair, but it cured the lumbago.—New London Telegram.

In a recent sermon, alluding to the distinction made in the "Rise and Fall of Silas Lapham," between people living at the South End and at the Back Bay, a Boston clergyman said that the people who lived on land that God made were "just as good as those who lived on land made by man."

The celebrity of Scotch gardeners is said to be largely due to the creditable care which Scotch master gardeners in the last century bestowed on the technical and general education of their apprentices in the long winter evenings. Scotch gardeners have been famous for nearly 200 years.

SULPHUR BITTERS

THE BEST AND GREATEST MEDICINE

It will drive the Humor from your system, and make your skin clean and smooth. Those Pimples and Blotches which mar your beauty are caused by impure blood, and can be removed in a short time, if you are wise and use SULPHUR BITTERS, the great blood purifier.

Why suffer with Boils, Humors, Scrofula, Rheumatism? Why are you troubled with Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Indigestion, Liver and Lungs out of order? Why are you troubled with Nervous and all Chronic Diseases? Why let your blood become so impure, when a few bottles of SULPHUR BITTERS will make you healthy and happy? Why suffer with Fever and Ague, Malaria, Chills and Fever, when SULPHUR BITTERS is a sure cure? Why let your children suffer with Scrofula, Sore Eyes, Ulcers, Swelling, Eruptions, Sore Throat, Mercurial Disease, when SULPHUR BITTERS will cure them? Why let your wives suffer with Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, Irregularities, when SULPHUR BITTERS will cure them? Why let your children suffer with Worms, when SULPHUR BITTERS will expel them? Why let your children suffer with Scald Head, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Throat, Mercurial Disease

Attorney-General Charles B. Roberts of Maryland, publicly certifies to the remarkable efficacy of Red Star Cough Cure. This remedy is rapidly gaining favor on account of its being free from opiates and poisons, and at the same time wonderfully effective.

At Charlottesville, Va., Thursday, 18th inst., Joe Barbour and Horace Terrill were executed in the jail yard, the former for the murder of Randall Jackson, and the latter for the murder of a girl named Mary Foster. The criminals and their victims were all colored. The execution was private.

Can you longer doubt positive assertions? A person says, "Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator did me a world of good; nothing I ever used before did me any good, it just cured me of heart disease. $1.00 per bottle at druggists.

The Legislature.

This week Major Urch and about forty other braves of the General Court, go to Portland to attend the G. A. R. demonstration. In the meantime the fellows who sit around at Concord are anxious to ascertain what is to be done in the way of a battle between the Railway Kings. As near as we can learn the matter is in doubt, which is in a measure illustrated by the following—

SOLILOQUY OF THE GENERAL MANAGER.

To fight or not to fight! That is the question:—
Whether 'tis better for the line to suffer
The flings and arrows of John George's tongue,
Or to take arms against a sea of lobbies,
And by opposing end them? To lie; to trade—
No more; and by a trade to say we end
The question now before the court, is a consummation
Devoutly to be wished.
To legislate, perchance to balk the cross
And let the other solons make the law
Instead of any dudish chief. That's the rub.
The lease, our lawyers say, will stand.
But then the dread of something after this—
The undiscovered process, from whose snares
No dead-head ever returns—puzzles the board,
And makes us rather dodge the present issues,
And fly to one we rather would not see.
Thus, Pearson makes a trouble for us all.
When we have shackled on the upper roads.
And so the Lowell's line of operation
Is hampered with a sickly sort of doubt.

An Incorruptible Patriot.

Mr. Joshua L. Foster, of Dover, seems to be filled with indignation, either that a republican collector of customs should presume to recommend him as a suitable man for a tide waiter, or what is far more probable, that a man who advocates democratic principles as he does, should be regarded as capable of curtailing his offensive partisanship by consenting to take an office under the national administration. Somebody has blundered. In the division of the spoils it was presumed that Mr. Foster would accept a portion of this sort in some degree commensurate with his political deserts, and whoever has charge of these affairs probably has handed the out-going collector a list of names, but it seems there has been a mistake in the estimate of Joshua.

Perhaps he would have preferred something better, though we had much rather be permitted to indulge in our admiration of the patriotism of our former townsman, by continuing in the belief that however much the office may seek the man in his case, he is not to be swerved from the path of his political integrity by any participation in office-holding which possibly could divert him from his consistent course as a patriot, and restrain him from hitting a head even if on the shoulders of one of his own political faith should he deem it his duty thus to exercise the editorial prerogative.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steamer Pinafore took a good load of passengers and luggage to the Shoals on Saturday morning. The schooner E. A. Creed is at the islands, tight as a bottle and in condition for good service this season in taking out fishing and sailing parties from the hotels, under command of Capt. Joe. Haley.

The big schooner Yale, lying at Concord railroad wharf, made a fine display of bunting on Sunday, having a large flag flying from each masthead and a line of signals from the main truck to the port quarter. The four-masted schooner C. B. Church had a flag at each masthead.

A large fleet of fishing vessels were in the lower harbor on Saturday, seeking bait from the weirs, but not getting much. Bait is very scarce all along the coast.

The schooner yacht Wm. H. Russell, Browne master, sailed from this port at nine o'clock Sunday morning for Portland, with a small party.

Mr. Samuel R. Gardner, clerk of the board of engineers of the Portsmouth fire department, visited the navy yard on Saturday to notify the authorities of the yard of the new regulations concerning alarms of fire. He had not visited the yard before since twenty-one years ago, when he was employed as a clerk there, and removed for having voted the electoral ticket bearing the name of Gen. George B. McClellan as presidential candidate.

Hon. E. C. Moody of York was in town on Saturday, the first time for several weeks, as he has been busily engaged in farming operations; among his other agricultural enterprises, he has this spring sown seventeen bushels of grain, mostly barley. Landland Safford of the Pepperell house, Kittery Point, was in the city the same day, procuring supplies, there being already a number of comfort-seekers at his house, and others to arrive immediately.

The other livery men about the city say that Nathan Jones must fail if he keeps cutting into his capital by selling carriages at less than cost. But he is always ready for a trade, and recently took three tons of soft soap in the way of business exchange. Envious rivals say he will use up all this soft soap in horse trades.

Mr. William H. Carroll, formerly employed in the sale of cigars at the Quincy house, Boston, is on a visit to his native city. He is going to the encampment of the Grand Army at Portland, and afterward to the White mountains. He will make Portsmouth his headquarters during the heated term.

The Washington Republican recently published a map showing the drainage into the receiving reservoir of the Washington water supply from a circuit of thirty-six miles, by which farm houses, slaughtering places, villages, etc., are shown to drain into the creek. As the general visitor in Washington at this time makes but little if any use of the water for drinking purposes, the country at large is likely to be spared the ill effects of this pollution, which must in the end be deleterious to the inhabitant.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,
J. E. SMITH,
10 Butterfield Street.

"That Extreme Tired Feeling."

"The first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good; her food does her good, her sleep is better, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA."

Portsmouth Fire Alarm Telegraph.

THE new system of Fire Alarm will go into effect on Saturday, June 20, at 9 o'clock a. m. After the above named hour all alarms of fire will be given under the new system. Citizens generally are particularly requested to make themselves familiar with all the Box signals, locations &c., as by so doing they may ostentimes greatly add to the efficiency of the Department. All signals will be given only from the North Church bell and from the blowing of the whistle at Eldredge's Brewery.

Those therefore who have heretofore helped give an alarm of fire, either by ringing the bells or blowing the whistles, will hereafter take no part in giving an alarm after Saturday, June 20th, 9 o'clock a. m., as it would only conflict with the working of the new system.

THE WEATHER.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 56 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

WHOSE FAULT?

Mr. Editor: I notice by your report of the proceedings of the city government, that the mayor informs the aldermen that four dogs are licensed (I think he is mistaken, as very many owners are taxed for their dogs, while of course there are scores whose owners pay nothing for them.) Now who is at fault? The mayor is the chief executive officer of the city. His oath of office requires of him the performance of certain duties for which he is paid a liberal salary, considering the amount of work he puts in. His duties, the law says, if I remember correctly, are to cause the laws and regulations of the city to be executed and to see that the other officers do not neglect their duties.

Now it is just as much the mayor's duty to see that the city marshal does his duty in regard to dogs going at large without license, as it is to see enforced any other wholesome ordinances of the city, and it seems rather singular that the mayor should own up in this way, that he had neglected his duty. There are many worthless dogs drifting about town seeking whom they may devour. There are, of course, many valuable dogs,—that is, called so by their owners,—but of the wandering and apparently homeless race of curs there could be a sensible decrease for the good of the city. The idea of the city having to pay large sums for damages done by dogs, and while the subject is under discussion for the Chief Executive to say we do not enforce the laws against dogs because, like the laws against selling intoxicating liquors, we are opposed to their execution, seems decidedly original. What will be the next confession of this efficient reform government in order to obtain a re-election a few weeks hence? SHEEP OWNER.

THE ROCKINGHAM COUNTY LEGISLATIVE CONVENTION.

The Rockingham county delegation of the legislature held a meeting on Thursday, the 18th inst. The first question discussed was the salary of the County Solicitor, and on motion of Mr. John Sise it was voted to recommend the passage of the bill increasing that officer's salary from $400 to $600 per year. The subject of appropriations was brought up, and on motion of E. P. Kimball action was postponed until the next meeting of the delegation. It was also voted to visit the county farm for inspection on Friday the 26th inst.

A WARNING TO BIRD-NEST ROBBERS.

In Dover one day last week, John Jordan and Walter Burley were arraigned on complaints made by Hon. T. E. O. Marvin of this city, state agent of the N. H. S. P. C. A., charging them with violating the law for the prevention of cruelty by wantonly using a live fowl as a target for shooting, and with robbing bird nests in a field on the Back River road, near Dover point. Mr. Kivel appeared for the respondents, waived the reading of the complaint, entered a plea of nolo contendere, and urged the court to deal mercifully with his clients as it was the first time such a complaint had been made against either of them. Col. Marvin was willing to meet the counsel for the defence in a conciliatory spirit, but urged the imposing of a small fine in each case that the law for the protection of birds, their nests and young, might be vindicated, and other thoughtless young men and boys addicted to the wanton sport of shooting harmless creatures be warned of their liability to punishment. The court sentenced Jordan and Burley to pay a fine of four dollars and half of the costs each, amounting to twenty-one dollars.

PORTSMOUTH MACHINE CO.

The report of the annual meeting of the Portsmouth Machine Co. as published in the Journal contained several inaccuracies. The name of J. Albert Walker, Esq., was omitted from the list of directors; and the stockholders did not elect Mr. Nathan Whalley superintendent. Mr. Whalley resigned the superintendency in November last, and since Jan. 1st Mr. Wm. W. Carman has been superintendent. The president, treasurer, clerk and superintendent are elected by the directors, who held a meeting for organization on Saturday, the 20th inst., when Frank Jones was elected president, William H. Hackett clerk, and Charles H. Mendum treasurer. Mr. Mendum declined to serve on account of other business engagements, and the vacancy will be filled at a future meeting of the board.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, June 20th.

Thomas Conners and Joseph Hussey, for drunkenness, were each assessed $9.90, fine and costs, and ordered to the county farm to work it out.

Stephen McIver, a boy charged with throwing stones in the street, was discharged.

THE EXAMINING BOARD.

Doctors John W. Parsons and Andrew P. Sherburne of this city have been appointed examining surgeons for pensions, superceding Doctors Samuel C. Whittier and D. W. Jones. The board will contain one republican, Dr. Jeremiah F. Hall, the president, and two democrats,—a rule which we believe has been adopted elsewhere, and which is certainly a fair one for the ins to practice.

THE KEARSARGE VETERANS.

Besides the Kearsarge survivors whose names were given in our report of the anniversary dinner as being present on that very pleasant occasion last Friday, three others of the crew arrived later in the day, namely: Wm. Wainwright of Lawrence, Mass., A. M. Littlefield of Dover and S. P. Brackett of Great Falls. The entire party took a drive in the afternoon to the Wentworth and Fort Constitution, and at the latter place were photographed in a group.

FALSE ALARM.

A practice alarm was pulled in shortly after ten o'clock on Saturday night from box thirty-two, (at the Middle street church,) and was promptly responded to; but it could hardly be considered a thorough test of the efficacy of the new alarm, as no doubt most of the active young fellows belonging to the department were still out of their beds. A call about two o'clock in the morning would be a severer test. The apparatus worked well so far as we could judge; but we would suggest to the chief of the department that the signal from the Eldredge brewery whistle would be quite as startling and much more distinct, if the blasts were shorter and consequently closer together, and the pause between the first and second "figures" of the number correspondingly shortened.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The graduation exercises of the High school will take place in Franklin theatre on Thursday, the 25th inst., and in the evening the graduating class will give a reception in Franklin hall. The class of '85 numbers fifteen — eleven young women and four young men—as follows:

Fourth class, Alice L. Brewster, Grace Henderson, Belle Rider, Anna Lamprey, Edith L. Sheldon, Bertha M. Davis, Nellie A. Newell, Ethel M. Green, Chester B. Curtis, Frank W. Philbrick, H. Percy Martin, Albion T. Parker. Third class, (three years course,) Lillie Shannon, Emma Lord, Olivia Shuttleworth.

Chester B. Curtis and Frank W. Philbrick propose entering Dartmouth college in September; and Alice L. Brewster and Emeline N. deRochemont, the latter being a graduate in the class of '84, will enter Wellesley college for the four years term.

THE NORTH POND.

The millpond was drained on Saturday, and the flavor of the foul flats was so "high" that many of the hands in the Portsmouth shoe factory were made sick by it. On Sunday the pond was again asserting itself, with power. Mr. Charles A. Putnam of Salem, Mass., will commence this morning to make plans and specifications for the proposed sewer, to be submitted this evening to the committee having the matter in charge. The citizens want the nuisance effectually abated, and at once; and if this is done there will probably be little fault found even though the expense should exceed the estimates by a few dollars.

DROWNED.

Mr. Ingerbret Ingerbredsen, aged about twenty-one years, a member of the family of that name so well known as fishermen at the Shoals, was drowned on Sunday forenoon, the 21st inst. He was crossing the gut between Appledore and Malaga islands, to procure bait, when a sudden squall struck his wherry without warning, and capsized her in an instant. The steamer Pinafore came in from the islands to procure aid, and went out about two o'clock in the afternoon with one of the divers employed on the excavation of Gangway rock, to endeavor to recover the body.

The deceased was an industrious and trustworthy young man of excellent habits and reputation, and was intending shortly to go west to join his father and the rest of the family, who went from this city last spring to make a new home for themselves there. His boat sank under him when she went over, and after swimming about half way to the shore he went down, being no doubt exhausted by the weight of his heavy clothing.

The steamer arrived in again at eight o'clock Sunday evening, with the body, which was found by the diver after a difficult search in five fathoms of water, near where the unfortunate young man went down. The remains were given in charge of Fletcher & Tanton.

The roof of Ward's distillery at Christian Shore caught fire about half-past twelve o'clock on Saturday afternoon, but the blaze was put out without the giving of an alarm.

There was a surprise party on Water street Saturday, the street commissioner arriving there with one of the city teams, a driver and four of the street cleaning gang, who immediately proceeded to clean the street—the first time that job has been done by the city for twenty-two years, so it is said.

A real turtle soup was served at the Webster house on Friday last, prepared from a turtle weighing about seven pounds captured at Wells, Me., by Mr. Joseph W. Bell.

Mr. Edward E. Hall and Mrs. Blunt, wife of Prof. Blunt of Fort Collins, Col., arrived in this city last week on a summer's visit to their father, Dr. J. F. Hall.

If you want to hire a safe and comfortable boat for a sail or a row, call on Mr. Lewis Holmes at Commercial wharf.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—cures of diseases apparently almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, with so many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,
24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.
But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Three Reasons

Why every one needs, and should take, Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than at any other time. Take it now.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or shops overnight, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of the fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—being duly notified having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the tidal ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

TO EDUCATORS.

Subjects for Discussion at Educational Conventions.

There will, doubtless, be much discussion of the New Education at the various educational conventions during the summer. The reformation contemplated by those who have subscribed to the new doctrine leans toward things of practical utility. The old sneer of the scholars at the men who knew "little Latin and less Greek" has lost its point, for many of the scholars of to-day are seeking to relegate these studies to the rearward. So far as these proposed changes and substitutions imply a reaction against those educational processes which make dreamers of students rather than men of affairs, they are to be encouraged.

In the commercial life of to-day many of the most successful men—men whose abilities are so commanding that they cannot be pushed aside—are men who have been quite unable to acquire those accomplishments which pass for literary or social culture. And yet they stand in the van of the world's progress, the special representatives of the highest spirit of civilization, though barely known, it may be, beyond the immediate circle of their associates. It not infrequently occurs that a man is found filling an office which involves the direction of a thousand men, and upon whose shoulders the burden of a great enterprise with immense outreachings, who could not tell you the author of Iliad, and who has no sort of interest in the Bacon-Shakspeare controversy. But he is among the men to whom we turn when armies are to be raised, when institutions of learning are to be endowed, when noble charities are to be instituted, when political campaigns are to be fought. These form a large proportion of the men who are directing the machinery of the shops, who are finding work for men to do, who are building houses and plowing the earth, who are opening highways and utilizing the forces of nature. They have acquired their skill from personal contact with hard necessities. They have learned the ways of the world in that severe school where the tuition is paid by years of arduous labor, and where many succumb to their tasks. They have had no time to cultivate their spiritual nature owing to the pressing exactions of bread-winning business.

If, therefore, the advocates of the New Education, in the fulfillment of their mission, shall strive to institute such curricula as shall tend not only to make a graduate a self-reliant man with a mind plastic and trained to comprehend, but also to make him acquainted with those principals which regulate business and social relations; to familiarize him with the workings of that everyday world into which he is soon to go; to enable him to appreciate the importance of the man who is wielding a sledge for a livelihood; to show him the nature of the obstacles which he is to encounter; to prove to him the worthiness of the man who rears a family, pays his taxes, and keeps out of debt; to hold up for his sentimental contemplation the thoughtful inventor, the great merchant, and the skilled master-mechanic, rather than the ornamental figures whose images adorn many of our public halls and private libraries—if the advocates of the New Education only succeed to this extent, they will succeed in imparting to students that confidence in their capacity which will enable them to courageously undertake the real business of life.

Would it not be well, indeed, if every college should provide a lecture-chair to be frequently filled, in the course of the college-term, by men identified with that commercial life into which so many of the students will surely drift, and from whom the youth could take counsel? Would not such a course of lectures from bankers, mechanics, farmers, and executive officers of great corporations, prove most valuable in revealing to the young minds presenting to emerge from their cloisters something of the true world that lies before them? Would not the pertinent suggestions of such men prove happily complementary to the usual studies, which, in theory, are supposed to fit the students for association in business with these same lecturers?—G. A. Matthews.

Persian dinners are always preceded by pipes (hubble-bubbles); white tea and sweets are handed around. Then servants bring in a long leather sheet and place it on the ground; the guests take their seats around it, squatting on the ground. A flat loaf of bread is placed before each man. Music plays. The dinner is brought in on trays and placed on the ground on the leathern sheet; the covers are removed; the host says "Bismillah!" (in the name of God), and in silence all fall to with their fingers. There is no talking at dinner, and when it is over all retire to rest or return to their homes at once.

A Lancaster gentleman, in honor of his thirty-ninth birthday, invited a dozen of his friends to dinner. On the table at each guest's place was something to designate his business—a bottle of medicine for the physician; for the real estate agent, a toy house bearing the placard, "For Rent;" for the soldier, a sword; the attorney, red tape; hardware merchant, package of nails; the hatter, miniature silk hat; the iron merchant, piece of tire iron; the jeweler, a gem; coral merchant, a piece of coral, and a well-known Alderman took the only remaining place, in front of which was a large terrapin shell and corkscrew, to indicate that he was fond of good living.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

H. MACK, Champion Comique Roller Skater YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

BEST FOR ANYTHING.

Having used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for eighteen months for blotches, and finally cured it, I am anxious to get it to sell on commission. I can recommend it beyond any remedies I have ever used for Chapped Hands, Burns, Cuts, etc. In fact, it is the best medicine I have ever tried for anything.

R. S. HORTON. MYRTLE, MISS.

NEVER A COMPLAINT.

Since I have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES I have never heard a single complaint, but on the contrary every one who has used them has been well pleased with them, and they recommend all others. E. B. CUBBERLY, Druggist. ANDREWS, IND.

SCROFULOUS SORES.

I had a dozen bad sores upon my body, and tried all remedies I could hear of, and finally cured by CUTICURA REMEDIES and they have cured me.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

John Weaver fired a Winchester rifle at a mark on the door of a powder magazine at Pueblo, Col., and hit it. The magazine contained 37,000 lbs. of powder and a considerable quantity of dynamite, and it hit back, killing Weaver and fatally injuring John Nelson, his companion, and injuring buildings within a radius of two miles.

CONSTIPATION!

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by Constipation, and there is no other ill flesh is heir to more apt to be neglected, from the fact material inconvenience may not be immediately felt from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action the retention of decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing piles, fistula, headache, impure blood and many other serious affections. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will immediately relieve, and one bottle positively cure or relieve any case of Constipation.

Great excitement was caused in Laconia on the night of the 20th inst. over the report that a man named Storrs had attempted to murder his wife. Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now to-day she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. H. Gafford and wife.

The Secretary's Dilemma.

Secretary Whitney is advised that the Dolphin would be of no practical service as a vessel of war. It is too early in his administration for the new secretary to keep a pleasure yacht. The advisory board have gone so far that it is quite possible that Uncle Sam has been caught by Mr. Roach. Whitney is rather shy of any contracts made by his predecessor, and does not want to come down from his lofty position and accept the Dolphin. In this dilemma he turns to the attorney general. "Advise me, O Augustus," says the perplexed William. The outlook seems to indicate that Mr. Whitney can put off John for a while, but the government, through their advisory board, have done so much in directing the construction of the Dolphin, that she must be accepted, and one of these days she will play the same part to a democratic secretary as the far-famed Tallapoosa has to those who have gone before.

A Common Sense Idea.

Farmers and other out-door workers have long suffered from the too rapid wearing out of the soles of their rubber boots. Dirt and gravel, when wet, offer the best possible tools for cutting and grinding away the rubber sole, and to this destructive agency rubber boots are continually exposed, from the very nature of their uses. Some two years ago, however, the "Candee" Rubber Co. of New Haven, Conn., hit upon the idea of making their boot soles double thick in that part which undergoes the greatest amount of wear. By their invention the extra rubber is added on the ball just where it is needed, and no where else. So that while the boot is increased one hundred fold in durability, the weight is but slightly increased. This improvement, known as the Double Thick Ball, is advertised in our columns by Messrs. Sage & Co. of Boston, the "Candee" Co.'s distributing agents, and those of our readers who are interested in the matter, can investigate for themselves by examining the goods on sale at those of our stores which deal in rubber boots.

The "Honorable Senate."

The fifth meeting of the New Hampshire Senatorial Association will be held at the Phenix hotel, Concord, on the 24th inst. At four P. M. there will be a business meeting, at which time officers will be elected and other necessary business transacted; and at 8:30 P. M. a banquet will be served, on which occasion addresses will be given by members of the association and distinguished guests who may be present. By vote of the association at its last meeting, members are permitted to invite ladies to the banquet.

The officers of the association are Hon. K. Slayton of Manchester, president, with Chas. H. Burns and four other vice presidents; Hon. J. H. Gallinger is secretary, and Ex-Senator Emmons B. Philbrick, of Rye, is one of the executive committee. The association contains among its members very many of the solid men of the state.

The Newfoundland Hurricane.

Newfoundland papers are filled with reports of disasters by the recent hurricane, which was the worst known on that coast since 1846. There have been enormous losses of fishing tackle, supplies, etc., all along the shores. Forty crafts were destroyed at Old Pelican. Six vessels at Hoylrood and vicinity are total wrecks, with full supplies for summer fishery. Five schooners were lost at Brigus. Everything was swept from the shores of Notre Dame bay, and at Bonavista ports seventy-five crafts were destroyed. Many lives were lost, and the damage to property is estimated at nearly $250,000. The fishery prospects are looking up, and it is believed that an abundant harvest will be gathered from the sea this season. A great many Gloucester vessels put into St. Johns, with good fares, to repair the damage sustained in the gale.

The Cholera.

The cholera returns from the provinces of Valencia, Castellon and Murcia, Spain, for the 20th inst., gave a total of 483 new cases and 197 deaths.

On Sunday the official returns were: New cases 767, deaths 359.

As the result of the recent great earthquakes in Cashmere 3081 persons lost their lives, 70,000 houses were laid in ruins, and 32,000 animals perished.

Four men and a woman, all colored, were hung by a mob at Elkhart, Texas, June 21st, for the murder of a white woman the previous night.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it eradicates the poisoned matter from it, neutralizes and bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen,—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. Hood's SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend Hood's SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. E. SMITH,

THAT beautifully situated estate known as the Capt. John Hinckes homestead, on a line with the Wm. Gardner mansion, and the projected extension of Mechanic street to connect with Pleasant street. This house or block is commodious for two large families, and has been substantially repaired by James Javerly; price $750, carrying the right to purchase the adjacent wharf for $10 additional—$800. It has a historic interest as the cradle of the Marvy family and is opposite the house where Washington visited his Private Secretary Lear. There was a cargo of sugar and molasses landed and stored there, and it would seem that it cannot be long before this wharf will again be in requisition.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Fair or clearing weather, winds northwesterly, lower temperature.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 50 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Levi Downs master, arrived on Sunday, having taken sixty barrels of mackerel into Boston the previous day; she sailed again Monday evening in search of the schools, which have not as yet appeared very extensively to the eastward of Cape Cod, seeming rather to beat back toward the capes of Delaware.

Mr. Charles W. Hart returned on Saturday from Boston, where he had been for several weeks, running the engine of the steam yacht Lethe, formerly the Venture, with which he went around from this port some weeks ago. He has gone to the Shoals in the employ of the Laighton Bros. for the season.

The schooner Hattie Lewis was loaded on Monday, the 22d inst., with grain and provisions for the stores and hotels at York harbor, and sailed from steamboat wharf with a fair wind and a smooth sea.

The new cabin of the steamer Appledore has been finely grained on the outside, and very handsomely painted within, by Capt. E. D. Coffin.

Deputy Collector Thomas Clark seized at Tremont, Me., Friday, schooner "Austin P." of St. Andrews, N. B., for landing a cargo of fish and attempting to depart without entry at the custom house.

NEWCASTLE.

The first dog cart of the season to arrive is one in which Mr. Gordon Wendell drove from New York city, making the entire trip over the public highways. He was accompanied between New York and Boston by the author of "the Duchess Amelia."

The flower beds at the Wentworth have been tastefully filled with beautiful plants, and the hotel is being put in readiness for its summer guests.

The rails on the Newcastle part of the Little Harbor bridge still lack painting.

At a meeting of the directors of the Portsmouth Machine Co., held on Monday E. H. Winchester, Esq., was chosen treasurer of the company.

Mr. James Marden, who died suddenly at North Hampton in the early part of last week, was formerly a resident of this city. When a young man he worked as hostler at the Franklin house, where many travellers put up their teams and where the stage line to Exeter, Concord and Dover kept their horses. He removed to North Hampton between twenty and thirty years ago and carried on a small farm. He was a man of excellent habits and was well known to visitors at the old Franklin house, five and fifty years ago. His age was seventy-two.

On Sunday two young men who in festive mood stepped into an outbuilding over a dock at the north end, found themselves suddenly precipitated into the mire nearly up to their necks in consequence of the floor giving away. Being good swimmers they went to the clear water of the Piscataqua and jumped overboard to cleanse themselves.

Mr. James R. Yeaton has for sale at his store, corner of Congress and Vaughan streets, green peas which were raised at his place on Richards avenue. These are the first peas raised in this vicinity which we have seen this year. Last year Mr. Yeaton brought in peas on the same date, namely, June 21st; the year previous he had them two days earlier.

The Times points out that the Penny Post is not wholly reliable as an authority on the powers and duties of collectors of customs in regard to the appointment of inspectors. One day last week it informed the Chronicle that "The collector of this port has no more power to say who shall fill the offices of inspectors in the custom house than the agent of the S. P. C. A.," and a couple of days later raked down Collector Howard because last fall he would not recommend a candidate for a vacancy in the force of inspectors "although asked to do so by Senator Blair and Congressman Haynes," and has within a few days nominated for deputy collector of the up-river towns, Mr. Joshua L. Foster. There does appear to be a contradiction somewhere.

A thousand large mackerel were brought in to George W. Randall & Son on Monday by a drag-boat from Cape Porpoise.

A horse belonging to Hett Brothers attempted to run away from near the railroad station on the morning of the 22d inst., but Mr. Hett, who was leading him at the time, hung on to him and brought him to after he had spilled out the load of furniture from the wagon, broken both shafts, knocked down part of the fence of the Godfrey house, and nearly capsized the woodbox where the popular and attentive flagman of the Vaughan street crossing keeps his broom. The animal is the same that ran away with Mr. Frank Marks not long ago; he has now been hitched into a heavy jigger and provided with a curb bit, and is likely to find his larking propensities interfered with.

The Missouri delegation to the National Encampment, G. A. R., at Portland, passed through this city on Sunday evening in the cars they left home in, hitched to the nine o'clock Bangor express train. Mr. George Braxton, colored, formerly of this city, was with the Missouri Pullman cars as porter, and during the brief stop of the train in the station here found quite a number of former acquaintances to shake hands with.

Mrs. Sarah F. Bosher, wife of George F. Bosher, who died in Manchester on Saturday last at the age of fifty-five years, was the daughter of the late Josiah G. and Sarah Folsom of this city. She was married to Mr. Bosher in 1851, and in 1860 moved with her husband to Manchester, where they have since resided. For quarter of a century she was one of the most prominent and efficient members of the Franklin street Congregational church in Manchester, ever taking a foremost part in charitable and other good works. She is survived by her husband, a son and three daughters.

Councilmen David F. Barry and James F. Marley of Boston, with Mr. John Flynn of that city, a native of Portsmouth, were here on a visit the past week, and enjoying some of the many beautiful drives in the vicinity. Mr. Marley was particularly pleased with Little Boar's Head, but thinks a cat makes poor lobster bait, even when the traps are handled by so expert a professional fishermen as Councilman Barry.

The train which should have arrived in this city from Boston at 2:45 P. M. on Monday was three-quarters of an hour late, and consisted of twelve cars packed with passengers for Portland, many of them being from Pennsylvania, Ohio, and other distant states. A special train of nine cars followed, and on this the Portsmouth and Kittery delegations of the Grand Army took passage; most of the occupants of this train were Grand Army, men and their wives taken on at the stations between Boston and this city. A wrecking train preceded the passenger trains from this city, having been telegraphed for from Conway Junction to replace on the tracks a partially derailed car there.

Messrs. Frank Cook and Clarence Caswell have built a house on Cedar island, Isles of Shoals, and will make it their headquarters for carrying on the fishing business.

Alfred Maddock, son of Samuel Maddock of this city, has been appointed to a clerkship in the post-office, and assumed his duties there on Monday morning.

The artisans appear to have put the tassel on the top of the cap of the climax, or to descend a few rounds of the ladder of hyperbole, the upper stories in the front apex of the Rockingham house appear to be completed. On Monday, Langdon faced the southeasterly breeze, while Jones rested behind a canvas screen as if modestly waiting to be beheld when the structure is completed. Workmen are engaged in putting the woodwork in the dining hall. In the rear, where the buildings were removed as we stated last week, a cellar is being dug. While every one is impatient to behold the new hotel in all its magnificence, we are consoled with the reminder that if the building is long in its reconstruction, it will be the more thoroughly and excellently completed. Completeness and stability are characteristic traits of the owner when he builds or repairs a structure of whatever kind.

Mr. William J. Doyle of Portsmouth has of late been constantly employed in finishing the plumbing work for Mr. Marshall, Dr. Stackpole and Mrs. Peters at York harbor, and the Garrison house at York beach. The twin houses of the "Norwood farm" under charge of Landlord Elias Baker of York harbor are now open, and the rooms all engaged for early dates. The hotel Bartlett, at the beach, has been painted a brick red.

Mr. Andrew R. Webber of York cut 300 tons of ice last winter, and is now running an ice cart to the hotels and cottages there.

Mr. McCluer of Boston, who has refitted the Thomas Frisbee house on Gerrish island, directly across the mouth of the harbor from Mr. Wendell's cottage at Newcastle, is a guest at the Pepperell house, Kittery Point, with his family.

Mr. William P. Israel of Portsmouth, Second Adventist, preaches every Sunday at Beech Ridge, York, and draws a very considerable congregation. The church edifice at the ridge is a very pleasant one, and belongs to the Christian denomination.

Joseph Donnell, George Donnell, Alma Donnell and George Webber are boat fishing and lobstering at Lobster cove, York. Lobsters are rather scarce, though Joe Donnell had 400 merchantable ones in his cars one day last week, and the four men had brought in 5000 lbs. of round fish within six days.

Burglars entered the Eastern railroad station at South Berwick one night recently, by breaking a light of glass in an outside window of the ticket office. The money drawer was forced open but the safe was not disturbed, and nothing was obtained by the thieves for their trouble.

The most disastrous fire that ever visited Newport occurred on the night of the 20th inst., destroying Nettleton block, N. S. Jackson's stable and office, other private stables, and the town building, containing the town hall, court room, county offices, etc. Loss $100,000; with partial insurance. The town house cost $45,000, and was insured $20,000.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science guesses that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation sets at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases where a consultation is deemed desirable,

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any dealer in fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 15. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

THE ADVENTISTS IN MAINE.

Incidents of the Watch Kept Forty Years Ago—Pranks of the Boys.

The accounts of the eccentric performances of the Latter-Day Millerites in eastern Maine have revived a number of curious anecdotes of the equally curious performances of the believers in the immediate coming of the Lord's chariot in days gone by.

An old resident of Canaan tells of a prank he and several other young men perpetrated on a band of fanatics who gathered in that town to await the blast of Gabriel's trumpet thirty or forty years ago. It had become noised through the town that these disciples were to assemble in a certain barn with their ascension gowns on, and there with solemn ceremonies make ready to receive the last dread summons. So these youngsters, by dint of great exertions, secretly raised a heavy log to the ridge-pole of the barn. When the Millerites were assembled and all was hushed the rogues sent the log rolling down the roof of the barn with a terrific rumble. The wailing and groaning and shrieking which came from the barn indicated that the believers thought the chariot was really coming, but were not so ready to get aboard as they pretended to be.

Richmond was one of the towns to which the excitement spread at this time. It is a well-preserved chapter of local history that a certain old lady was made crazy by constant dwelling on the theme, and had an ambition to fly up a short distance and meet Gabriel before he had blown his horn. She wished to go early and avoid the crowd. On the appointed day she climbed on top of the barn-yard fence, and, flapping her arms, essayed to fly. She lost her balance, fell down, broke one of her arms, and Gabriel didn't come after all; but it was not long before the world came to an end for her.

There is a touch of agricultural realism in a reminiscence of a Lewiston ex-mayor, who says: "At the time of the old Millerite excitement I was at work on a farm for a man who became a thorough believer. On the morning of the day designated for the end of the world he told me to let the cattle into the mowing field, and discharged me. I did not let the cattle into the mowing field, but hired out with another farmer. The next day my old employer tried to hire me back, but I would not go."

An old citizen of Topsham says that in that town the Millerites proposed to welcome Gabriel with full stomachs, and made preparations to spend the night before his coming in feasting. A wealthy farmer who had become converted to the belief, dedicated all his live-stock and provision to the cause, and held a great barbecue on his premises. He invited everybody for miles around to come and eat a parting meal with him. The crowd came. Oxen, steers, lambs and pigs were roasted whole. Cider barrels were set running. Great pots of beans and brown bread were baked. They ate him out of house and home. The next day he was alive and the sun was shining, but his barn and cellar were empty. He had less property, but more sense.—The smell of singed wool lingered in the neighborhood for several days.

I remember having attended a camp-meeting held by revivers of the Millerite theory fifteen years ago. The services were held in a canvas tabernacle in a grove, and the faithful pitched their tents around it. In the evening when the loud drawl of the elder echoed among the trees, often interrupted by groans and shouts of enthusiasm from his hearers, as he depicted the significance of the dragons and many-horned monsters that were drawn on his chart, and told of the terrors of the judgment day, when two hundred excited voices shouted their peculiar hymns, or two or three deluded men and women were exhorting in as many different keys at the same time—it seemed like an unearthly convocation.

One night several young men introduced a goat into the camp-meeting. While the services were well under way in the tabernacle and the elder was discoursing on the vision of the monsters that came up out of the sea, this goat was let into the tent among the crowd of men and women absorbed in the talk of the prophet. The goat upset two or three chairs and bleated, and then went on a general rampage through the tent. At first the disciples thought that they had been granted a visit from one of the mystic beasts of the dreamland of Daniel, but they soon discovered that the goat was of the earth, very earthy.—Lewiston (Me.)

"Smith's Hotel.

Gen. Scott used to narrate how, on his return from the northern frontier, he traveled from Philadelphia to Baltimore in a stage-coach with a gentleman from the latter city whom he had met before. As they drew near the end of their journey, Gen. Scott asked Smith who kept the best hotel in Baltimore. "I do," said Smith. "I was not aware," said the general "that you had gone into the hotel business." "Yes," rejoined Smith, "I've been in it for some time, and I can promise you as good a table and as comfortable rooms as any hotel in Baltimore." So the general decided to go to Smith's hotel, where, soon after his arrival, he discovered his mistake, and found himself the honored guest of Mr. Smith's hospitable private mansion, one of the most elegant in the city. Naturally he was much embarrassed, but he was made to feel at ease by his host, and when he subsequently visited Baltimore he used to go to "Smith's hotel" in preference to the noted caravansaries kept by Barnum and by Guy.—Ben: Perley Poore.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You are at liberty to use my name as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the rubbish used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

SULPHUR BITTERS

THE BEST AND GREATEST MEDICINE!

It will drive the Humor from your system, and make your skin clean and healthy by purging Pimples and Blotches which mar your beauty are caused by impure blood, and can be removed in a short time, if you are wise and use the great blood purifier.

SULPHUR BITTERS. Why suffer with Boils? Why rack with the terrible Headache? Why lay and toss on that bed of pain with Rheumatism? What makes you tremble so? Your nerves are all unstrung and need a gentle soothing tonic to assist nature to repair the damage which has been done. Sulphur Bitters is the great tonic to assist nature and need a gentle soothing tonic to assist nature to repair the damage which has been done. Sulphur Bitters is the great Hon. Daniel W. Voorhees, the distinguished U. S. Senator from Indiana, certifies that in a case of rheumatism in the back, he obtained instantaneous relief from St. Jacobs Oil. He says it is a remarkable remedy.

Ten gallon liquor stamps have been exhausted at the treasury department at Washington, on account of the unexpected demand since the inauguration of President Cleveland. Thus the mugwumps may see how they demoralized the country by aiding in the election of a democratic president.

Can you longer doubt positive assertions? A person says: "Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator did me a world of good; nothing I ever used before did me any good, it just cured me of heart disease. $1.00 per bottle at druggists.

A neighbor in Rye called on a farmer in that town one day last spring, and found him seated in the cellar engaged in the protracted task of sprouting potatoes. "This must be pretty hard work, to keep this up all day," said the caller. "No," replied the subterranean sprouter, "It's not very hard work, but it is a severe strain on the judgment."

Physicians recommend as a fine Bourbon Whiskey the G. O. Taylor brand, bottled by the old and honorable house of C. H. Graves & Sons, Boston. For purity and excellence this Whiskey is unsurpassed. To be obtained of druggists and grocers.

In the Dover police court, June 22d, special police officers Durkin and Smith were each fined for drunkenness and assault and battery. Durkin resigned after the trial.

Clipped from Canada Presbyterian, under signature of C. Blackett Robinson, Propr.: I was cured of oft-recurring bilious headaches by Burdock Blood Bitters.

Three hard characters who robbed a store at Black Earth, Wis., a few nights ago, were tracked by armed citizens to a railroad cut near Cross Plains, suddenly pounced upon and ordered to hold up their hands. The robbers obeyed promptly, but while they were being disarmed and relieved of their booty two of their companions suddenly appeared on the scene and ordered up the hands of the captors. The citizens were forced to comply with the order, and after paying tribute to the extent of whatever valuables and arms they had about their persons, were allowed to depart.

Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now to-day she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. H. Gafford and wife.

They Want Their Fill.

The Banner-Watchman, a paper published at Athens, Ga., and of course democratic, says:

The government is rich, and able to pay handsome salaries. Our boys have heretofore been choked off from the public teat, and now that they have a firm grip upon it for four years at least, let them drink their fill. There are plenty of ways to economize without reducing salaries and offices. Turn about is fair play, and we want to see the democrats have as good a showing as the republicans enjoyed. Let us stop this foolish boast of retrenchment, until the south and the northern democrats have an opportunity of getting even with the rads.

This is the universal sentiment of the democracy. Of course no other could be expected. There has been a slight holding on to the brakes by the mugwumps, who have at last let go their hold, and the democracy boom away from the convocation with which Mr. Cleveland for a while deemed it politic to coquet, for the purpose of having their support in the New York election.

Why So Much Sham Reluctance?

It is perfectly safe, whenever a Washington despatch announces a cabinet officer's opinion that places under the administration should be filled only by efficient men and that the patronage of the government, as Mr. Vilas puts it, should not become a "mere political machine," to expect by the next day a clean sweep somewhere. The cabinet officers have at last got it through their scalps that efficiency in the public service means putting fresh hands into the public places, and removing the old stagers whose only merit may be that they are experienced and faithful. The offices belong to the democrats, and why they are so afraid of their mugwumpian allies as to boggle about removals and do the thing apologetically, is what disgusts us all. Let the axe be sharpened and let it fall where it may, but let the headsman abstain from from apologies.

Interesting Will Case.

The late Capt. Wm. Walker, a native of this city, who lived and died in Concord and spent his summers at Straw's point, by his will gave his wife, who survived him, the use and income of all his estate during her life, with the exception of furniture and other property, (exclusive of stocks, bonds, etc., which were given outright.)

The widow at first filed an acceptance of the provisions of the will, but shortly afterward filed a waiver, and now claims one-half of the estate, after payment of debts, etc., to be decreed to her. There are numerous legatees, among them the Unitarian society at Concord, to whom a legacy of $1000 was given; the Concord Female Benevolent association, etc., his cousins, the Misses Goodrich of this city, and Rev. Massena Goodrich and John Goodrich, a thousand dollars each, and others; and the executor has petitioned the supreme court to decide whether the waiver is legal after an acceptance in writing of the provisions in the will has been filed, with numerous other questions as to the payment of legacies in full; whether, in case of death of the legatees or any of them before the death of the widow, the legacies lapse; and for instructions in settlement of the estate. The questions are of course of interest to the legatees, as well as important matters of law in probate matters.

The Grand Army at Portland.

Tuesday was the day of the grand procession of the Grand Army of the Republic, which started promptly at eleven o'clock. The city was profusely and beautifully decorated, and the streets crowded with tens of thousands of spectators. Gen. Logan drove to the camp ground with Congressman Reed in the forenoon, before the parade, and was given a most enthusiastic reception.

Riot in Exeter.

There was quite a riot in Exeter on Sunday night. It appears that it is customary for the students to observe the approach of summer vacation by a bonfire, and to indulge in "painting the town red." Saturday they were warned that any attempt at boisterous demonstration or making of any bonfires would be suppressed by the police. They had no fear of the town authorities, it would appear, inasmuch as they not only had their bonfire, but raised a great racket, winding up in a hand to hand encounter with the police. When the bonfire was started the police made an arrest of one of the students, when they all attacked the policemen. Stones were thrown and sticks freely used. A son of the chief of police had his nose broken, and the chief himself suffers from a severe scalp wound. The attempted rescue failed, and the prisoner was lodged in the lobby. It was late in the night when the disturbance ceased. The prisoner was allowed to go home a little before midnight at the request of Prof. Wentworth. Monday morning, in accordance with the pledge given when allowed liberty the previous night, the prisoner appeared in court, and a fine of $10 and costs was inflicted.

A GOOD SEND-OFF.

The following complimentary mention of a former attache of the Chronicle is from the New York Journalist's department of notes and news:

Mr. Albert E. Wood, who for nearly two years has occupied a trusted and prominent position on the staff of the Morning Journal, left for Minneapolis on Friday night to assume the managing editorship of a Sunday paper there, the first number of which will appear tomorrow. The choice of Mr. Wood as the controlling head of the paper reflects credit upon its inceptors, and robs New York of one of its brightest journalists.

Before leaving he received a letter from Mr. John A. Green, the city editor of the Journal, in which he deplored the loss of Mr. Wood from his staff, and in which the following highly commendatory sentence occurred: "You are capable of holding any position on any newspaper." That portion of the Journal staff which could, accompanied Mr. Wood to his train.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. R. SMITH,
19 Butterfield Street.

"That Extreme Tired Feeling."

For Sale or To Let.

THAT beautifully situated estate known as the Capt. John Hunt'ress homestead, on a line with the Wm. Gardner mansion, and the projected extension of Mechanic street to connect with Pleasant street. This house or block is commodious for two large families, and has been substantially repaired by James Jarvis; price $750, carrying the right to purchase the adjacent wharf for $100 additional—$850. It has a historic interest as the cradle of the Marcy family and is opposite the house where Washington visited his Private Secretary Lear. There was a cargo of sugar and molasses landed and stored there, and it would seem that it cannot be long before this wharf will again be in requisition.

MARITIME NOTES.

The ship Granite State, of this port, Ross master, sailed from Manila on the 2d of May for New York, with a cargo of 13,600 piculs hemp and 19,260 piculs sugar.

The schooner Hattie Lewis, reported as sailed Monday, still lies at the Steamboat wharf loading with grain and flour from J. Brooks & Co.'s store. She will sail this afternoon, weather permitting.—Penny Post, 23d.

The steamer Three Brothers arrived from Salem early this morning, with 1100 tons of coal for Newmarket.—Penny Post, 23d.

The new steamer Edmund Burke, just launched on lake Sunapee, is provided with an engine and boiler from the Portsmouth Machine Shop. The steamer is commanded by Capt. Eugene Pollard of Newport, this state. Lake Sunapee is in the western part of Merrimack and the eastern part of Sullivan counties; it is nine miles long and one and a half wide, and its waters are 800 feet higher than the Connecticut or Merrimack rivers.

Seventy-five sail of the mackerel fleet arrived at Provincetown, Mass., June 22d, for a harbor from the heavy southwest wind. They report having cruised the fishing grounds from Cape Cod to Mt. Desert and off shore to Georges, and seen but few fish. Schooner Emma Higgins had six barrels, the result of four weeks work. Two or three of the fleet were from the south, where fish appear to be more plenty. Schooner Lizzie Parker had 180 barrels good fish, taken near No Man's Land.

"Major," the heaviest horse in the city, weighing 1613 lbs. and belonging to the Oliver Ayers estate, killed himself in his stall Monday night. The animal was young and very valuable, being an excellent worker.

A special train of six cars started from this city for Portland on Tuesday morning at 6:30 o'clock, with about 200 passengers, a fair sprinkling of whom were ladies. A quite large assemblage of intending passengers were in waiting for the train at the Kittery station. The train arriving here at ten o'clock from Boston comprised ten cars, four of which were switched off onto the Dover line, the rest proceeding on the way to Portland with a large fare of passengers.

Maud Forrester's Specialty company will give entertainments in Music hall next Monday and Tuesday evenings, June 29th and 30th.

Mr. Jacob G. Crockett, who was foreman machinist in the department of steam engineering on the navy yard opposite this city many years ago, and went to Stuart, Iowa, to take charge of a machine shop there when he left the yard, is now mayor of that city.

Ex-Gov. Cheney was in town on Tuesday, and drove with Mrs. Cheney to Straw's point, Rye, to visit his summer cottage. We hear that Charles D. McDuffee, Esq., of Manchester, is to occupy a portion of Phinehas Adams' cottage at the point this summer. The Downing cottage is offered for sale. H. F. Straw, Esq., agent of the Amoskeag Co., occupies the Straw cottage this season. G. Byron Chandler, Esq., will be at home by the seaside by the 1st of July, and also other residents of Manchester.

A correspondent of the Washington Capital says: "I hear that Mr. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, the editor of the Atlantic Monthly, has recently inherited from a relative a handsome fortune. The amount of it is stated as $70,000."

Commodore David B. Harmony, chief of the bureau of yards and docks of the navy department, paid an official visit to this navy yard on Monday, and was saluted as usual.

CITY OF PORTSMOUTH.

IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-FIVE.

A joint vote relating to the discounts upon taxes and to the notices of non-payment to be given.

Ordered by the City Councils of the city of Portsmouth.

That the inhabitants of this city and the non-residents who shall pay to the Collector their taxes for the year eighteen hundred and eighty-five in full, within thirty days next after the Assessors shall have committed to him the lists of the assessments and the warrant for collection of said taxes, shall be entitled to a discount of six per cent; and those who shall pay such taxes within sixty days after the time aforesaid shall be entitled to a discount of four per cent, on the amount of their said taxes—provided however that no discount shall be allowed to any person until the whole tax of such person for the year is paid.

That at the expiration of four months from the time the Collector of Taxes shall receive the warrant for their collection from the Assessors, the Collector shall issue notices to all persons whose taxes then remain unpaid, stating the amount of the same, and informing such persons that, unless the tax be paid with twenty cents in addition for such notice, within fourteen days after the service of said notice, the Collector will collect the same by distraint or other legal process.

Passed May 7, 1885.
FREEMAN PEARSON,
President of the Common Council.
A true copy attest,
MERCER GOODRICH, City Clerk.

Conductor George Hill, of the Boston & Maine railroad, has this week taken charge of the Old Orchard Beach railroad for the season. During this week he will only run trains to connect with through trains, but next week the business of the spur line will be conducted by time table.

Shillaber's Atlas powder was used by Charles Gray last week to break up a boulder about the size of a hogshead on the beach at Four Tree island. No drilling was required, the powder being simply laid on the boulder and exploded, with the result that the rock was fairly obliterated, being shattered into small fragments away below the level of the beach. Mr. Gray proposes next to tackle "Bell's stone," a very large boulder located in the shallow water some two or three hundred feet from the highwater mark of the island, right in the way of small boats working up or down the river at low water, and which occasionally shows above the surface at unusually low tides. A good many of the little boats have found out the position of Bell's stone by hitting it at times when they thought they were all clear of any obstruction, and it is occasionally thumped by men who know all about it.

The alewives are running up York river very extensively, for spawning. A few days ago a pair of the sportsmen of York proceeded up the stream to "go for" these fish, and loaded their wagon with them. When they got ready to return home, one of them, it being late at night, became very sleepy, and lying down on the mass of fish to rest and refresh himself sank down in their midst and came near being suffocated. His companion was sleepy also—too much so to be able to get his mate out alone—and was compelled to call upon one of the neighbors for aid in extricating him.

The following were among the recent transfers of real estate in York county, as left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Kittery—Martin V. B. Williams et al. to Hyland Mitchell, real estate in Kittery for $50; George H. Briggs of Eliot to Owen J. Clough of Kittery, real estate in Kittery for $335; Margaret A. Burbank of Harvard, Ill., to Ann M. Neal of Kittery, real estate in Kittery for $75. York—William W. Ramsdell to Benjamin S. Armstrong, real estate in York for $60; Libbius Hill et ux of Dover, N. H., to Josiah Stackpole of same place, lot of land at York beach for $28.

Dr. Stewart of York, who besides being a physician and interested in transportation is a deputy sheriff of York county, a few days ago seized three bottles of alleged whiskey concealed in a haymow. The labels on them bore the names of three respectable young men of the town, which are supposed to have been placed thereon without their knowledge. The bottles are on exhibition as trophies at the doctor's office.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,
24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable, address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

Is an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

"Gentle Spring."

Among spring preparations, do not neglect that which is most important of all—your own body. During the winter the blood absorbs many impurities, which, if not expelled, are liable to break out in scrofula or other disease. The best spring medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It expels every impurity from the blood, and gives strength to every function of the body. Sold by all druggists.

Michigan has probably no desire to renew experiments with tidal-wave governors. The legislative committee appointed to investigate the conduct of the phenomenal Begole has reported that "as governor he wantonly, grossly and inexcusably exceeded all statutory and discretionary powers, and was guilty of a misappropriation of the people's money, the violation of a sacred trust, and the contamination of the highest office of state by his shameless acts."

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexibly by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

Mrs. George W. Briggs, an aged lady, died in a pew of Fourth Baptist church in Providence, R. I., during a prayer Sunday morning, from apoplexy. She celebrated her golden wedding a few weeks ago.

Saved from the Grave.

"A severe cold, ending in a hard, dry cough, caused me to pass many sleepless nights, coughing until it seemed as though my head would burst. I told my friends that I must die. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer. First dose was a great surprise; slept all night in peace. It cured me right up. Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshal H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

The lawyers engaged on the Marie-Garrison railway suit did not go hungry. Roscoe Conkling was paid $50,000, Judge Comstock $75,000 and Melville Day $100,000 in addition to a large salary for eight years. Altogether, from first to last, the lawyers sucked over $600,000 from the estate.

James Fyle's Pearline is constantly growing in popular favor—and no wonder, for it is wonderfully effective and pleasant to use. It saves half the labor of washing, and does not hurt the clothes.

Ed. Hamilton, formerly a sewing machine agent, has been held in Rochester in $1000 for trial, for burglary. Several watches and other stolen articles were found on him. He is one of a gang of thieves who have been operating in Milton.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vendor of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

A FAMOUS WILL.

Peter the Great's Instructions to His Successors and to the Russian People.

1. The Russian nation must be constantly on a war footing to keep the soldiers warlike and in good condition. No rest must be allowed, except for the purpose of relieving the state finances, recruiting the army, or biding the favorable moment for attack. By these means peace is made subservient to war, and war to peace, in the interest of the agrandizement and increasing prosperity of Russia.

2. Every possible means must be used to invite from the most cultivated European States commanders in war and philosophers in peace, to enable the Russian nation to participate in the advantages of other countries without losing any of its own.

3. No opportunity must be lost of taking part in the affairs and disputes of Europe, especially in those of Germany, which, from its vicinity, is one of the most direct interests to us.

4. Poland must be divided by keeping up constant jealousies and confusions there. The authorities must be gained over with money, and the assemblies corrupted, so as to influence the election of the kings. We must get up a party of our own there, and send Russian troops into the country, and let them sojourn there so long that they may ultimately find some pretext for remaining there forever. Should the neighboring States make difficulties, we must appease them for the moment by allowing them a share of the territory, until we can safely resume what we have given away.

5. We must take away as much territory as possible from Sweden, and contrive that they shall attack us first, so as to give us a pretext for their subjugation. With this object in view, we must keep Sweden in opposition to Denmark, and Denmark to Sweden, and sedulously foster their mutual jealousies.

6. The consorts of the Russian princes must always be chosen from among the German princesses, in order to multiply our family alliances with the Germans, and so unite our interests with theirs, and thus, by consolidating our influence in Germany to cause it to attach itself spontaneously to our policy.

7. We must be careful to keep our commercial alliances with England, for she is the power which has most need of our produce for her navy, and at the same time may be of the greatest service to us in the development of our own. We must export wood and other articles in exchange for her gold, and establish permanent connection between her merchants and seamen and our own.

8. We must steadily keep extending our frontiers—northward along the Baltic, and southward along the shores of the Black sea.

9. We must progress as much as possible in the direction of Constantinople and India. He who can once get possession of these places is the real ruler of the world. With this view we must provoke constant quarrels at one time with Turkey, and at another with Persia. We must establish wharfs and docks in the Euxine, and by degrees make ourselves masters of that sea as well as the Baltic, which is a doubly important element in the success of our plan. We must hasten the downfall of Persia, push on into the Persian gulf if possible, re-establish the ancient commercial intercourse with the Levant through Syria, and force our way into the Indies, which are the storehouses of the world. Once there, we can dispense with English gold.

10. Moreover, we must take pains to establish and maintain all intimate union with Austria, apparently countenancing her schemes for aggrandizement in Germany, and all the while secretly rousing the jealousy of the minor States against her. By this way we must bring it to pass that one or the other party will seek the aid of Russia; and thus we shall exercise a sort of protection over the country, which will pave a way for future supremacy.

11. We must not make the house of Austria interested in the expulsion of the Turks from Europe, and we must neutralize its jealousy at the capture of Constantinople, either by preoccupying it with a war with the old European States, or by allowing it a share of the spoil, which we can afterward resume at our leisure.

12. We must collect around our house as around a center, all the detached sections of Greeks which are scattered abroad in Hungary, Turkey, and south Poland. We must make them look to us for support, and then by establishing beforehand a sort of ecclesiastical supremacy, we shall pave the way for universal sovereignty.

13. When Sweden is ours, Persia vanquished, Poland subjected, Turkey conquered, — when our armies are united and the Euxine and the Baltic are in possession of our ships, then we must make separate and secret overtures, first to the court of Versailles, and then to that of Vienna, to share with them the dominion of the world. If either of them accepts our propositions, which is certain to happen if their ambition and self-interest are properly worked upon, we must make use of one to annihilate the other; this done, we have only to destroy the remaining one by finding a pretext for a quarrel, the issue of which cannot be doubtful, as Russia will then be in the absolute possession of the East and the best part of Europe.

14. Should the improbable case happen of both refusing the propositions of Russia, then our policy will be to set one against the other, and make them tear each other to pieces. Russia must then watch for and seize the favorable moment, and pour her already-assembled hosts into Germany, while two immense fleets, laden with Asiatic hordes, and conveyed by the armed squadrons of the Euxine and the Baltic, set sail simultaneously from the sea of Azoff and the harbor of Archangel; sweeping along the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, they will overrun France on the one side, while Germany is overpowered on the other.

When these countries are fully conquered, the rest of Europe must fall easily, and without a struggle, under our yoke.

Thus Europe can and must be subjugated.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood, Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "work," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

H. MACK, Champion Comique Roller Skater YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

BEST FOR ANYTHING.

Having used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for eighteen months for Tetter, and finally cured it, I am anxious to get it to sell on commission. I can recommend it beyond any remedies I have ever used for Tetter, Burns, Cuts, etc. In fact, it is the best medicine I have ever tried for anything.

R. S. HORTON. MYRTLE, MISS.

NEVER A COMPLAINT.

Since I have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES I have never heard a single complaint, but on the contrary every one who has used them has been well pleased with them, and they outsell all others. E. B. CUBBERLY, Druggist. ANDREWS, IND.

SCROFULOUS SORES.

I had a dozen bad sores upon my body, and tried all remedies I could hear of, and at last tried your CUTICURA REMEDIES and they have cured me.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., April 15, 1881. "I have been sick with pleurisy and pneumonia. It left me with a very hard, hacking cough. All the physicians and medicine did me no good. A friend advised me to try Adamson's Cough Balsam, one bottle of which did me more good than all the doctors and medicines I have tried; and I shall recommend it far and near. MARY A. BROCKWELL."

Professor Hitchcock, of Dartmouth college, will spend his summer vacation in the volcanic regions of Mexico.

Twenty years of suffering from catarrh and catarrhal headache I never found anything to afford lasting relief until I tried Ely's Cream Balm. I have used two bottles, and now consider my catarrh cured. I have recommended it to several of my friends with like good results. — D. T. Higginson, 145 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.

During the nights of June 21st and 22d burglars entered fully fifteen places in the town of Montague, Mass. At the house of H. H. Root they procured the keys to that gentleman's store and safe from his trowsers pocket, and after going through his store they returned the keys to his house, throwing them, with the pantaloons, inside the hall.

Oil from Nature's Wells.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

Mr. Herbert Banks, who was last winter employed in Boston, is now in charge of Newell Armstrong's livery stable at York village, where he was formerly employed for some years; he has also had considerable experience at the Marshall house stable, York harbor. A report has been current throughout York that Mr. Banks was contemplating entering into a matrimonial alliance with a young lady of Boston, but it does not seem to be well authenticated.

Master Sammy McIntire, of Beech Ridge, York, recently captured six young squirrels and took them home, where two of them were at once adopted by a cat that had been deprived of her own young, and which nurses the squirrels as though they were kittens, and when they attempt to wander recalls them with a mew.

Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now to-day she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. H. Gafford and wife.

Every Appointee Finds His Assassin.

We had supposed that when the democrats entered into their estate, a happy condition of affairs would succeed the long barring out. That the few who were chosen of the many called, would, despite the disappointment of those who might be left, at least be permitted to enjoy their achieved honors and emoluments without peril from the men of their own household. But such has not been the result in many cases. It might have been expected that the political friends of the outgoing office-holders would incline to compare the fresh and inexperience appointee with the old and well developed functionary, but for men of the dominant party to attack by unjust criticisms and unclean innendoes, those to whom the honor of appointment might be extended, was a procedure we had not dreamed of.

But it appears that in many instances statements as untrue as ungenerous have been made of men in whom the president had placed confidence. And with these charges, unlike those put in writing some time ago by a distinguished New England democrat who greatly pleased the president by saying, "It is quite proper that the gentleman complained of should see these charges, and I trust they will be shown to him," the common way is to stab in the back by secret or at least a concealing kind of indictment, the men who may have been honored by the confidence of the executive.

In a case recently, a very worthy and capable gentleman who had filled a clerical office under the late administration received an appropriate recognition by a promotion to apposition in its nature judicial and executive, and one which he was abundantly qualified to fill. He was greatly surprised on learning that some zealous enemy had informed the head of the department in which he had been selected to serve, that he was not a democrat! Of course the appointee was able, without much effort, to prove his orthodoxy, but the knowledge that a cabinet officer who had enough of legitimate work on his hands had been annoyed by groundless charges against a new appointee, of course was mortifying in the extreme. But nevertheless it is true, for we have high authority for saying that at the federal city in these days "Every appointee finds his assassin."

We regret to see this. We are, we think, generous enough toward our hungry friends on the other side of the hedge who have just been led into the green pastures, to enjoy seeing them feed for a while. The change in the administration, however it may have been brought about, gives an opportunity for many deserving men to receive official emoluments from which they have long been debarred.

Should any such need at our hand, a certificate of loyalty to the principles of the democracy or a voucher for their character, we of course would, if it would be of service, gladly give it. But if, now that the party has entered the promised land, it is to be expected that all can have the chief seats, if the disappointed are to rail at the chosen few, then Beecher and Burchard have talked in vain, Curtis has accomplished nothing, the mugwumps are a dead failure, and the plumed knight might as well have been chosen president last November. Let us hope, as the leading men in the administration at Washington begin to see that the sun rises and sets just as it did when our fellows ran the machine, they will stand by their appointments when they have been with due deliberation made, and frown down with official vehemence the cowardly assassins who, unable to attain position for themselves, delight in bespattering those so far above them in social standing, political integrity and professional accomplishments, that these foul processes are the only mode by which they can essay their injury.

The Cholera.

Eight hundred and fifty-five new cases of cholera, and 346 deaths, were the footings of the official reports from the infected districts of Spain on Monday, June 22d.

The July "Eclectic" is embellished with a beautiful steel engraving of the Neapolitan Girl, which is alone worth the price of the number. The table of contents is interesting and varied. The opening paper by Mr. Williams, Soudan correspondent of a London journal, makes a serious charge against a high official, that Gordon's death was owing entirely to his disobedience of orders. Prince Outisky's paper on Prince Bismarck is one of great interest and acumen. Among the other timely articles are those on "Egypt and the Soudan," the "Coming War," and the "Advance of Russia toward Central Asia." Special attention may be called to the purely literary articles, among which are "Border Ballads," "The Kalewala," "Mary Wollstonecraft Godwin," and "Mr. Swinburne's Poetry." The miscellaneous papers are bright and readable, and the magazine in its entirety a highly entertaining number. As this number begins a new volume it affords an excellent opportunity for the beginning of new subscriptions. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single numbers, forty-five cents; trial subscription for three months, $1.

Chick's sawmill at York woods, above the Scotland district, has been in full operation all this season, and six men are now employed there.

Grass on rich and highly cultivated lands in Kittery, Eliot and York looks well, but on poor soil it is both short and thin; it needs rain very much, to ensure a good crop. The last of the planting is about finished, and the early crops promise well; peas are blooming, and potatoes in some fields are as large as marbles. The wild cherry trees are in full blossom, and the apple crop promises to be fair; but the recent hot suns and drying winds have affected vegetation adversely, and rain is much needed. The white-weed (ox-eye daisy) is blooming early and very plentifully; the farmers say it makes good fodder, but needs cutting earlier than any of the grasses.

Twelve Raymond Excursions.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb will have twelve delightful excursions in July, from six to eleven days in length, and at low rates. The list of points to be visited includes the White mountains, the Isles of Shoals, Mount Desert, Moosehead lake, Old Orchard beach, Saratoga, Niagara falls, Montreal, Quebec, Lake Memphremagog, the Saguenay river, Mauch Chunk, Watkins Glen, the Thousand Islands, the Hudson river, Ausable Chasm, etc. Several of these places are included for the first time in these excursions. There are already indications that the trips will be more popular than ever. Many names are already upon the lists. Two grand excursions to the Yellowstone National Park July 23d and August 27th are also announced. Descriptive circulars of all the tours may be obtained of W. Raymond, 240 Washington street, Boston.

On Monday night, June 22d, John Hasty of Dover heard the doorbell, and went out, but could not see any one. Next morning a dead infant was found at the door. The child had apparently been dead about an hour when found. A note was found on the child directed to Mr. Hasty, saying that the child was born in wedlock of respectable parents. It is supposed that the heartless parents left it on the doorsteps, expecting that Mr. Hasty would find it alive, and take care of it.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully enabled her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. E. SMITH,
19 Butterfield Street.

"That Extreme Tired Feeling."

"The first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good; her food does not distress her now, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA."

THAT beautifully situated estate known as the Capt. John Hunter's homestead, on a line with the Wm. Gardner mansion, and the projected extension of Mechanic street to connect with Pleasant street. This house or block is commodious for two large families, and has been substantially repaired by James Janvrin; price $750, carrying the right to purchase the adjacent wharf for $100 additional—$850. It has a historic interest as the cradle of the Marcy family and is opposite the house where Washington visited his Private Secretary Lear. There was a cargo of sugar and molasses landed and stored there, and it would seem that it cannot be long before this wharf will again be in requisition.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Fair weather, slowly rising temperature, nearly stationary barometer.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 56 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

POLICE COURT.

WEDNESDAY, June 24th.

In the absence of Judge Batchelder, Hon. M. Bufford occupied the bench. Patrick Freeman and Thomas Foley, for drunkenness, were fined $3 each, with costs; county farm in default of payment.

MARITIME NOTES.

On Monday, June 22d, a fishing schooner hailing from Wellfleet, Mass., came into the lower harbor, and anchored in the eddy inside of Clark's island. On the night of that day her crew raided the fences, gates and shrubbery in Kittery from the residence of Hon. Moses A. Safford at the Foreside to the place where they took to their boats to board their schooner; this occurred between ten and eleven o'clock, and the vessel sailed early the next morning. It is said the vessel's name is known, and that the outrage is to be formally reported to the collector of her home port, though we are not aware what power he has in the premises.

The schooner Alfred W. Fiske arrived on the 24th inst. from Baltimore with 593 tons of coal to E. F. Sise & Co., and the Cephas Starrett from Port Johnson the previous day with 558 tons to the same firm.

The schooner Mabel Thomas arrived on Wednesday of this week from Richmond, Va., with 570 tons coal to J. Albert Walker.

The schooner Caroline, Hutchings master, arrived on the 23d inst. from Hoboken with a cargo of coal for South Newmarket, and proceeded up river to discharge.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., June 22d.

Rev. W. W. Dow, pastor of the Congregational church at Kittery Point, exchanged with Rev. Perry Chandler at the First Methodist church on Sunday forenoon last. Mr. Dow delivered a highly interesting and instructive sermon, which was attentively listened to by the congregation.

Perry C. Moore, who for several years past has been night watchmen at the Appledore house, Isles of Shoals, left town to-day for the islands to perform the same duties this season.

Mr. Richardson, engineer at the Oceanic, Star island, last season, is employed in the same position this year, and went to the island on the steamer last week.

Dr. Walter E. Fernald, First Assistant Superintendent of the Wisconsin State insane asylum at Winona, Wis., is visiting at his home in North Kittery. His brother, William L. Fernald, Principal of the West Newbury (Mass.) high school, arrived home on Saturday last to pass his summer vacation.

John P. Brooks, son of James W. Brooks of North Kittery, will graduate this week from Dartmouth college, where he has taken a three years course in the Chandler Scientific department; he will probably make a flying visit home, after which he will go to western New York and engage in canvassing for a popular book.

The graduating exercises of the class of '85, Kittery Free High school, will be held in the Second Methodist church on Thursday, July 2d, at 2:00 P. M. The class contains five scholars, viz.: Dennis Manson, Augusta M. Pettigrew, Emma Hayes, Willie Damon, Hattie Duncan.

SUN ROSA.

The days are shortening.

See Plaisted's advertisement of 1000 barrels of flour for sale.

Four members of the P. S. C. & H. club were at Boston on the 17th of June, to attend the Bunker Hill celebration. Their brother McEvoy, who started to go west, got no further than Malden, Mass., where he was offered employment in the rubber factory, and accepted it. The club will go into camp at Gerrish's island, Kittery, toward the last of the season. The Sons of Rest club are quartered in the old custom house, corner of Daniel and Penhallow streets.

The steamer Appledore took out twenty summer boarders to the Appledore house on Wednesday evening.

The Portsmouth skating rink opens for the season this evening. See advertisement.

The friends in this city of John D. Marston, Esq., of Rye, will deeply sympathize with him in the loss of his only daughter, a little girl nearly seven years of age.

The street commissioner's forces have cleaned up the paved way of Market street, and removed all the loose stones of the macadamized roadway of Pleasant street.

Two barrels and four half barrels of ale from the Portsmouth Brewing Co. were seized at the Boston & Maine railroad station in Portland, Me., on Tuesday, the 23d inst.

It is said there will be no more false alarms of fire rung in by order of the chief engineer of the fire department.

It is reported that "Rev." A. A. Waite, formerly of this city, then of Newburyport, later of Boston, and later still of Lynn, Mass., is now in Norfolk, Va., where for some time he has been a member of the leading Methodist church, and head man in the Sunday school. He gives "chalk talks" and lectures still, and his advertisements of these performances read very much after the style familiar to those who remember the canting hypocrite when he was here.

About two o'clock, Tuesday afternoon of this week, a nine-years-old son of Mr. Woodbury Lord of Christian Shore was descending the hill at the Franklin schoolhouse on a tricycle, when he ran against one shaft of a coal cart going in the opposite direction, the machine being capsized and he thrown directly in front of one of the cart wheels. The driver of the team was fortunately able to stop the horse in time to prevent the wheel passing over the boy, who was badly bruised as it was. He was carried into the house of Mr. Hanson Hoyt, and his hurts attended to before he was taken to his home by Mr. Hanson.

Mr. Asa McIntire, of Beech Ridge, York, is now about eighty-five years old and works daily on his farm, but says he cannot understand why he gets tired now, sooner than formerly. He was the first to introduce the Baldwin apple into York. When a young man he inherited several farms from his father, who was fond of owning land. After disposing of all his extra estates he went to work on the farm he now occupies, and removing all the encumbrances on the land, made all the improvements now there.——Mr. Martin H. Kingsbury has commenced extensive improvements upon his farm at the ridge, his barn is now being raised.——Mr. Daniel McIntire has nearly finished his house, moved to Beech Ridge from an adjacent part of York, and to which he has added an ell, built by Albion Parsons.——Samuel Blaisdell's farm at the ridge has been brought up to a high state of cultivation, and the buildings all look trim. A well which he excavated last year furnishes an abundance of pure, cool water, although the ridge is very elevated, and overlooks York village and the river valley. Mrs. Blaisdell pays great attention to the raising of Plymouth Rock fowls, which she makes a specialty. Mr. Blaisdell uses the most improved farming tools, his latest acquisition being Humphrey's hoe, made at North Newport, N. H., of trowel steel and having ten prongs.

Mr. Joseph E. Jackson has taken possession of the "Kittery custom house" in place of Dr. Edward S. Appleton, and will continue to sell all kinds of fish as the doctor did before him.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSBURGH, PA., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required tuning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malaria. Prepared in two forms, viz.: Regular and Concentrated. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

The Root of the Evil.

To thoroughly cure scrofula it is necessary to strike directly at the root of the evil. This is exactly what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, by acting upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing it of all impurities, and leaving not even a taint of scrofula in the vital fluid. Thousands who have been cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, testify to its wonderful blood-purifying qualities. Sold by all druggists.

Charles A. Buddensick, the New York contractor who built the big houses that recently tumbled down, has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500. Under the law he could have been sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment and to pay $7000 fine.

Saved from the Grave.

"A severe cold, ending in a hard, dry cough, caused me to pass many sleepless nights, coughing until it seemed as though my head would burst. I told my friends that I must die. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer. First dose was a great surprise; slept all night in peace. It cured me right up. Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshal H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

In Cincinnati, June 23d, a colored girl eighteen years old, named Cora Hinton, shot and instantly killed Jennie Scott, also colored. The trouble grew out of an intimacy existing between Cora Hinton and Charlie Dumont, who is the brother-in-law of Jennie Scott. The Hinton girl was arrested.

That somebody likes and buys the American hog is evident from the statistics of pork-packing, which wear a cheerful look in spite of the hostility of European governments. From March 1st to date it appears that 2,080,000 hogs have been packed this year, as against 1,815,000 for the corresponding season last year.

James Pyle's Pearline is constantly growing in popular favor—and no wonder, for it is wonderfully effective and pleasant to use. It saves half the labor of washing, and does not hurt the clothes.

Antonio Accetta of Catskill, N. Y., has been arrested in Cleveland, Ohio, charged with attempting to defraud an insurance company out of $10,000, the amount of a policy taken out on his life. Accetta went in swimming a short time since, and his clothes being found on the beach an unsuccessful search was made for his body. He admitted the conspiracy, stating that he had secreted an extra suit of clothes at a short distance down the river from where the clothing was found.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter X of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or lock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer these to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall severally be charged by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 24. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 15. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

GLEANINGS.

Canoeing promises to be a favorite pastime this season.

In many New York parlors gas is no longer used, and chandeliers have been removed.

There are in this country at present, according to estimates, very nearly, if not fully, 50,000 skating rinks.

The English coffee-houses which were started to counteract the liquor-saloons have proved to be very successful as business ventures.

The latest official census of Japan reports a total population of 37,442,396, of whom 18,492,807 are females. The number of houses in the country is 7,674,224.

Washington is a remarkably religious city. Statistics show 180 churches, with 49,351 members. Of this total membership, however, about 21,000 are in the colored churches.

A farmer near Macon, Ga., has 400,000 willows growing on his place. He has set out 80,000 this season, and will set his entire levee with them. A ton to the acre is the average yield, and when dried they are worth $200 per ton.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the same as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

H. MACK, Comique Roller Skater
YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

BEST FOR ANYTHING.

Having used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for eighteen months for Tetter, and finally cured it, I am anxious to get it to all on commission. I can recommend it beyond any remedies I have ever used for Tetter, Burns, Cuts, etc. In fact, it is the best medicine I have ever tried for anything.

R. S. HORTON.
MYRTLE, MISS.

NEVER A COMPLAINT.

Since I have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES I have never heard a single complaint, but on the contrary every one who has used them has been well pleased with them, and they outsell all others. R. B. CUBBERLY, Druggist.
ANDREWS, IND.

SCROFULOUS SORES.

I had a dozen bad sores upon my body, and tried all remedies I could hear of, and at last tried your CUTICURA REMEDIES and they have cured me.

Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now to-day she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. H. Gafford and wife.

Sick Headache.

GENTS:—I have been subject to Sick Headache for years, and have tried, in vain, many advertised remedies and several physicians, but all to no purpose. At last I tried your B. B. Bitters—without much faith, I admit—but to-day I can truly say, that after taking the third bottle I have not suffered from it. I recommend it to all my friends; several have been cured by it. My little grandson was permanently cured of Biliousness and Sick Headache, which were so severe as to cause convulsions. They have all ceased since he commenced the use of B.B.B.

Items and Notes.

The Norwegian barque Nat arrived off the capes of Delaware June 24th with yellow fever on board. Her captain died of that disease in Cienfuegos before she left, and also several of her crew.

Late Tuesday afternoon, June 23d, Miss Gracie W. Lawrence, aged nineteen years, left her home in Pocasset, Mass., and after continued search was found dead early next morning on the banks of Long pond. She was temporarily insane.

At Baltimore, June 24th, Henry A. Myers, convicted of cruelly beating his wife, after unsuccessful effort to escape punishment through the court of appeals received his twenty lashes on the bare back at the hands of the sheriff.

One day recently a lady from Brockton, Mass., took the cars for Boston, and shared a seat with a strange man, who she noticed was well dressed and sported a showy diamond ring. When the lady left the Boston depot she felt in her pocket for her pocketbook, and it was gone. A more careful search resulted in the discovery of the diamond ring. How the ring came to be there or the pocketbook not there any one can decide for himself. She took the ring to a jeweller, who told her it was worth several hundred dollars, and as her pocketbook only contained $29 she does not feel that she was a loser to any great extent.

A stay of proceedings has been granted by Judge Van Brunt in the supreme court of New York, in the case of Boddenseik, the builder. Buddenseik's counsel claimed that there had been a material error in the conduct of the case, which would be subject to review on appeal.

During the performance of a circus in Lapeer, Mich., an elephant became infuriated and turned upon the 8000 persons assembled under the canvas, tearing up the seats and making sad havoc generally. Many people were injured, previous to the recapture of the beast in a swamp where he had become fast in the mire.

A despatch from Mt. Carmel, Pa., states that the arbitrators have failed to adjust the difficulties between Congressman Scott and his 700 employees at the Pennsylvania colliery, and the strike has been resumed.

The Italian steamer Italia has been totally wrecked on the Peruvian coast. Sixty-five lives were lost.

Many horses and mules have died at Knoxville, Pa., from a disease supposed to be a species of glanders.

The Grand Army delegates to the national encampment at Portland on Thursday, the 25th inst., voted to hold the next national encampment in San Francisco, Cal.

A despatch from Durango, Col., confirms the report that a family of six Indians were murdered by cowboys while asleep in their tent. Also that a man named Geuthner was murdered by Indians, his wife dangerously wounded and their house and barns burned.

AROUND HOME.

Hon. Peter Marcy of New Orleans, accompanied by his son Daniel, arrived in this city on the 24th inst. on a visit to Hon. Daniel Marcy.

Mr. Edward L. Berry of this city is carrying on a branch bakery store at Newcastle.

The graduation exercises of the High school were held in Franklin theatre on Thursday afternoon, the 25th inst., and were attended by a vast audience. The reception by the graduating class took place in Franklin hall in the evening.

A gentleman in from Newington on Thursday last informed us that the cutting of grass on high land had been quite generally commenced in his neighborhood, and that the yield would not nearly come up the anticipations of a month ago, the hot, dry weather of the past two weeks having prematurely ripened the grain without causing it to gain much in height. Similar reports come from Rye, Greenland and the Hamptons, and from the towns across the river. On low lands there is still a chance for a good yield, in case rain comes seasonably.

Messrs. William H. Preston and Fred R. Griffin arrived at New York on Tuesday, June 23d, as passengers in the ship Paul Jones of this port, Winn master, from Iloilo, Phillippine Islands.

A gentleman of Kittery who for twenty years or more has been a justice of the peace, was recently called up at a late hour in the evening to perform the marriage ceremony for the first time.

Concerning the offices in York it is reported that Mr. George F. Plaisted is an applicant for the postmastership at York Corner, and that Mr. Fremont Varrell would like to supercede Mr. Charles W. Walker at York village; also that Rev. George M. Payne, a lifelong democrat, would like to be collector of customs for the port of York. After the publication of the letter of the collector of customs of Portsmouth, and of the various comments thereon, a conference was held by the federal officials in York, and it was concluded to "stick" until ousted by the administration.

The liquor agency was a happy thought of the city fathers. Its system of registration of names of buyers, their street and number, is likely to prove an efficient agent in warding off any threatened approach of cholera. The board of health will find it a valuable aid in the prosecution of their labors, which they will not be slow to use. A careful study of the registration book will not only locate the prevalence of disease, but the number and frequency of half pints charged to one party will show whether or not the disease is of a tenacious or threatening character. Thus, instead of being obliged to expend much valuable time smelling after sour-sink drains, jabbing ash heaps and kicking over unlimited rubbish in search of 'germs,' armed with a copy of the register of the city dispensary they can don their second-hand clothing, and, with spade and tongs, go for the infected spots with a great deal of precision.—Biddeford Journal.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. E. SMITH,
19 Butterfield Street.

MEDICATED

FOR TREATMENT OF HEMORRHOIDS

More than twenty-five per cent of its weight is due to the best remedial agents known to the profession, by whom it is conceded that in incorporating them with Tolles' Paper there is a certainty of application and benefit otherwise unattainable. Unsolicited letters testify to its remarkable curative properties. One thousand sheets contain more of these remedies than any fifty-cent package of Pile Ointment. Each roll is Leading Druggists Sell our Goods. 2awtdec22

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, June 25th, Mayor Page in the chair:

Present the full board, except Aldgrman Walker.

The records of the last meeting were read and approved.

Petition of Harry G. Tanton for sidewalk at his house, was referred to the committee on streets, with power.

Petition of Howard Grover for drain at No. 19 Austin street, was referred to committee on sewers, with power.

Petition of Stephen Tobey and others, for light on Islington street at the residence of Ald. Coffin, was referred to the committee on street lights, with power.

Petition of Frank Jones for additional light near Sagamore bridge, was referred to the committee on street lights, with power.

Request of H. W. Hill for leave to remove a building from Green street to Deer street, was referred to the committee on streets, with power.

Complaints regarding bathing in Sagamore creek at Lafayette road, were referred to the mayor, with power.

Voted that no bond be required of the superintendent of the fire alarm.

The matter of the extension of Mechanic street was referred to the next meeting.

Resignation of Dr. Sherburne as city physician and chairman of the board of health, was accepted.

Bills of fire department, $1,349.59; of Thomas A. Pryor, $11.25; of John O'Donnell, $6.75; and of Edward D. Coffin, $6, were ordered paid.

The mayor reported that the Boston & Maine managers were ready to cancel the lease of the north pond to the city, if desired; and would furnish gravel at cost for filling the upper part of the pond. No action was taken.

Adjourned for two weeks.

TAXATION OF VESSEL PROPERTY.

The town of Greenland recently assessed a tax upon parts of sea-going vessels owned by a wealthy gentleman who has always claimed a residence there, though spending his time elsewhere. Under the law of taxation as amended in 1879, sea-going vessels are taxed as part of the owner's stock in trade and not taxed as vessels, to the owner. The selectmen of Greenland were called upon to abate this tax, and its abatement brings the finances of the town in arrears for about $500.

A bill was introduced in the legislature by the member from Stratham to repeal or modify this feature in the law, and a hearing was had on Wednesday of this week before the committee on judiciary. Representative Sise, Hon. Daniel Marcy, Capt. John S. Pray, and Capt. M. F. Pickering of Greenland, explained the utility of the law as it now is, and the committee after the hearing reported to the house of representatives that it was inexpedient to legislate upon the matter, and the recommendation of the report of the committee was adopted by the house.

THE UP-RIVER DEPUTY COLLECTORSHIP.

It is the opinion of a prominent democrat that the removal of the office of the deputy collector at Exeter to Dover would prove a great injury to the democratic party, as well as tend to diminish the volume of revenue collected at this port; and rather than see the office removed from the head of navigation on the Swamscot to the upper Cocheco, the P. D. will consent to take it himself.

It is singular how reforms progress as the reformers come to view the situation from a new standpoint. This office, we were told, was instituted by Ex-Senator Rollins to capture a newspaper influence from under the thumb of his rival for the senatorship, who lived in Exeter, and from whose camp Rollins obtained a recruit. The necessity for having a deputy collector at Exeter was that four or five times a year a small coal schooner made trips from Philadelphia up the tortuous river, and she might carry concealed somewhere in her lockers bottles of Philadelphia ale to be imbibed by the students with their lore in the pursuing their studies, but as far as we can learn there never has been any duty performed beyond drawing the salary. True, at Dover there is more navigation, but all could be better inspected at Portsmouth bridge, through which all these up-river-bound crafts are obliged to pass.

The office is a sinecure, and we can but admire the sterling integrity of our friend of the Dover Democrat, who, having had occasion to condemn this unnecessary and extravagant species of special reward for political service, is not anxious to rush in and occupy a place he has so long regarded as entirely superfluous and uncalled for.

MARITIME NOTES.

The brick schooners Lillie, Satellite and D. K. Ham arrived from Boston on Thursday, 25th inst., light, and proceeded up river to load. The schooner Hattie Lewis also arrived from York, to which place she took a cargo of grain and flour from this port on the 23d.

The steam tug Wm. H. Clark, of Boston, arrived at this port at noon on Thursday last from Salem, Mass., having in tow Mr. Symonds' dredging flotilla—dredging machine, two dump-scows and floating boarding-house—and accompanied by Mr. Symonds' steam launch. The flotilla has for several months been engaged in deepening the channel to and under the Beverly draw-bridge, and will at once resume work at improving the channels of the upper branches of the Piscataqua.

BOSTON & MAINE TIME-TABLE.

The summer time-table of the Boston & Maine railroad goes into effect on Monday, June 29th. As many through trains between Boston and Portland are kept on as in the past, and new ones added, but their time is changed, so that they will not run so closely together as hitherto. Those persons who were inclined to fear that facilities under the consolidation would be diminished, will find them increased. For instance, a train over the Western Division connects with the 9:30 A. M. White mountain train over the Eastern Division, and people living along the latter division will find ample facilities for reaching Old Orchard beach, etc., without change of cars.

On the Western Division (Boston & Maine railroad proper) are additional trains from Boston for Portland at 7:30 A. M. and 6:00 P. M. An additional White mountain train, leaving Boston at 9:30 A. M., (with parlor cars from Fall River, taken on at Lowell Junction,) unites at Great Falls with the train leaving Boston at the same time via the Eastern Division (Eastern railroad, "Seashore Line,") the united train arriving at Fabyan's at 3:25 P. M., and at Bethlehem Junction at 4:00 o'clock.

On the Eastern Division, through trains from Boston start for Portland as before, at 7:30 and 9:00 A. M. (Flying Yankee) and 12:30 and 7:00 P. M. The 12:30 P. M. train runs from North Berwick to Portland over the Western Division, instead of over the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth iron as previously. The White mountain train leaves Boston at 9:30 A. M., the same as last season, connecting at Great Falls with the mountain train over the inland line, as above stated.

The Boston Traveller remarks that "Mr. Lowell's declaration that he has 'nothing but English blood in his veins' has provoked the Pilot into looking up his pedigree. It cites from Francis H. Underwood's biography of our late minister to England the following statements: 'The genius for poetry manifested by the subject of this sketch and by his brother Robert was apparently derived from the maternal line. Dr. Charles Lowell married Harriet Spence, a native of Portsmouth, N. H., belonging to a Scotch family, descended, perhaps, from Sir Patrick Spens, celebrated in the old ballad.' This shows that a public man should be very careful how he allows an interviewer to tempt him into impromptu remarks about his lineage and other subjects on which he is not posted." The Spence family, as we learn from one of the older residents of the city, many years ago occupied the house on the southwest corner of Fleet and State streets, now belonging to Mrs. Dr. Curtis. The family was a somewhat noted one three-quarters of a century ago.

One of the California subscribers of the New Hampshire Gazette, Mr. L. S. Shillaber of San Francisco, only pays his subscription about once in three years, squaring up for that period ahead whenever his term runs out, without waiting for a bill; he has just made his claim good up to May, '88. About all the gold coins we got hold of or saw during the prolonged reign of paper currency, before California fell into line with the rest of the Union in its use of paper, were the five-dollar pieces periodically forwarded by Mr. Shillaber. We had as lief as not have a thousand more subscribers just like him; and now is the time to subscribe.

Mr. Joshua M. Vaughan has relapsed into his old ways, and taken to driving a bread-cart on the road again. Thursday morning he was seen crossing Portsmouth bridge toward the York county side of the river, having on his wagon a large number of patent egg-cases, from which it was inferred that he was going into the egg business.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their nature. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all disease arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

34 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

has worn golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should be your stand-by, your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is a benediction, proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Biliousness

Is very prevalent at this season, the symptoms being bitter taste, breath offensive, tongue coated, sick headache, drowsiness, dizziness, loss of appetite. If this condition is allowed to continue, serious consequences may follow. By promptly taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, a fever may be avoided or premature death prevented. It is a positive cure for biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

FOR YOUNG MEN.

Sound Advice from a Prominent Statesman.

The Private Letter Ex-Minister Edwards Pierrepont Wrote Six Years Ago to His Son.

A letter from the Hon. Edwards Pierrepont to his son, who recently died in Rome holding the position of Secretary to the American Legation, contains a great deal of sound advice to young men. It was written at the time the young man entered college and is here copied from the Brooklyn Eagle:

NO. 103 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK, March 8, 1879.—My Dear Son: I would gladly save you from much annoyance and from many sorrows, by giving you the benefit of my own experience. I have been through the preparatory schools and the university, and I know all their trials and temptations. I also know how prone boys are to think that the times have changed since their fathers were young, and that the true rules for the conduct of life have ceased to be the same. My son, as you grow older, you will find that from the time of Solomon to this hour, human nature has not changed at all, and that the guide to a prosperous and happy life is precisely the same as it was when that wise man wrote. The boy who is fortunate enough to have a father whose experience is large and varied, and who communicates it with no possible motive but the best good of his child, has great advantage, if he will heed what is told him; but will suffer all the more deeply in the end if he comes to see that the care, and the earnest warning, and the faithful counsel has been disregarded.

Banish forever from your mind that folly which young men very stupidly cherish, "that the world and the ways of the world are essentially different now from what they were forty years ago;" and settle forever in your mind certain principles which you are never to doubt, and never to swerve from in your course of life.

1. That there is a great first cause which rules the world, a something which we can but dimly comprehend, because it is too vast for our finite minds. It is the infinite. It is God. It is fruitless to try "to find out God." He is "Our Father in Heaven;" this is all that the simple child can know. That this great Creator is just and merciful, and rules by equal laws, we have every reason to believe; and that is one of the Creator's laws that our lives may be influenced by earnest prayer for guidance in the right way, there is no doubt.

I do not mean that to pray for specific things, such as riches and honors, will bring riches and honors as matter of course, but that honest and earnest prayer to our Father in Heaven for guidance in the way that is for our best good is sure to bring strength and enlightenment to the mind, and thus to aid us in the affairs of life.

Every day ask our Heavenly Father to guide you in all things in the way which is right, and you will not go wrong.

Most of the scientific men of our time devote themselves to the study of the laws of matter, and seem to forget that man, even while on earth, has a spiritual as well as a material nature. They find nothing but matter in the brain which they dissect, and they jump at the conclusion that there is nothing but matter. Their discoveries in the laws of the matter are wonderful and invaluable, but they utterly neglect the spiritual laws which are as real and as certainly a part of man as the grosser substance. That the soul survives the body, and that it is happy or miserable, "according to the deed done in the body," never allow yourself to doubt. If skeptics wish to talk with you about it, don't argue; arguments on these subjects never do any good—you might as well argue that you loved your mother. Practice what I suggest, and you will know from conscious experience that what I tell you is true, and you will be made much happier and serener day by day, and far more prosperous in this world. When in the family of the Rev. Henry Seymour, at Holme Pierrepont, you saw how cheerful and serenely happy they all were under the influence of a religious life.

2d. That truth, unfaltering integrity, justice and honor are never to be departed from under any circumstances.

Lies come from meanness low vanity, cowardice and a depraved nature, and they always fail of their object and bring the liar into contempt. Without strict integrity, justice and honor, no one can have continued success in anything, or lasting respect from anybody. Every one is found out sooner or later, and much sooner than he supposes. Indeed your true character is sure to be known, and sure to be justly appreciated.

I pray you, my son, never trouble yourself about popularity. Do right the best you can, deserve respect, and you will be certain to have it.

If you see a fellow student who is always manly, honorable, brave and just and who devotes himself to the duties before him every day, who resists temptations to pleasures which interfere with his health, and hence with his success, you can not help admiring and respecting him, and so it is with the most jaded idler at Christ Church, Oxford has never graduated a man who was an indolent failure at the college who ever became an eminent success afterward, and she never will.

Attend to the duties and obey the laws of the university. It sometimes enters the shallow heads of young men that it is clever and spirited to transgress the rules. It is supremely silly. It requires neither brains nor courage to break the laws, and comes of a desire to get cheap notoriety through cowardice or vice, and the aspiring idiot always fails in the end. Thieves and burglars break laws; true men keep them, they are made for good.

The great secret of making the labors of university life or of other life easy is each to do his duty every day. If you let a burden of arrears accumulate it will discourage you. If you have five things to do each day, they are easily done; but if you put them off with the idea that you can do fifty on the tenth day, you will surely fail.

Mind not what others do; they may be able to waste more time than you can afford, more likely, however, that they will fail. Many in Christ Church do not expect to make any figure in the world, and have no ambition but to pass through; and many affect to despise the diligent.

If you have not a determined purpose to take a stand as a scholar, and to lead an earnest, manly life after you leave Oxford, then leave it now, and save me the mortification and expense and yourself the reproach and scorn which your countrymen bestow upon your wasted opportunities. Do well, and there is nothing in my power that I would not do to advance you. But a failure, through your own indolence, weakness and indulgence and though you are my only son, I should feel that I had one too many.

Success comes not of spasmodic effort, but of continued, everday work.

Read the fable of "the hare and the tortoise," and profit by its teachings, and remember that success, with honor, is one of the highest pleasures of life. I have many fears lest in companionship with so many young men of easy fortune and no ambition, beyond that of the easy life of an English gentleman, you lost the steady purpose which should animate you daily. Remember that America is not England. No one is born to titled greatness here; he who gets it must achieve it; and he who can not achieve it in some form is of small consideration. We have no idle class, and I trust that we may never have. An idle life is a worthless and unhappy life.

Never go to balls or parties in term time, and avoid late wines and suppers at all times—they always injure the health and without health life has scarcely a pleasure.

From his birth Samson drank neither wine nor strong drink and those who are trained for the ring imitate his example. During our late war it was conclusively proved that those who drank water only escaped disease and endured fatigue far beyond the others.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. THE CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have my testimonial whenever I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, and for all "work." CUTICURA, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending this article.

BEST FOR ANYTHING.

Having used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for eighteen months for Tetter, and finally cured it, I am anxious to get it to sell on commission. I can recommend it beyond any remedies I have ever used for Tetter, Burns, Cuts, etc. In fact, it is the best medicine I have ever tried for anything.

R. S. HORTON.
MYRTLE, MISS.

NEVER A COMPLAINT.

Since I have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES I have never heard a single complaint, but on the contrary every one who has used them has been well pleased with them, and they outsell all others. E. B. CUBBERLY, Druggist.

Is There a Cure for Consumption?

We answer unreservedly, yes! If the patient commences in time the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," and exercises proper care. If allowed to run its course too long any medicine is powerless to stay it. Dr. Pierce never deceives a patient by holding out a false hope for the sake of pecuniary gain. The "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured thousands of patients when nothing else seemed to avail. Your druggist has it. Send two stamps for Dr. Pierce's complete treatise on consumption with numerous testimonials. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, New York.

The skin on the head is kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. Delightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressing. Preferable to all similar articles because of its superior cleanliness and purity.

The Central American Trouble.

A despatch of June 25th from Colon says: "At two P. M., June 16th, the United States ship Yantic arrived at Aspinwall from Savinala (the seaport of Baranquila, Columbia.) The Yantic brought down with her the Colombian commissioner, Don Justo Arosemena of Panama, who had charge of the negotiations on the part of Colombia. He was not successful. The Yantic also brought three revolutionary officers, viz.: F. P. Archilla, R. P. Steers and R. Rodriguez, who go to the United States by the steamer City of Para. Gen. Gomina, who was ordered by the general commanding the Columbian troops in Panama to leave the isthmus within twelve hours, also goes to New York on the City of Para. Gen. Gomina commanded the Colombian guard on the isthmus when the revolutionary party made such havoc with Colon."

The Cholera.

The official reports of new cases of cholera and deaths from cholera in Spain on Wednesday, June 24th, footed up nearly 1000 new cases and over 400 deaths.

Death of Minister Phelps.

A dispatch has been received at the state department in Washington, announcing the death of I. L. Phelps, United States minister at Peru. Mr. Phelps died at Lima. He was about sixty years of age, and entered the navy in 1831, continuing in its service until 1874, and serving with distinction as lieutenant commander under Admirals Rodgers and Foote during the war of the rebellion. After resigning from the navy he was connected with the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. for several years. He also served as commissioner of the District of Columbia. President Arthur appointed him minister to Peru on June 26th in 1883, which post he was occupying at the time of his death. He was to have been relieved, however, in a few days, C. W. Buck, of Kentucky, appointed to that position by President Cleveland, having but recently sailed from New York to Lima to assume the duties of his office. Mr. Phelps leaves a wife and one daughter. The latter is the wife of Mr. Sevellor A. Brown, chief clerk of the department of state.

Postmaster General Vilas persistently refuses to appoint editors to postmasterships. The policy will to no small degree settle the difficulties in the selection of a postmaster at Dover. The administration regards collectorships as the proper positions for editors to fill. Where there is nothing to collect, an editor makes just as good a collector as any other fellow can.

Mr. Wm. E. Chandler has printed in his newspaper at Concord, a brief in the case Roach vs. Whitney in re Dolphin. The only serious obstacle in the way of Mr. Roach's success in having the Dolphin taken off his hands would seem to be from the fact that Mr. Chandler advocates the proposition, which of course arouses suspicion in many minds. The irrepressible ex-secretary, who seems never so happy as when he is talking with some one in a newspaper warfare, makes an extra effort to insult Commodore Belknap, a distinguished naval officer, a native of our state, who possibly knows as much about naval ships as does the late purchaser of the wood-preserving process.

Women's National Relief Corps.

The formal session of the Women's National Relief Corps was held in Portland, Me., June 24th, and opened with speeches by Past Grand Commander Paul van Devoort, of Nebraska, and Past Grand Chaplain Foster, of New York. The formal portion of the programme began about eleven o'clock with a prayer by Chaplain Mrs. Van Demeyer.

Mrs. Logan was introduced to the assembly, and in a few words thanked the delegates for the manner in which they had greeted her.

Col. Goodell, of Massachusetts, was present, and spoke briefly, as also did Col. Carter, of New York.

At the session in the afternoon Mrs. Sherwood, the national president, presented her annual report. Various other reports were read and adopted. That of the national secretary showed: Number of corps March 31, 1885, 472; net gain in membership during the year, 12,065; amount expended in charity, $13,516.

The Woman's Relief Corp on the 25th elected Mrs. Sarah A. Fuller of Massachusetts senior vice president, Mrs. Lizzie D. A. Kinne of California junior vice president, and Mrs. Adaline P. Kent of New Hampshire treasurer.

The G. A. R. on June 25th elected Samuel S. Burdett of Washington grand commander, Selden Conner of Maine senior vice commander, and Comrade Davis of Atlanta, Ga., junior vice commander.

News has been received at Dallas, Texas, that the citizens posse who have for months been chasing the outlaws who have for months been murdering men and stealing the horses and stock in the neighborhood of Delaware Bend, overtook the gang, on June 23d, and hanged eight of them at once. They proceeded a few miles further and captured four others, whom they killed in a similar manner. The news is also confirmed from Burlington and Gainesville that about three weeks ago three horse thieves were lynched, making a total of fifteen dead outlaws to the credit of this posse. Fully twenty members of the gang have been slain since last spring, and a half-dozen good officers and citizens have lost their lives.

The Harvard-Yale boat race at New London, Conn., June 26th, was won by Harvard.

A despatch from Paris says: "All accounts received from Tonquin show that the ravages of disease among the French troops there are simply appalling. Three thousand invalid soldiers have been sent home. The deaths among the troops are from fifteen to twenty daily."

James Shaw, Esq., of Aurora, Ill., a native of Portsmouth and formerly editor of this paper, is on a brief visit to his early home.

Hon. John F. Hartley, ex-assistant United States treasurer, is confined to his house in Saco, by illness, which may prove serious.

Victorious Baking Powder.

The United States Indian Commission has awarded to Messrs. Martin Kalbfleisch's Sons the baking powder contract, thereby recognizing the purity of their Wheat Baking Powder. Baking powders containing alum or other deleterious substances were rejected. The Wheat Baking Powder was recently awarded the Gold Medal at the New Orleans International Exposition.—*N. Y. DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. R. SMITH,
19 Butterfield Street.

THE DOVER INFANTICIDE.

City Marshal Fogerty of Dover on Thursday afternoon last arrested Miss Emma G. Frost, suspected of being the mother of the infant which was placed on the doorstep of Mr. John Hosley in Dover on the night of June 22d, and found there next morning by Mr. Hosley, dead, having perished from exposure and neglect. It is thought the child was born some time during Sunday, the 21st, the physicians saying it was not over two days old when abandoned. On Thursday, the 25th, the Dover marshal, learning that the suspected woman had been taken out of town during the previous night, started to find her, first putting a guard over the inmates of the house she had left. She was found at Frost bill, with a relative, and after some demur consented to return to Dover with the officer. Emma Frost and her mother, who live on Washington street, Dover, are to be charged with manslaughter before the police court of that city, the case having been postponed to July 9th on account of the mother's condition. George Frost, father of Emma, is held as a witness. The unhappy young woman is a dressmaker by occupation, and but twenty-five years old. There is no suspicion that the death of her child was intended, but only to get rid of it. The name of the putative father has not been made public.

THE HIGH SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

The class day exercises by the members of the High School took place at Franklin Theatre, Thursday afternoon, commencing at three o'clock, and were attended by the parents, friends, and ex-graduates of the school in numbers entirely filling the audience room, those present being much interested in the exercises, although the atmosphere in the theatre was very oppressive. The stage occupied by the graduating class and the young ladies of the school, was decorated with flowers, and in front, worked in white upon a bed of evergreen, were the words class of '85. With these floral decorations in the foreground and the young ladies tastily dressed in white, it was indeed, a pleasing sight. The class was made up of 15 young ladies and gentlemen, all but three of whom had pursued the classical or four years course of the school. The following was the Conferring Diplomas. Presentation of Medals.

Mayor Page in conferring the diplomas, made some reference to the advantages offered the pupils of the High school, and spoke of the duty which the scholars owed to their parents and the committee for providing these educational opportunities. He concluded his remarks by complimenting the class for the pleasing and interesting exercises of the afternoon. The Haven medals were awarded by Rev. Alfred Gooding, of the committee, as follows:

SECOND YEAR.

For diligent application, good deportment and general improvement in all the studies pursued—Young Ladies, First medal, Annie L. Morrison; second medal, Annie M. Locke; Young Gentlemen, Frst medal, Thomas F. Willey; Second medal, Jacob Green.

THIRD YEAR.

Leavitt, who has also maintained the highest rank in mathematics during this and previous years; Third medal, Bertha Hodgdon; Young Gentlemen, for having maintained the highest rank in general scholarship, First medal Minot H. Beacham; for excellence in mathematics during this and previous years, Second medal, Clifton S. Humphreys; first best English composition, only young gentlemen contending, Third medal, George B. Stavers.

FOURTH YEAR.

For excellence in general scholarship, during the four years.—Young ladies, 1st medal, Alice L. Brewster, who has also maintained the highest rank in Latin; Second medal, Ella F. English composition, only young ladies contending, has also been awarded to Miss Brewster Second medal, Annie L. Lamprey; Third medal, Ethel M. Green; Fourth medal, A. Grace Henderson; Fifth medal, Bertha M. Davis; Young Gentlemen, for excellence in general scholarship during four years, First medal, Frank W. Philbrick; who has also maintained the highest rank in Latin; Second medal, Chester B. Curtis; Third medal, Albion T. Parker.

The exercises of the afternoon closed by the singing of the class ode, a poem full of beautiful sentiment, composed by Miss Alice L. Brewster, the valedictorian.

A plot of sunshine in our lives,
Where each day's cares and fears with shade,
Our school life is—must always be
By far too bright to fade.
The happy freedom, blithesome joy,
Which comes but once to all,
Has made our hearts a golden chain,
Though now its links must fall.
A hand unseen has strewn our path
With roses and their thorns,
And freely we have gathered all,
Bright with the dews of morn.
As yet a rude, unshapen mass,
Untouched as the sculptor's stone,
Each life is waiting to be carved
With the tool God makes its own.
And Hope, bright phantom, as we work,
Tints all with rosy hue,
Though must a greater guide our hands,
To have our failures few.
No longer free to roam at will,
A nobler life's in store!
Footsteps of others urge us on,
School-boys and girls no more.
We long to join their ceaseless tread,
To leave our footprints, too,
And though they be but soft and light,
We'd have them firm and true.
With hearts untried, press on, press on
To feel, when all is won,
The world has been the better
For what little we have done.

In the evening, at Franklin hall, the reception by the class was a very brilliant affair. It was attended by a very large number of the friends of the class, citizens, and out of town acquaintances. The music for dancing was furnished by an orchestra made up of musicians from this city and Dover, and was of an excellent character. The costumes of the ladies were generally very neat and attractive, some of them being particularly so. Those who participated in the dance were mostly of the young portion of society, while the older people occupied seats about the hall and in the gallery. This last event in the history of the class of '85 was one of unalloyed pleasure to all who were present, and will ever be a pleasant memory to the members of the class, who made it so successful. The order was not a long one, and as the last strains of the music died away, about one o'clock, the class bade their friends good night, and the party broke up.

MARITIME NOTES.

The United States steamer Galena, Commander Kane commanding, arrived in the lower harbor late on Friday afternoon, and brought up at the quarantine anchorage. She has for some months been on duty in Central American waters, and was at Colon when the town was burned by Prestan.

The schooners George W. Glover and Fairwind, from New York, and the Adele Trudell from Philadelphia, all for Dover, arrived June 26th; also the Mary June, from Jersey City for Newmarket.

The schooner yacht Wm. H. Russell arrived on Friday from a six days trip to Portland, Me.

The International cricket club of Lowell, Mass., will play the Portsmouth club of this city on the grounds of the latter near Frenchman's Lane, on the 4th of July; game called at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. A band will be in attendance.

Mayor Page, Aldermen Eldredge, Locke and Anderson, and Councilmen Hand and Stackpole, being the special committee on abatement of north pond nuisance, accompanied by City Clerk Goodrich and Mr. Putnam, a civil engineer of Salem, Mass., on Friday forenoon made a personal inspection of the proposed locations of the long-talked-of and greatly-needed intercepting sewer. They also at the same time sampled the odor of the pond, which was doing very nearly its best that forenoon.

Mr. George M. Adwers, of Lawrence, Kansas, formerly of this city, after an absence of twenty-five years is paying a visit to his early home, having arrived on Thursday last, bringing with him a wife and son. Mrs. Adwers is a western lady, and neither she nor her son ever saw the ocean until now. Mr. Adwers and family are stopping at Stratham, with his sister.

The petition of Harry J. Freeman and others, for lights on Islington street, brought before the board of mayor and aldermen last Thursday evening, was for two lights — one on the corner of Frenchman's lane, and the other on the corner of Spinney's lane, instead of for one at the residence of Alderman Coffin. Capt. Coffin had a light set up, at his own expense, near his residence in 1875, and thinks that one is enough for him.

An excursion party of about 120 persons went to the Shoals on Friday in the steamer Appledore, starting at two o'clock P. M. and returning by moonlight. The excursion, which was arranged by the Unity club, was thoroughly enjoyable, the air at the islands being delightfully cool, and the open fires being quite grateful in the evening.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is concerning that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases where a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for disorders of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all diseases arising out of the impure blood. To females who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Vegetine is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers; for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep.

Amos Davis of Passumpsic, Vt., aged sixty-two, hung himself June 24th.

"Rough on Catarrh"

Corrects offensive odors at once. Complete cure of even worst chronic cases, also unequalled as gargle for diphtheria, sore throat, foul breath. 50c.

In the New Hampshire senate, June 25th, an address for removal of Frederick Stiner as justice of the peace of Hillsboro county was passed.

The Hope of the Nation.

Children, slow in development, puny, scrawny and delicate, use "Wells' Health Renewer."

In the New Hampshire house of representatives, June 24th, a bill to reimburse all who were drafted and furnished substitutes in the late war was refused a second reading.

Catarrh of the Bladder.

Stinging, irritation, inflammation, all kidney and urinary complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

In the house of commons at Ottawa, Can., on June 24th, the bill was passed providing for increasing the number of the northwest mounted police to 1000.

"Water Bugs, Roaches."

"Rough on Rats" clears them out, also beetles, ants, insects, rats and mice, 15 and 25c. boxes.

A waterspout burst over Longview, Texas, June 24th, doing about $1000 damage. After the storm had passed innumerable fish were found.

Educated and Experienced.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass., who have a thorough knowledge of pharmacy, and many years practical experience in the business. It is prepared with the greatest skill and care, under the direction of the men who originated it. Hence Hood's Sarsaparilla may be depended upon as a thoroughly pure, honest, and reliable medicine.

In Bodie, Cal., an "offensive partisan" holds the postoffice, and the editor of the democratic newspaper there wants him removed and "our vivacious wife" put in his place.

Saved from the Grave.

"A severe cold, ending in a hard, dry cough, caused me to pass many sleepless nights, coughing until it seemed as though my head would burst. I told my friends that I must die. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer. First dose was a great surprise; slept all night in peace. It cured me right up. Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshal H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

Thomas B. Pinkham, aged sixty years, residing on Beach hill, near South Abington, Mass., was thrown from a young colt which he was breaking and trampled upon. It is feared he will not recover.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

A man named Ashby of South Wrentham, Mass., was drowned at Whiting's pond June 24th, while bathing.

For colds, croup, asthma, bronchitis and sore throat, use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and get the genuine.

John Deady, aged forty-five years, while engaged in fishing on the Blackstoneriver, at Millville, Mass., fell from a boat and was drowned.

Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. H. Gafford and wife.

For Sale or To Let.

THAT beautifully situated estate known as the Capt. John Huntress homestead, on a line with the Wm. Gardiner mansion, and the project ed extension of Mechanic street to connect with Pleasant street. This house or block is commodious for two large families, and has been substantially repaired by James Janvrin; price $750, carrying the right to purchase the adjacent wharf for $100 additional—$850. It has a historic interest as the cradle of the Marcy family and is opposite the house where Washington visited his Private Secretary Lear. There was a cargo of sugar and molasses landed and stored there, and it would seem that it cannot be long before this wharf will again be in requisition.

SULPHUR BITTERS

THE BEST AND GREATEST MEDICINE

It will drive the Humor from your system, and make your skin clean and smooth. Those Pimples and Blotches which mar your beauty are caused by impure blood, and can be removed in a short time, if you are wise and use the great blood purifier.

SULPHUR BITTERS. Why suffer with Boils? They are but a sign of a diseased system. Why suffer with Rheumatism? Why have your joints and muscles racked by anguish, when a few doses of Sulphur Bitters will drive it out? Why suffer with Dyspepsia? Why have your stomach so out of order that you can neither eat nor sleep? Why suffer with Nervous Prostration and feel as if life was a burden? Why have your blood impure and full of pimples? Why have your liver torpid, causing constipation? Why have your kidneys out of order, causing pain in the back, and a thousand other complaints which disturb the peace of your dwelling? Sulphur Bitters is not a cure-all, but a Blood Purifier. It is composed of the choicest Roots, Herbs and Berries combined with the Extract of Sulphur in such proportions as to make it Nature's Great Nervine.

SULPHUR Bitters

The Dose is small—only a Teaspoonful. It is the best and cheapest medicine. Try it and you will be satisfied. Get it of your druggist. DON'T WAIT. GET IT AT ONCE.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, sinks, shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substances or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any such stalls, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners and occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or any flat or marshes adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

FOR YOUNG MEN.

Sound Advice from a Prominent Statesman.

The Private Letter Ex-Minister Edwards Pierrepont Wrote Six Years Ago to His Son.

[Concluded from last issue.]

If you drink wine at all be very moderate; there is much in habit; a single glass is just as satisfactory as a dozen, if you so train yourself.

I can not too strongly urge upon you the importance of early retiring to rest. Investigations into the causes of longevity have shown that early sleep and early rising are among the chiefest reasons of long life, and science has revealed the fact that the magnetic rays of the sun are widely different in the morning from those of the declining day. As the sun goes down most of the beasts and birds seek their place of rest; many of the flowers and plants and trees fold their leaves, and the large sunflower, which looks toward the sinking sun in the West, is turned to greet him in the morning toward the East. As he approaches to usher in the day all nature, from bird to flower, seems animated with invigorated life. Then the mind of him who has had refreshing sleep awakes with its best thoughts, its wisest plans, its largest capabilities. But this can come only to him who has spent the midnight hour in sleep. Sleep restores the nervous forces of the exhausted brain, and the best constitutions will soon be shattered and the best mind will become unstrung if sleep is neglected. It was justly called

Sore labor's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
Chief nourishers at life's feast.

3. That economy is a virtue and that extravagance is a vice, never forget.

You never see a man of 40 who regretted his economy; you will see many who mourn their early extravagance. Lavish expenditure never wins respect. It may gain temporary flatterers, who despise the fool they flatter. Pay every debt you owe, but

Neither a borrower nor a lender be,
For loan oft loses both itself and friend,

Let not your vanity ever tempt you to spend money. English young men are awake; they laugh at the foolish Americans who are so lavish. Remember that your hope, your pride, your life, is to be in America. A country whose future is unimagined, and whose greatness and power will surpass any empire in the world. You are to be a part of it; and, if you do not one day go as ambassador from the greatest republic that has even been to the most powerful and advanced kingdom in Europe, you will fail of your possibilities and of my hopes.

Do not listen to the twaddle about the decadence of England. She is not in decay, but in the full vigor of robust manhood. Great nations do not commence their fall until their morals are corrupted. As yet, England has a steady moral sense, courage and capacity for self-denial and for brave deeds; she believes in God and truth and justice. She has many faults and weaknesses. She is not moving forward with the colossal power of this younger, bolder, more rash and fearless America; her civilization is in advance of ours, but she has inherited many prejudices coming down from old centuries which retard her progress and from which we are free.

I would deprive you of no innocent pleasures; that is not pleasure which injures the health, jades the mind and makes you feel meanly and weak and unequal to the labor which is to fit you for manly life.

Study well whatever the college course requires and never say that this or that will be of no use. All is of use which disciplines and strengthens the mind. When training for a boxer you strike the sand-bag; you would not tell the trainer that you do not expect to fight sand-bags in life, and hence you will not strike them now. You lift weights to strengthen your hands, you do day work to strengthen the head, and remember that you must do it, no one else can do it for you—as well might you get some one else to strike the sand-bag or lift the weight which was to strengthen your muscle.

Duties well done every day and difficulties surmounted as they arise grow easier continually, and finally become lasting enjoyments.

Never play cards for money. It is no pleasure to win a fellow student's money, and it is pain to lose your own. The habit is always bad and oftentimes fatal; never acquire it.

Dress like a gentleman; never be peculiar or flashy, but dress as becomes you, not as becomes some one else. Never talk about your expenses or your money, and never be ashamed to live with economy; on the contrary, be proud of it. Your business now is to acquire knowledge, and you need not be anxious to display yours, especially to older men, but always try to learn of them.

Never say to another what it would be unpleasant to have him say to you.

Remember that good manners are of great importance. Manners should be frank and easy with dignity.

Avoid fawning, toadying ways as you would a foul fiend. Never fawn to a Prince or swagger to a peasant. Be courteous and manly everywhere and to everybody.

Let your manner be quiet; nothing is more underbred than a flurried address, with a face wrinkled all over with grinning delight.

The countenance can express pleasure and welcome without idiotic contortions, and when these appear, whether in the son of a Duke or a drayman, they are intensely vulgar.

You cannot have good manners in the drawing-room, if your habitual manner is bad; the habit will control you; let the habit be always good.

Far better that you look frigid even, than that you degrade your countenance with silly hilarity.

Be a gentleman, feel like a gentleman, and you will look and act like one.

Sometimes you will be neglected, and your vanity may feel wounded; never let this annoy you; be absolutely sure that in due time all will come right and that you will have all the consideration which you merit. No one can do you any permanent injury but yourself. The world is so constituted that it is not in men's power to withhold respect from lofty character, real ability and good conduct.

You may be invited to a ball or a dinner because you dance or tell a good story; but no one since the time of Queen Elizabeth has made a Cabinet Minister or a Lord Chancellor for such reasons.

The years of youth are short, and the pleasures of youth perish in manly life. Reputation, power and the consideration which comes of ability, attainments and good character are what the man from 30 to 70 covets. Nothing but the well spent years of early life can secure these.

I would keep you from no enjoyments suited to your age which are not injurious to your real happiness and your future success.

You have health and a good constitution, and you have no inherited tendencies to any vice. It is easy for you to do right, and it will be unpardonable if you go astray.

I rejoice to find that profanity is considered vulgar in England. It is vulgar everywhere. During the two years that I resided in England I never heard a profane word from a gentleman. Among the young men slang seemed to be abundant. I hope that it does not prevail at the university.

Remember that when you are 25 you will desire what others value at that age, and so at every future stage of life. I mean what the higher order of men value.

Live each year in the way that will best fit you for the next year, and thus you will lead a happy life; a life which will secure to you the happier life to come.

You start with every advantage; but forget not that yours are advantages suited to America, not suited to England. No one has superior rank or higher social position than you in America. In England their ancient system of primogeniture and title give precedence and outward respect, in a large degree, irrespective of merit. It is not so with us, and I am very glad. Quarrel not at all with their system—they seem to like it. But never covet it, and never commit the silly snobbery of pretending to prefer it to the system of your own country.

The social life of England is very charming, and their plan of leaving all land to the eldest son has built up vast estates, adorned and dignified with castles and halls filled with art and luxury and refined taste, but all this is at the sacrifice of many human rights which we value.

Nothing like this is possible in America, and it will not always last in England.

The substratum of the English character is solid, honest, truthful, and in the main, just. Our best traits are a heritage from that race, but I feel quite sure that, with all our faults, we are rapidly improving upon our English sires, and that we have become quite the superior people as a whole.

Feel always a manly pride that you are an American, and that your future is here.

There is not, in all historic time, a grander record than that of the United States. Before the nation was a hundred years old, a great civil war broke out, and the North alone had at one time more than a million armed men in the field, and the South had vast armies also. After four years of terrible war, more than 1,200,000 soldiers were disbanded almost in a day. They returned to the peaceful industries of civil life without a murmur, without disorder and without crime. Under our own system of government they had learned to govern themselves even in the deadness of the conflict; when the President was assassinated, the Government moved on without even a ripple of disturbance. More than $3,000,000,000 of debt was created, and the paper money was in such discredit that one gold dollar would buy $2.70 of the paper. But so soon as the war ended we went bravely to work to pay off one-third of the vast debt, and now a paper dollar will buy a gold dollar in any part of the country, and our national credit is of the highest grade. We have finished more than 75,000 miles of railway, revived our industries, increased in population, and our prosperity is such that our annual income is greater than that of any nation on the earth. * * *

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to me inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now to-day she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. Houses to Let.

THE two-story Dwelling House No. 12 South Street, with a Stable and a supply of good water on the premises. Also, one-half of House No. 14 South Street. Apply to H. F. WENDELL, No. 16 Congress Street, or No. 5 South Street.

At the New Orleans Exposition, Mr. E. R. Hoyt, a mechanical engineer, was severely injured by a huge derrick pole. He was conveyed to his residence, and after only three applications of St. Jacobs Oil, all the swelling and pain disappeared.

A singular phenomenon has been noticed at Contocook. A number of wells accustomed to yield good water have lately yielded sulphurous water of bad quality. A quantity has been sent away for analysis.

Henry Schoenhals, foreman Henry Krug Packing Co., St. Joseph, Mo., uses Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil with his men for sprains, cuts, bruises, chapped hands, etc. It is the best.

On Friday afternoon two boys, while playing on the bank of the Merrimack river near the lower bridge in Concord, found the body of a female child floating in the water.

For Medicinal and Domestic Use, a pure whiskey is often required. Ask for the G. O. Taylor Old Bourbon. It is a standard article. Druggists and Grocers have it.

Robert Sutton's steam saw mill at Jefferson was burned June 26th. Loss $5000; insurance $3000.

Thirty years is a long time, but for that term Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator has been before the public as a sure cure for Heart Disease in all its forms. Free pamphlet of F. E. Ingalls, Cambridge, Mass. $1.00 per bottle at druggists.

Appointments.

The president on June 27th suspended Horatio Burchard, director of the mint, and appointed James B. Kimball in his place.

Edward L. Hedden was appointed collector of the port of New York, Hans O. Beattie surveyor, and Silas W. Burt naval officer.

The Cholera.

Spanish advices of June 27th report the number of new cases on the 26th in the province of Valencia alone at 524, and the deaths 255.

The Fishery Treaty Extended.

An agreement has been entered into by the United States and English governments whereby the privileges of fishing, which would have terminated the first of next July, may be continued throughout the season of 1885.

A despatch of June 26th from Gloucester, Mass., says: "No official notice has been received from the customs authorities of the arrangement between our government and Great Britain, conceding mutual fishing rights to the fishermen of the respective countries upon the coasts of the Dominion of Canada and the United States until Congress meets. While the general sentiment of our fishing interest is that the agreement will be favorable to Gloucester interests, the right to take mackerel in shore and purchase bait being more than equivalent to the freedom of our inshore fisheries to Canadians, there is uneasiness lest in the negotiations which will follow, our neighbors may again secure the best end of the bargain. The almost unanimous sentiment in Gloucester is that our interests would have been safer under the hostile sentiment of Canada, even with a few seizures and broken voyages which would have aroused attention in this country, than under the present arrangement."

The Soudan Business.

A deserter from the force of rebels besieging Kassala has been taken prisoner and brought to Massowah. He says the rebels are very short of provisions, and there is much sickness among them. When he left them they were seriously considering a proposition to the beleaguered garrison for a cessation of hostilities upon condition that they should be allowed to withdraw without being pursued.

"Mr." Gen. Lord Wolseley, the famous tactician who wins defeats where they seem impossible, has received a telegram stating that Olivier Pain, the Frenchman who was one of the advisers of El Mahdi during the Soudan campaign, has died from fever in upper Egypt. A Paris despatch says Henri Rochefort has received a telegram confirming the reported death from fever of Olivier Pain.

Attorney General Garland is making so clean a sweep in his department as to include the laborers, messengers, elevator men and charwomen, all of whom have been served with notice to quit before July 1st.

Mr. A. H. Shipman of Rochester, N. Y., with his wife and a party of friends, will soon leave Pittsburg, Pa., in his yacht, the "Laura May," on an extended trip of 6000 miles, which will occupy a year, though mainly confined to the internal waters of the United States. The Ohio and Mississippi rivers and the great lakes will be traveled, Florida visited in November, and from thence to Cuba and the Bahamas, occupying the time till May. Returning, the yacht will pass up the Atlantic coast, and through the chain of shoals and canals that lead through Virginia to the Potomac river. Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia will be visited, when the yacht will steam to New York, and thence to Rochester via the Hudson river and Erie canal.

At New Haven, Conn., Chas. Northrop, a Morning News compositor, and Miss Lizzie McAffrey, a Courier compositor, are missing, and it is thought they have gone away together. Northrop, who leaves a wife and two children, it is stated took away with him $1000 of borrowed money, and left some unpaid bills.

It was currently rumored in Kittery last week that Mr. Stephen L. Butterfield of North Kittery was to supercede Mr. Solomon Williams in charge of the blacksmith shop in the department of yards and docks at the navy yard on Wednesday, July 1st.

D. O. Bean, of Limington, Me., took the final honors in mathematics at Dartmouth college at the late commencement, and also the prize of $60 for most marked general improvement during the course.

Admiral Alfred Taylor and family, and Mrs. H. J. Bishop, are at the Pepperell house, Kittery Point. Mrs. Commodore Guest and her daughter, Mrs. Seymour, are also at Kittery Point, for the season. Mrs. A. Hemmenway of Boston was among the early arrivals at Appledore.

Mr. Lewis Harris, an old and respected citizen of North Berwick, dropped dead near his residence on the afternoon of June 23d, presumably from heart disease.

The exercises attending the closing of the school year of Berwick academy occurred on Wednesday afternoon, June 24th, the pupils who took part being as follows: Nettie Shorey, Emma I. Flagg and C. Dean Varney of South Berwick; Lora V. Getchell, Julian W. Shaw, Albert C. Place and James C. Place, Berwick; Stacy L. Hall, North Berwick; Sadie A. Ricker, Salmon Falls, N. H.; Allie M. Ricker, Milton, N. H. In the evening the graduating class was addressed by Rev. Wm. A. McGinley of Portsmouth, N. H., the address being followed by the distribution of prizes, etc., as follows: To Effie B. Littlefield, a medal; to Carrie Bragdon, James C. Place, Julian W. Shaw, Sadie A. Ricker, Allie M. Ricker and Grace M. Ridley, prize books; to John R. Perkins, scholarship.

COL. M. F. WENTWORTH.

The Portland Press publishes a series of biographical sketches of soldiers, and from it the following is taken:

Col. Wentworth volunteered with the Kittery artillery, of which he was captain for three months. In 1862 he was elected lieutenant colonel of the 27th Maine infantry, and in February, 1863, was further commissioned colonel. When the term of enlistment of his regiment had expired, he, at the solicitation of the secretary of war, remained at Arlington Heights with 315 of his command, during the threatened danger of the invasion of Washington by Lee's army, for which service Congress awarded them medals. After the battle of Gettysburg the 27th was relieved from duty and proceeded to Maine, where it was mustered out. On the call for additional troops, Col. Wentworth assisted in recruiting the 32d regiment. He participated in the actions at Hanover court house, Toloptomy creek, Bethesda church, Cold Harbor, Gaines' farm, before Petersburg, and in Burnside's mine, in which battle, with his command, he was among the first to enter the rebel works. He afterward received a severe wound in the left side, resulting in paralysis of the leg and hip. He also received a flesh wound. In consequence of these wounds Col. Wentworth resigned in October, 1864, and was reappointed naval store-keeper at Kittery on the 17th of December following.

WE DO NOT CLAIM that HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA will cure everything, but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system, and that diseases of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the blood.

Why Suffer with Salt-Rheum?

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1878, at which time I was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. The skin would become dry, chap, crack open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla (in the summer of 1878) they were so bad that they discharged, and I was obliged to keep them bandaged with linen cloths. The skin was drawn so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears into my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. I used one box of Hood's Olive Ointment, to relieve the itching. Hoping many others may learn the value of Hood's Sarsaparilla and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,
MRS. S. S. MOODY,

THE NORTH POND DRAIN.

The committee having in charge the matter of building the sewer along the north pond, met Friday evening and decided upon a route for the sewer, and voted to employ Mr. Putnam of Salem to draw plans and make specifications for the construction of the same. The sewer is to be built of brick, three feet in diameter at the westerly end and four feet at the outlet. It will be laid between the tracks of the Eastern and Concord railroads from Creek street to a point opposite the foot of Conwall street; at this point it will be carried underneath the tracks of the Eastern road, and continue toward the river on the south side of the tracks, through Deer street to the river, emptying into Sise's dock. Mr. Putnam will go to work at once upon the plans, and then speedy completion is looked for. We have no doubt this is the best route the sewer could take, so far as permanent effectiveness is concerned; for were it to empty inside the Noble's island bridge, or anywhere else except into the full tidal current of the river, the result would probably be the abatement of the pond nuisance, and the establishment of another in some other locality. But we expect the cut through the hill on Deer street will furnish a tough job.

BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD--SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

The summer time-table of the Eastern Division, Boston & Maine railroad, went into effect this morning. Under the new arrangement there are ten trains daily between this city and Boston, instead of seven as under the spring arrangement. Among the new trains is the Seashore Express, which leaves this city at 7:30 A. M. and Boston at 3:15 P. M., making the run in one hour and thirty-five minutes; there are also two trains daily running to Mt. Desert Ferry, Me., opposite Bar Harbor, Mt. Desert. The 2:45 P. M. train for Portland joins the Western Division train at North Berwick, running through Biddeford and Old Orchard beach. One train is taken off the Portsmouth & Dover branch, and there are changes in the starting time of the other trains. The revised time-table can be found in another column.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steam collier Reading arrived from Philadelphia on Friday, June 26th, with 1661 tons of coal, and the schooner F. C. Yarnell arrived from the same port on the 27th with 817 tons, both to J. Albert Walker.

The schooners Lillie, Estella, D. K. Ham and Hattie Lewis, brick laden, sailed for Boston on Saturday. The schooner Cephas Starrett, of Rockland, Me., sailed for her hailing port on Saturday, light, to receive somewhat extensive repairs.

Saturday was hot enough to satisfy the landlords of the summer resorts, and Sunday forenoon was too hot for comfort, though the warbling of the Whales-back foghorn told of thick weather outside the harbor. Sunday afternoon was delightfully agreeable, the southeasterly wind which had been holding the fog-bank in shore all day managing to reach up to the city. All the sail and row boats of the Electric Boat Co. were let during the day on Sunday, as were most of the other letting boats on the river. The "North End Charmer," with her full crew and a few invited guests, went on a trip up river. The schooner yacht Wm. H. Russell sailed on Saturday evening with an excursion party—the Hydro club—for a trip to the lower harbor, returning on Sunday evening.

Mr. Charles H. Tompson, formerly of this city, and long the leader of the old Portsmouth cornet band, is this season again in charge of the music of the mammoth excursion steamer Empire State, running out of Boston.

Hett Brothers put two new express wagons on the street Saturday. They were made in Concord, and are handsome and apparently substantial.

Hon. G. M. Robeson's carriage was in town Saturday. The ex-secretary seems not to have matched his large gray horse, and as yet drives a fancy match. Like the owner, it is difficult to find a suitable match in every respect.

The first dance at the Sea View house, Rye beach, this season, will be given on Friday evening, July 3d; music by the Boston Cadet band.

A game of base ball was played at the Plains on Saturday afternoon between the Red Stocking and Red Star clubs of this city, and was won by the Red Stockings by a score of twelve to eleven, in eleven innings.

The pupils of the Hanover street school went to Rye beach in barges, Saturday afternoon, for a picnic at Wallis' sands.

The funeral of the late Oliver L. Towle, who died very suddenly in San Francisco some weeks ago on the eve of starting for home, will take place in the Congregational church at Hampton on Thursday, July 2d.

Nice fresh strawberries were selling at ten cents a box on Saturday, and three boxes could be had for a quarter just before time to shut up shop; the warm, dry weather has ripened the berries very fast, and caused a great supply to be rushed into the market. Moses Brothers sold 900 boxes during the day and evening.

A charge of dynamite which was exploded at six o'clock Saturday evening in the cellar now in course of excavation in the rear of the Rockingham house, made things fly around some, and threw one of the covering-logs over the fence into the yard of the Peirce estate; but no damage was done except the breaking of a sash and four panes of glass in one of the windows of Music hall, which was in the way of a flying bit of rock.

About twenty-five pupils of the high school went to Dover in barges Friday evening of last week, to attend the exhibition of the Dover high school, returning after the exercises were over.

Mr. George Porter, who for years past has been an employe at Burleigh's mills in South Berwick, on Saturday last took passage from Boston for Liverpool per steamer Scythia, on a visit to his friends in Trowbridge, Wiltshire, England. It is fifteen years since Mr. Porter first came to this country, and eleven years since his last previous visit to his native land. He takes with him some fine specimens of American wearing apparel, as presents from Mr. George Lane of this city to his (Lane's) English friends.

AT MUSIC HALL TO-NIGHT.

At Music hall, this evening, Maud Forrester's Specialty Burlesque Co. will give an entertainment consisting of eight olio acts by specialty artists, and a burlesque extravaganza, the Babes in the Wood. Popular prices; tickets at Goodrich's.

DR. CROSS,

The celebrated Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

28 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. N.B. If you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N.Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

The naval bureau of provisions and clothing was thrown into a state of excitement on Friday, June 26th, by the relief from their present duties not only of the paymaster-general but also of his two assistants, Paymasters Barton and Deering. Inquiry as to the reasons for these orders simply elicited the information that it was deemed best to put the bureau in other hands pending the Smith investgation.

Three Reasons

Why every one needs, and should take, Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than at any other time. Take it now.

Secretary Whitney has detailed Commodore Schley to act as paymaster-general of the navy pending the trial by court-martial of Paymaster-General Smith.

Lieutenant Scheutze will sail for Siberia in July with presents for the Siberians who befriended the Jeannette survivors.

Physic is necessary at times for biliousness, costiveness, etc. Use Dr. Arnold's Bilious Pills. 25c.

After the action of the Grand Army of the Republic in Portland, there can be no further claim that the honorable and self-respecting veterans are in favor of a universal pension bill, regardless of need or disability. The proposed $8 per month for all soldiers was emphatically condemned, but we suppose the agitation by the political "friends of the soldier" will still go on.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conducted, their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owner or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 15. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or any place that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain adjoining thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Saturday Afternoon.

I love to look on a scene like this,
Of wild and careless play,
And persuade myself that I am not old,
And my locks are not yet gray;
For it stirs the blood in an old man's heart,
And it makes his pulses fly,
To catch the thrill of a happy voice,
And the light of a pleasant eye.

I have walked the world for fourscore years;
And they say that I am old,
And my heart is ripe for the reaper Death,
And my years are well nigh told;
It is very true: it is very true;
I am old, and I bide my time,
But my heart will leap at a scene like this,
And I half renew my prime.

Play on, play on! I am with you there,
In the midst of your merry ring;
I can feel the thrill of the daring jump,
And the rush of the breathless swing.
I bide with you in the fragrant hay,
And I whoop the smothered call!
And my feet slip up on the seedy floor,
And I care not for the fall.

I am willing to die when my time shall come,
And I shall be glad to go:
For the world at best is a weary place,
And my pulse is getting low;
But the grave is dark, and the heart will fail
In treading its gloomy way;
But it wins my heart from its dreariness
To see the young so gay.

NUMBER 492.

Some years ago I was making a sketching tour in the West country, and found myself one September afternoon on Dartmoor, a few miles from Princes Town. I had been strolling lazily about for some time, when I suddenly came upon a bit of moorland, which I decided it was imperatively my duty to transfer to canvas, so I sat down on a mossy bowlder, and was soon diligently at work, and absorbed in the task of trying to represent the lovely autumnal tints on stream, rock, and heather. Intent on my picture, I took no note of time, till suddenly I perceived the shadow getting ominously long; and consulting my watch, I found it was past five o'clock, and that, unless I made a speedy start, I should hardly reach Princes Town before nightfall; so I hastily packed up my traps, deciding that I would come and finish the sketch on the following day. I was just lighting my pipe, preparatory to starting, when I fancied that I saw something move behind a large rock a few yards away, and I heard what sounded very like a smothered cough. I was a bit startled, as, save the birds, no living thing had been near me for hours; but I thought I would see what it was, so I walked up to the spot, and pushing aside the high bracken, was going to examine the place, when suddenly a figure rose up and confronted me. I am not a nervous man, but I must confess I got a start as I saw before me a man clothed in convict garb, bare-headed, wild, and dishevelled. Even in my first alarm, I remember I noticed the number 492 on his clothes, and I don't fancy I shall ever forget that number. I grasped my stick firmly, and thought to myself that I was, so to speak, in a very nice little fix. Convicts are not pleasant neighbors at any time; but a tete-a-tete with an escaped convict on a lonely moor, miles from any house, is decidedly an interview not to be desired. However, my fears speedily subsided, for my convict did not seem at all disposed to make himself disagreeable, but merely stood looking at me, trembling in every limb, and from time to time coughing in a way that shook his wasted frame all over. Poor chap! he was a piteous spectacle—his cheeks all sunk and hollow, and with his prison dress just hanging about him, he looked like a living skeleton.

The situation was awkward to me. As a law-abiding citizen, I felt that it was my duty to take some means of restoring him to the establishment at Princes Town, which he had evidently quitted without leave; while, as an ordinary human being, I felt the sincerest pity for the haggard fellow who stood there, gazing at me with hollow, feverish eyes. However, the contest between duty and compassion was speedily put an end to by No. 492 himself, for, after a more than usually racking cough, his legs gave way under him and he rolled down among the bracken. Duty fled; compassion won the day. I went and picked him up, and propped him with his back against a rock, where he gasped and choked till I really thought he would die then and there. In a minute or two, however, he revived, and in a very faint and feeble voice said: "I'm nigh starved, guv'nor; I guess it's about up with me."

I went back to get some sandwiches out of my case, and offered them to him; he seized them eagerly, and began to eat them ravenously; but again a terrible fit of coughing came on, and he sank back, saying: "It ain't no use; I can't eat now; s'pose I'm gone too far."

Here was a pleasant position. The man was evidently in the last stage of exhaustion; and even my unpracticed eye could see that No. 492 had his days, or even hours, numbered. I moistened his lips with some brandy out of my flask, and saw, to my satisfaction, that this produced a decided improvement. But what in the world I should do next perplexed me sorely, so I repeated the dose of brandy, and took counsel with myself as to the next move.

Under the influence of the brandy, my patient propped himself up again, and with great difficulty told me how he had escaped from the convict prison three days before, and had wandered over the moor, till want of food and exposure had—to use his own words—"spoilt his game," and he was going back to prison to give himself up. Seeing me sketching, and feeling his strength almost gone, he had decided to come and surrender himself to me; but when he got near, the poor fellow's courage failed him, and he had crawled away behind the rock where I had discovered him.

I did not think he would die in quod; but I kept my thoughts to myself, for I felt sure that before the prison could be reached, No. 492 would be far enough away, and it would only be a suit of convict clothes on a wasted skeleton that would enter the gloomy gate.

"Look here, my poor chap," said I. "You can't stop here; you must let me carry you as well as I can, and I must try and get you back to the prison." I felt rather mean as I said this, for I did pity him heartily. I knew nothing about his crimes. He might have been the greatest villain; yet I felt for him, having just tasted liberty and having to go back to captivity; and a single glance at him showed pretty plainly that the prison would not hold him long, even if we ever got there. I expected some attempt at resistance; but, to my surprise, he quietly acquiesced, saying: "All right, guv'nor; it can't be helped. I've had my try, but summat told as I wouldn't succeed."

It was now getting late, and the sun was just down, so there was no time to be lost, as we had a long way to go, and I was rather doubtful about my powers of carrying him, for he was, or had been, of a tolerable size and weight; but now he looked such a mere bundle of bones, that I thought I might manage it. At any rate, there was nothing to do but to try; so I hoisted him up on my back and started off in the direction of Princes Town.

I shall not easily forget that journey; it soon grew quite dark, as I toiled on over the lonely road, with frequent halts to rest, while poor No. 492 grew weaker and weaker, and his terrible cough more and more frequent. We had gone, I suppose, about three miles, when I began to feel that it was quite impossible for me to accomplish the remaining distance, as it was so dark that I stumbled painfully over the rough path, and at each stumble my burden groaned with pain, and coughed so dismally, that I felt my well-meant endeavors were only putting him to complete torture; so I stopped, laid him down on the grass, and told him that we would not try to go on till the moon rose. "All right, guv'nor," said he, feebly, and fell back fainting; so I administered the last few drops of brandy I had left, covered him up as well as I could with my coat, propped his head upon my sketching-case, sat down by his side, and wondered what would be the end of my adventure.

I looked at my watch and saw that it was nine o'clock. The moon, I knew, would not rise till nearly midnight, so we had three hours to wait. I think those three hours were the longest I ever passed in my life. The silence and the loneliness of the moor were terrible, and No. 492 lay with his eyes closed, and, save for an occasional groan, might have been dead. Once or twice he tried to speak, but apparently it was beyond his powers, and he fell back again exhausted. Once he put out his hand, caught mine, and in my great surprise, carried it to his lips and kissed it. I am not much used to having my hand kissed at any time, and should probably, under any circumstances, feel the situation embarrassing; but to have it kissed by a dying convict out on Dartmoor, in the middle of the night, was a novel experience.

I did not mean to hurt the feelings of No. 492, but I drew it away somewhat hastily; and then, seeing his lips move, as if he was trying to say something, I bent over him to listen, and in a voice little more than a whisper, he said: "Beg your pardon, sir; but you have been precious kind to me, and I feels weak and silly; didn't mean no offense."

I hastened with some compunction to reassure him that I was not offended; and again he closed his eyes; and around us once more was silence.

At last, to my great joy, the sky brightened up a bit; the outlines of the trees became more distinct, and the moon appeared over the hills, and shot a flood of silver light all over the moor. My spirits, which had fallen below zero, revived considerably; darkness has at all times a depressing influence, and under my peculiar circumstances, had reduced me to a most profound melancholy. I felt quite glad to see the moon rise, though, beyond the fact of being able to see where we were, it did not materially assist me out of the fix I was in.

I looked at No. 492 and he seemed to be asleep. I did not like to wake him, so I got up quietly, intending to walk to the top of a hill close by, and see if I could discover the lights of Princes Town, or any house nearer, to which I might direct my steps. I was not gone long—perhaps half an hour; and when I came back, I found No. 492 with his eyes wide open, and, to my great surprise—though I don't know why I should have been so surprised—tears running down his cheeks. Really, my ideas about convicts were becoming quite upset; one who furtively kissed my hand, and who wept, was, I thought, indeed an anomaly. I bent over him and asked him if he was in worse pain, or what was the matter. Poor fellow! he lifted his wasted hand, drew it across his eyes, and said: "No; I ain't in no pain now, sir; but I woke from a bit of doze and saw that you was gone; and I thought as how you had left me; and somehow I felt lonesome and afeared; and then a great sob shook him."

I assured him that I was not going to leave him, and he appeared comforted. Then, after a pause, said: "I ain't one as has been much afeared in my time, sir; but, somehow, now I can't help it; it seems all of a tremble; and it looks awful dark ahead of me, and I be so weak I don't seem able to face it nohow."

I longed truly to be able to help him, and wished it with all my heart that I could do it better; but feeling rather ashamed, I tried to tell No. 492 something about a strong Hand which will help in the dark valley, and One who will be near us when of ourselves, as he said: "we don't seem to be able to face it nohow." He listened attentively and then closed his eyes, murmuring something I could not catch.

"It ain't no use my trying to get away, guv'nor," said he, sadly; "I'm that weak I can't walk a step. I couldn't escape now, not if a carriage-and-four was waiting for me. I'd want a muss to lift me up into it. Guess I'll die in quod after all."

After a pause, I asked him if he would try to go on again. "All right, guv'nor; you knows best," was his answer, but very faint and feeble.

Well, I picked him up again, and off I started. By this time the moon was high up, so we progressed a good deal faster than before, and had traversed a considerable distance before I had to stop and put my burden down. Even then, I could have gone a bit further, but No. 492 whispered: "Stop, sir, now; it ain't no use; I shan't get no further."

I laid him down, and saw at a glance that our journey together was about to end. In the moonlight he looked ghastly and wan; and as I laid him down, a violent fit of coughing came on, and after it a red stream flowed from his mouth. Poor fellow! thought I, and yet I could hardly pity him really, for to him death must have come as a true friend. He lay quiet for some time, and I wiped the blood from his lips; then, just as the first gray streak of dawn appeared, he raised himself on his elbow and whispered: "I've been a bad 'un, I knows; but I didn't 'ave no chance. Say a bit of prayer for me, sir."

There was no refusing; and as I finished, his face lighted up, and again repeating his formula, "All right, guv'nor," he fell back—dead. He had succeeded in his escape, after all.

I covered up the body, and thinking no one would be likely to come near the spot, I drew it aside near the rock which I should recognize again, and started off, walking briskly to Princes Town, considering many things by the way. I went to the prison, and came back with some warders to show them the spot; and, as I was obliged to await the inquest, I attended the funeral of poor No. 492.

I trust that in the "Other Land" it may be for him—as for many of us for whom it has been all wrong—"All right."—Chambers' Journal.

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and is the profession it is justly entitled to for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My respect and gratitude are in recommending such an article.

H. MACK, Champion Comique Roller Skater
YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

BEST FOR ANYTHING.

Having used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for eighteen months for Tetter, and finally cured it, I am anxious to get it to sell, and, knowing it, can recommend it beyond any remedies I have ever used for Tetter, Burns, Cuts, etc. In fact, it is the best medicine I have ever tried for anything.

R. S. HORTON.
MYRTLE, MISS.

NEVER A COMPLAINT.

Since I have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES I have never heard a single complaint, but on the contrary every one who has used them has been well pleased with them, and they outsell all others. E. B. CUBBERLY, Druggist.
ANDREWS, IND.

SCROFULOUS SORES.

I had a dozen bad sores upon my body, and tried all remedies I could hear of, and was last tried your CUTICURA REMEDIES and they have cured me.

A Prize in the Lottery

Of life which is usually unappreciated until it is lost, perhaps never to return, is health. What a priceless boon it is, and how we ought to cherish it, that life may not be a worthless blank to us. Many of the diseases that flesh is heir to, and which make life burdensome, such as consumption (scrofula of the lungs) and other scrofulous and blood diseases, find a complete cure in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" when all other remedies have failed. Dr. Pierce's pamphlet on consumption mailed for two stamps. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now to-day she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. H. Gafford and wife.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

Civil Service Reform a la Hay.

Mr. Hay, first assistant postmaster general, seems to be doing pretty well for a man "on his last legs" with sickness. It was reported from Washington on June 28th that within the previous ten days he had examined 507 cases of removals, vacancies and appointments, the appointments alone numbering 344. When he fully regains his health he will make things hum in good style.

Probabilities For This Week.

The postmaster general will recognize the principles of civil service; no postal clerks will be removed except for reasons best known to the postmaster general. Efficiency in the service will be studied; candidates for postal clerkships who cannot read and write will not be deemed worthy of appointment as men of mark. Postal clerks now in office will remain until removed, unless they should happen to die or resign. Principles shifting, near the close of the week, towards a clean sweep, with indications of stormy scenes among the expectants. Important changes may be expected after the above.

The Cholera.

The official cholera returns from the infected districts of Spain on June 27th were as follows: Murcia (city and province — total) 177 new cases, 104 deaths; Castellon, 159 new cases, 57 deaths; Valencia (city and province) 678 new cases, 349 deaths; Toledo, 25 new cases, 9 deaths; Alicant, 143 new cases, 41 deaths; Saragossa, 12 new cases, 8 deaths; Aranjuez, 33 new cases, 9 deaths. Total, 1231 new cases, 577 deaths.

James D. Fish, ex-president of the Marine bank of New York city, arrived at the Auburn, N. Y., penitentiary on Sunday, June 28th, to commence his ten years imprisonment.

The Star, a democratic paper of Wilmington, N. C., says frankly of the prevailing order of things in the south: "Say what you will, there has been no time in this country when human life has been cheaper in the south than at present, and when there were more vendettas, bloody feuds and murders than within the last three or four years."

WE DO NOT CLAIM

that Hood's SARSAPARILLA will cure everything, but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted by experience in all the derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the blood.

Why Suffer with Salt-Rheum?

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum in my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. The skin would become dry, chap, crack open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged, and I was obliged to keep them bandaged with linen cloths. The skin was drawn so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears into my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. I used one box of Hood's Olive Ointment, to relieve the itching. Hoping many others may learn the value of Hood's Sarsaparilla and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, June 27th.

James Crowley, John Lyons and John Coleman, charged with malicious mischief, were dismissed.

MONDAY, June 29th.

George A. Atkins, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90; county farm in default of payment.

Frederick R. Merriman, another drunk, was allowed to go on his promise to leave town at once.

Peter Williams, for an assault on Robert E. Foster, was fined $5, costs $9.18.

COUNTY AFFAIRS.

The Rockingham County delegation in the Legislature visited the farm at Brentwood on Friday, June 26th, and inspected the almshouse, insane asylum and the house of correction. The county commissioners and the superintendent of the farm, Mr. Reynolds, conducted the convention through the various buildings and about the farm, and the party seemed to be unanimously of the opinion that everything was being looked after in a proper manner by careful and painstaking officials. A good old-fashioned dinner was served in the afternoon, which was thoroughly discussed and highly commended by all, after which the convention was called to order by the chairman, Mr. Bell of Exeter, and the matter of county appropriations for the next two years discussed. The convention appropriated $77,000 for 1886-7, and $55,000 for 1887-8; of these amounts $50,000 is to be raised by taxation for each of the two years.

The recommendation of the commissioners in regard to building a new wing to the insane asylum was agreed to, and the convention appropriated $6,000 for that purpose, as it deemed the erection of the building absolutely necessary. Mr. E. P. Kimball of Portsmouth, chairman of the committee on insane asylum earnestly addressed the convention in favor of the proposed improvements.

The chairman then called upon several gentlemen to address the convention, and remarks were made by Messrs. Clark of Plaistow, Urch of Portsmouth, Morrison of Windham, Scammon of Stratham, Lyman of Exeter, and others. The convention at the conclusion of these exercises adjourned.—Times.

MARRIMONIAL.

Hon. James Shaw of Aurora, Ill., was on Monday united in marriage with Miss Ella D. Lowd, daughter of the late William B. Lowd, Esq., of this city. Mr. Shaw learned the printer's trade in this office, and among the many deservedly reputable young men who have taken their first lessons in the art at the Chronicle cases, he has a place in the very first rank. On the breaking out of the secession war he went to the front, and on the return of peace started the Press in Selma, Alabama, and conducted it for several years; he was also elected to and served in the Alabama state senate. Returning to the north he for some time edited the Herald at Aurora, Ill., and later was editor of this paper, afterward returning again to Aurora, where he has since resided, and for which point the newly married couple took the cars Monday evening. If there is any item of happiness they hereafter miss, it will not be for lack of our wishing it to them.

MARITIME NOTES.

On Friday, June 26th, the schooner Sarah Louise, Hickey master, bound from Calais, Me., for Boston, landed at the Nubble, York, Henry Caselden and Charles Olsen, two fishermen whom she picked up at seven o'clock in the evening on June 22d, fifteen miles from Petit Menan, the wind blowing heavily and an ugly cross sea running at the time. The men belonged to the crew of the schooner Fairy Forest, of Portland, and had been twelve hours in their dory when picked up, having lost sight of the schooner early in the morning during a dense fog, while tending their trawls.

The Gloucester mackerel fishery is proving a failure this season. Out of a Gloucester fleet of more than 100 sail at the south, half did not pay expenses, and the average earnings of the fishermen for two months' work was $8. Since returning from the south most of the fleet have done nothing. Two vessels arrived home June 28th after an absence of two weeks and two days, having cruised from Cape Cod to the Bay of Fundy, and from the bay to Cape Cod and Georges again, returning, one with two and one with four barrels of fish. Very few of the fleet have taken a fish since leaving southern waters.

Lewiston Commandry of Knights Templar, of Lewiston, Me., will make a pilgrimage to this city and the hotel Wentworth at Newcastle on Thursday, July 2d, and have invited DeWitt Clinton Commandry of this city to be their guests at the Wentworth on Thursday evening. The visiting commandry will arrive on the ten o'clock train Thursday forenoon, and take carriages to Newcastle, returning to this city Friday morning.

The Swedish Laundry and Intelligence Office has been removed from No. 14 Washington street to No. 67 Congress street, opposite the Kearsarge house.

The New Hampshire national bank has declared a semi-annual dividend of 2 1-2 per cent, payable July 1st.

Rev. John E. Maude, pastor of the Unitarian society in Exeter, died at the home of his parents in Fall River, Mass., June 26th, at the age of thirty years. Mr. Maude was a young man of much promise, a graduate of Harvard college and Harvard divinity school, and was ordained to the ministry and settled over the parish in Exeter last year. He preached in the South Parish church of this city several times during the vacancy in the pastorate previous to the installation of Rev. Alfred Gooding, and created a very favorable impression; and it was he who extended the right hand of fellowship when Mr. Gooding was installed.

Mr. Robert A. Stott, who has been the efficient, attentive and popular baggage-master of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad for about ten years past, has been promoted to be conductor, and entered upon his new duties Monday. Mr. William Entwistle, a new employe, is his baggage-master.

The Sunday schools of the Court street Christian church of this city and the Christian church of Kittery will have a union picnic at Pinkham's grove, Dover point, on Wednesday, July 8th.

The Sunday school of the North Parish will have a picnic at Wallis' sands, Rye beach, on Wednesday, July 1st. Barges will leave the chapel on Middle street at 9:00, 10:30 and 12:00 o'clock; those desiring to go at twelve o'clock are requested to leave their names at Mr. J. H Hutchinson's store to-day.

Mr. John D. Swain, formerly of this city, has resigned the position of superintendent of the Nashua Iron & Steel Co., and the Nashua Telegraph reports that the affairs of the company will be managed by the treasurer, Hon. Aretas Blood of Manchester, until business revives, when a superintendent will be appointed.

Mr. Edward C. Stickney, champion light-weight dumb-bell lifter of the world, will attempt to put up a twelve-pound bell 1000 times on the 4th of July, in public on Market square, for a purse or wager.

Rev. Dennis A. Ryan, pastor of the Catholic church in Newmarket, recently took a census of the French residents of the town, finding 114 families, the total number of persons, including infants, being 645.

The Oceanic hotel at Star island will open for the season on Wednesday, July 1st. The prospect for a good season at both the Shoals hotels is the best for years, nearly every room in the two houses being engaged for early dates, besides which there are four Raymond excursions, and Stark's excursion from Baltimore, booked to visit the islands in July. The steamer Mystic, Capt. Rashe Trefethen, will make her first Sunday trip of this season to the islands with papers and the mails on Sunday next, July 5th.

The mills of the Newmarket Manf'g Co. are now closed on Monday and Saturday of every week, this partial shutdown being rendered necessary from the fact that there is no sale for the goods, 4500 bales of cloth now being stored in the several warehouses there.

Mr. David P. Smith, who died in Newmarket on Tuesday, June [illegible] life-long resident of t[illegible] been born on the 18th o[illegible] the room in which h[illegible] "garrison house" at [illegible] was built as a defence during the Indian troubles, and which he occupied throughout his life. His mother still lives, at the age of nearly ninety years.

Under the proper heading we announce the marraige of Mr. Geo. S. Heaton of this city to Miss M. Eva Merriam of Brooklyn, New York. Mr. Heaton is well and favorably known in Portsmouth, having lived here since the formation of the Marine band, of which organization he was a member. Miss Merriam has many friends in this city and Kittery, where she has spent her summers for the past few years. The marraige ceremony was performed in the presence of immediate friends, after which the happy couple started east, and upon concluding a short tour in New Hampshire and Maine, will take up their residence in Winchenden, Mass.—Penny Post.

Four members of the Newmarket cornet band, nemely, Messrs. Harvey, Brackett, Harrison and Eddy, have been engaged to play for the season in the band of the skating pavilion at York beach.

AT MUSIC HALL TO-NIGHT.

At Music hall, this evening, Maud Forrester's Specialty Burlesque Co. will give an entertainment consisting of eight olio acts by specialty artists, and a burlesque extravaganza, the Babes in the Wood. Popular prices; tickets at Goodrich's.

DR. CROSS,

The celebraed Magnetic Physician whose great cures attracted so much attention in this city some months ago, will be at the Kearsarge house on the 15th inst. to remain a few weeks. All chronic diseases are successfully treated. Consultation and advice free.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them an early and favorable consideration of the Patent Office." EDMUND BURKE, late Commissioner of Patents.

BOSTON, October 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: You procured for me, in 1865, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have continually employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you.

Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease—Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly commended to my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, it was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

24 Adams Street. MATTHEW FARRELL.

In all cases when a consultation is deemed desirable,

Address:—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. But, if you have not done so, adopt "FAVORITE REMEDY" as a household friend.

MALARIA.

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

FAVORITE REMEDY

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—not a healing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. $1 bottle, 6 for $5, by all druggists.

Two Sonnets After Bion.

I.

In dreams great Kupris to my side did bring
The baby Love, who earthward bowed his head;
Her fair hand held the boy; the while she said:
"Dear shepherd, take and teach Love how to sing!"
She spoke, then vanished. Each poor pastoral thing,
Fond wretch, as though Love fain would learn, I taught;
How Pan the pipe, the flute Athena brought,
Hermes the harp, the lyre Apollo King.
These lessons I taught well. No heed he paid,
But sang me love songs with his voice so fine,
Teaching the passions both of gods and men,
And all his mother's arts and deeds divine;
Till I forgot what I taught Love, but made
My own the love songs that Love taught me then.

II.

Though Love be wild, deem not the Muses fear him!
Nay, from their hearts they dote upon the boy,
Following after his winged feet with joy!
If one loves not, yet sings, they will not hear him,
Nor teach him any songs, nor venture near him,
But should a man, soul-tossed by love, employ
His hours with singing, they're no longer coy;
Nay, all the sisters run in haste to cheer him.
Take me as a witness to the truth thereof!
Where'er I sang of any other man,
Or of some other mid the gods above,
Stammered my tongue, I spake not as I can;
But when I sang of Lycidas and Love,
Then through my lips the song with rapture ran.

—John Addington Symonds, in The Academy.

GLEANINGS.

At Biddeford, Me., one recent morning, a newly appointed Deputy Sheriff went into a liquor saloon to make a seizure, but waited while the preoccupied proprietor finished sprinkling the floor, when he made known his business. "I'm sorry for you," said the owner, "but I've just sprinkled the floor with all the liquor I had in the shop."

A Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, school-teacher was recently upon trial before the directors upon a charge of using improper language. He was acquitted, and the following is a sentence taken from the entry concerning the affair made on the official records: "Witness were not very strong and the bord woted unanermus in Mr. Ferghosons favor."

An English lockmaker has constructed a key which he claims is capable of opening 22,600 patent lever locks, all of which differ in their wards or combinations. As described the key weighs three ounces, is nickel-plated, and is said to be the result of three years' labor on the part of the inventor in making drawings of the different wards and combinations.

The son of Charles Dickens, who was at first reported killed at Fort Pitt, but who has happily escaped, went to Manitoba some ten years since, and was made Inspector of the mounted police. He was afterward promoted to be Chief Inspector. He is described as a plucky, dashing officer, inheriting some of his father's literary tastes, but fonder of adventure and open air life.

Eleven years ago General Dargan, of Wadesboro, N. C., bought a five-year-old hen from a countryman and put her in a pen to fatten, but she began to shell out eggs so fast that the General concluded to keep her for a while, as he considered it too valuable a fowl to kill. She continued to live—is now sixteen, a hale, hearty, old hen—and lays an egg every other day.

George Lewis, a colored man living in Dooly County, Georgia, has a tame gopher or groundhog, which has made its home in a hole in his yard for four years. He has named it Tobe, and in warm weather, when the children go to the hole and call him by his name, he will crawl out and follow them all over the yard, eating from their hands and doing other funny tricks.

A number of able descriptive writers appear to have been let loose in the Territory of Wyoming, recently. Among other wonderful things found by them are: A mountain of solid hematite iron, a mile wide, two miles long and 600 feet high: a bed of lignite coal big enough to warm the world for several centuries; eight lakes of solid rock, and a great petroleum basin, from which oil is oozing all the time.

Major Follett, a Brooklyn mechanic, has invented a wonderful sewing machine, which, it is claimed, will do 80 per cent more work than any machine now in the market. An experiment with steam power moved it with speed of 2,200 stitches a minute, and was started and stopped instantly. It is simple in construction, is easily operated, and sews all kinds of fabrics, from leather to fine linen.

When the late Senator Fessenden was Secretary of the Treasury it is related that he one day received a sealed package. He broke the seal and glanced at it, and then at the signature; a scowl appeared on his face, and in a very emphatic and disgusted manner he tore the manuscript to pieces and threw it into the waste-basket, with the remark, "What in the d—l does Wilson [Senator Wilson] know about finance?"

Mrs. Custer has now been eight years a widow, and during the most of these years she supported herself by acting as secretary to the Society of Decorative Art. Her pension then from the Government was only $50 a month; but such a to-do was raised by the newspapers and public about this niggardly way of dealing with a brave officer's widow that a short time ago her pension was doubled. So now she is enable by close economy to live without working.

A Litchfield county correspondent writing of manners and customs in that section fifty years ago says that "common people didn't own stoves then; they rented them of the rich for 25 cents a month. Dr. Catlin, of Litchfield, had quite a number that he rented. We will remember seing him staff around for miles to collect stove-rent. There were no clocks in schoolhouses; the teachers had noon-marks on the window-sill; when the sun struck the mark it was noon; if it was cloudy, they guessed noon. There were clocks in but few families in those days."—Hartford (Ct.) Times.

German statistics show that there has been an almost unprecedented increase of students during the last decade, and at the present moment Germany, with a population of 45,260,000, has 26,000 students attending her universities, while England, with a population of 26,000,000 has only 5,500 students at Oxford and Cambridge.

An oddity in the shape of a religious publication comes from Los Angeles, Cal., and it calls to the unconverted under the sonorous appellation of the Lost Angels' Trumpet Call. It prospectus sets forth that it is "Published by the Holy Family, for the Heavenly Host of Angels. It is also the Horn of Salvation. One Toot, One Cent."

Cuticura

DISFIGURING HUMORS, ITCHING TORTURES, AND LOATHESOME SORES.

I HAVE TRIED for eleven years to have my wife cured of a terrible skin disease. The CUTICURA REMEDIES (CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally) have done in six weeks what I have tried for eleven years to have done. You shall have the particulars as soon as I can give them to you, and as we are so well known in this part of the country, it will benefit you, and the remedies will cure all who use them.

MAYSVILLE, KY. CHAS. H. WHITE.

BLOTCHES CURED.

I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES for Blotches, and am completely cured, to my inexpressible joy. CUTICURA SOAP is the best I have ever used, and to the profession it is invaluable for cleansing the skin, thereby removing all "cork," grease, paint, and all the stuff used by them, leaving the skin pure, and white and soft. My greatest pleasure is in recommending such an article.

H. MACK, Champion Comique Roller Skater

And Public Speakers without number owe their present usefulness and success to SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH.

Rev. D. Wise says: "One of the best remedies for Catarrh—nay, the best remedy we have found in a lifetime of suffering—is SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE. It clears the head and lungs so thoroughly that, taken each morning on rising, there are no unpleasant secretions and no disagreeable hawking during the entire day, but an unprecedented clearness of voice and respiratory organs."

Sold by all druggists. Price, $1.00.

THAT beautifully situated estate known as the Capt. John Hunt'ress homestead, on a line with the Wm. Gardner mansion, and the projected extension of Mechanic street to connect with Pleasant street. This house or block is commodious for two large families, and has been substantially repaired by James Janvrin; price $750, carrying the right to purchase the adjacent wharf for $100 additional—$850. It has a historic interest as the cradle of the Marcy family and is opposite the house where Washington dined his Private Secretary Lear. There was a cargo of sugar and molasses landed and stored there, and it would seem that it cannot be long before this wharf will again be in requisition.

"All Men Are Liars,"

Said David of old. He was probably prompted to make the above remark after trying some unreliable catarrh remedy. Had he been permitted to live until the present day, and tried Dr. Sage's Remedy, he might have had a better opinion of mankind. We claim that no case of catarrh can withstand the magic effects of this wonderful medicine. One trial of it will convince you of its efficacy. By druggists; fifty cents.

A severe storm of wind, rain and hail passed over Warren at noon on Monday, with thunder and lightning. Trees were blown down, crops prostrated and the place flooded.

"I have no appetite," complains many a sufferer. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives an appetite and enables the stomach to perform its duty.

Ladies' Weaknesses.

Mr. T. H. Gafford of Church Hill, Md., is so thankful for the restoration of his wife to complete health that he is willing to certify to the fact and manner of her cure. To Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham. This is to certify to the grand effects of your Vegetable Compound. My wife was suffering from a terrible disease which seemed to baffle the skill of the best medical men. She was in a poor, languid, depressed, nervous condition. We finally concluded to try your Vegetable Compound and to our great surprise the half of one bottle had not been taken before there seemed to be a thorough change in her whole condition, and now to-day she is in good health and entirely relieved from all former depressed feelings.—T. H. Gafford and wife.

A man in Milford recently rode into the village contentedly smoking his pipe, with several children and a keg of powder in his wagon.

After using all the humbug liniments and salves with sure failure, go and get of your druggist a Hop Plaster. The strongest and best porous plaster ever made. Vastly superior to all other external remedies. The complete pain-allaying virtues of fresh hops combined with strengthening gums and Burgundy pitch. 25c.

The trial of Joseph C. Mackin, the democratic clerk of ward eighteen, Chicago, on a charge of perjury in having testified before the grand jury that he did not order the printing of the bogus tickets found in the ballot box from the third precinct of that ward, was begun in the criminal court at Chicago June 29th. Storer, attorney for Mackin, applied for a charge of venue, but as one change of venue had already been granted the application was denied.

BILIOUSNESS.

Bilious symptoms invariably arise from indigestion, such as furred tongue, vomiting of bile, giddiness, sick headache, irregular bowels. The liver secretes the bile and acts like a filter or sieve, to cleanse impurities of the blood. By irregularity in its action or suspensions of its functions, the bile is liable to overflow into the blood, causing jaundice, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, bilious diarrhœa, a languid, weary feeling and many other distressing symptoms. Biliousness may be properly termed an affection of the liver, and can be thoroughly cured by the grand regulator of the liver and biliary organs, BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. Act upon the stomach, bowels and liver, making healthy bile and pure blood, and opens the culverts and sluiceways for the outlet of disease. Sold everywhere and guaranteed to cure.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, as a specific for indigestion, stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopœia have been exhausted, without, at least, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland the Bitters act with regular distinctness, regulating and invigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.
